Line Drawn For GOP-Demo Fight Over Russian "Slave" Resolution

Amendment Added To Proposal Over Democrat Protests

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The lines were drawn up today for a possible out-and-out fight between Republicans and Democrats over the resolution condemning Russia for enslavement of free peoples.

Secretary of State Dulles, sponsor of the original proposal on behalf of President Eisenhower, has said it would be better to have no action at all on the subject than to turn out a split decision which the Soviets could interpret to the world as a division in American views. Such a fight might still be averted, but Democratic statements sounded like the chance was a slim one.

Controversial Amendment

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee laid out the battle line—and produced a party-line split of its own—by writing into the measure an amendment which says Congress is expressing no opinion as to the "validity or invalidity" of long-controverted wartime agreements with Russia by President Roosevelt and Truman. Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) offered the new language.

The vote on that revision, and on approval of the resolution as amended, was 8-6. The six were all Democrats.

In the original version the Reds would simply have been denounced for perversion of agreements which resulted in enslavement of peoples behind the Iron Curtain.

Democratic leaders in both the Senate and the House had approved the original form, and opposed any revision that would amount to criticism of the agreements themselves.

Democrats' Argument

A number of Democrats argued today that the amendment finally adopted "emasculated" the resolution as a propaganda weapon by throwing into doubt the validity of the pacts Russia is accused of breaking.

"We can't deny the validity of the agreements and then criticize

Moscow Discloses Stalin Seriously Ill

MOSCOW, Wednesday, March 4 (AP)—Moscow radio said today that Joseph Stalin has suffered a paralytic stroke and is in a serious condition.

The broadcast said the 73-year-old Russian Premier's right arm and leg are paralyzed, that he is unable to talk and that his heart has been affected.

The announcement identified the cause of illness as a brain hemorrhage.

Mossadegh Foes Block Parliament Confidence Vote

TEHRAN, Iran, March 3 (AP)—Premier Mohammed Mossadegh's opposition boycotted a Parliament meeting today and blocked a vote of confidence in his struggle for power with youthful Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlevi.

With the exception of sporadic demonstrations by Communists, Tehran was relatively free from violence. Police ended one threat by cordoning off Parliament Square to prevent a mass rally called by a Communist - front group, "The National Organization to Combat Imperialism.

The scheduled Parliament meeting had promised a showdown between Mossadegh and Ayatullah Seyed Abolghassem Kashani, powerful Moslem religious leader who is speaker of the Chamber of Deputies. Kashani swung the support of his fanatical followers to the Shah last week when it appeared the Premier might force the Shah to leave the country.

Kashani ordered his deputies to boycott the session after Mossadeth's Army staff installed a new chief of guards at the Parliament building. He contended the change left the deputies without proper protection.

A bloc of 28 Mossadegh deputies has been camping in the building since Tehran's latest riots erupted Saturday. But with Kashani's order keeping his supporters away, Parliament lacked a quorum to do business.

The Premier's deputies were prepared to submit a single article bill intended to restore Mossadegh's power and prestige, badly shaken when pro - Shah demonstrators roamed the streets and even chased Mossadegh from his home in his pajamas.

Mossadegh broadcast an appeal last night to his Nationalist Front followers to call off their demonstrations and get back to work.

But the Communist Tudeh party was still beating the drums and apparently was trying to exploit the situation by forming a popular front "against imperialism."

AFL's Boss Asks Practical Repeal Of T-H Labor Act

By ROWLAND EVANS JR

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—AFL President George Meany today asked Congress for what amounts to practical repeal of the Taft-Hartley Act.

In a sweeping indictment of the seven-year-old labor law, which he called "unjustifiably oppressive," the AFL's new president told the House Labor Committee:

1. The closed shop, under which employment depends on prior union membership, should be legalized.

2. Injunctions of all kinds should be stricken from the law, including 80-day bans on strikes which affect the national safety.

Backs Secondary Boycotts

3. Some types of secondary boycotts should be allowed. Meany called these boycotts "time-honored activities traditionally carried on to protect established labor standards and to assist other unions." The Taft-Hartley Act forbids them.

4. The anti-Communist oath requirement "reduces unionists to the status of second class citizenship" and should be eliminated. Meany said the provision is not "ferreting out Communists from unions."

The Taft-Hartley Act forbids unions to use the facilities of the National Labor Relations Board unless their officers sign the non-Communist oath.

20 Changes Asked

5. Unions should be allowed to make political contributions.

6. Extend collective bargaining rights to large groups of farm employes, not covered by the act.

Altogether, Meany suggested some 20 major changes in the law but refused to agree he was asking its repeal.

"I think parts of the law are good," he said, but did not list them.

Meany's appearance before the committee, headed by Rep. McConnell (R-Penn), was the first

Tydings Admits Gifting Woman

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — Donald S. Tydings, a balding tax official, acknowledged painfully today that he was buying diamond-studded jewelry for a woman friend at a time when he was in trouble over a $3,000 bank loan guaranteed by a man described as a notorious law violator.

He also admitted that an explanation he gave federal agents concerning use of the loan money was a "figment of imagination."

Tydings, 56, a cousin of former Sen. Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, frequently sat silent or simply muttered, "I don't know," when a House ways and means subcommittee confronted him with repeated inconsistencies in his statements.

Tydings, an $8,700-a-year revenue official, is under investigation by the subcommittee for his activities between 1944 and last December when he was enforcement chief of the alcohol tax division district office in Atlanta, Ga.

The subcommittee is investigating political influence on the internal revenue service. Federal agents have termed Tydings untouchable by his superior because he had "the right connections."

Eight Persons Killed, 10 Hurt In Bronx Fire

Delay In Turning In Alarm Costly

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP)—A fire being fought by hand extinguishers exploded out of control over half a city block in the Bronx today, trapping 146 persons and killing seven—five men and two women.

One woman tarried to get her coat. The delay cost her life.

Ten persons were injured, including two firemen.

Seven charred bodies were sprawled beneath debris on the mezzanine of a furniture factory at 150th Street and River Avenue — near the Harlem River and only seven blocks below Yankee Stadium.

Although there was a fire alarm box on the corner, the furniture workers fought the blaze themselves for 20 minutes. Only the chance passing of John T. Oakley, acting deputy fire chief, resulted in an alarm.

On Way To Memorial Service

"Had any of them turned in an alarm," Oakley said. "possibly none would have succumbed to the fire."

Oakley was on his way to memorial services for a Bronx fireman killed last December in line of duty. He saw the smoke and flames, hurried to the scene and turned in the first and second alarms on his two-way car radio.

The memorial service was called off because the firemen who were to honor their dead comrade were themselves risking their lives at the burning furniture plant.

Fire Marshal Martin Scott said acetylene torches in the hands of two iron workers apparently touched off the blaze. The pair were cutting through the mesh screen of a window to a storeroom crammed with combustible material.

Windows Hamper Firemen

Huge glass factory windows, criss-crossed with steel supports, hampered firemen, who could not go in and out through them.

Mary Peavy, 20, first girl to escape the burning building, indicated the fire may have smouldered for some time before it was discovered. She said:

"I seemed to be smelling smoke all morning, so I told the foreman, He went around smelling for smoke but didn't see anything. Suddenly I saw the flames."

School Teacher Lashes Probers

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — A retired school teacher from New York, who refused to say whether she is a Red, gave members of the Senate internal security subcommittee a tongue-lashing today.. She said they used "cloak and dagger" tactics to depict her as a mystery woman in the Communist underground.

"You've assailed my name and blackened my character," she cried, waving her black - gloved hands in the faces of the startled senators.

"And I want to say right here and now that I am shocked and indignant at the treatment this committee has given me."

The witness was Miss Tima D. Ludins, a former New York high school teacher who was accused in previous testimony of organizing a Communist underground in the schools.

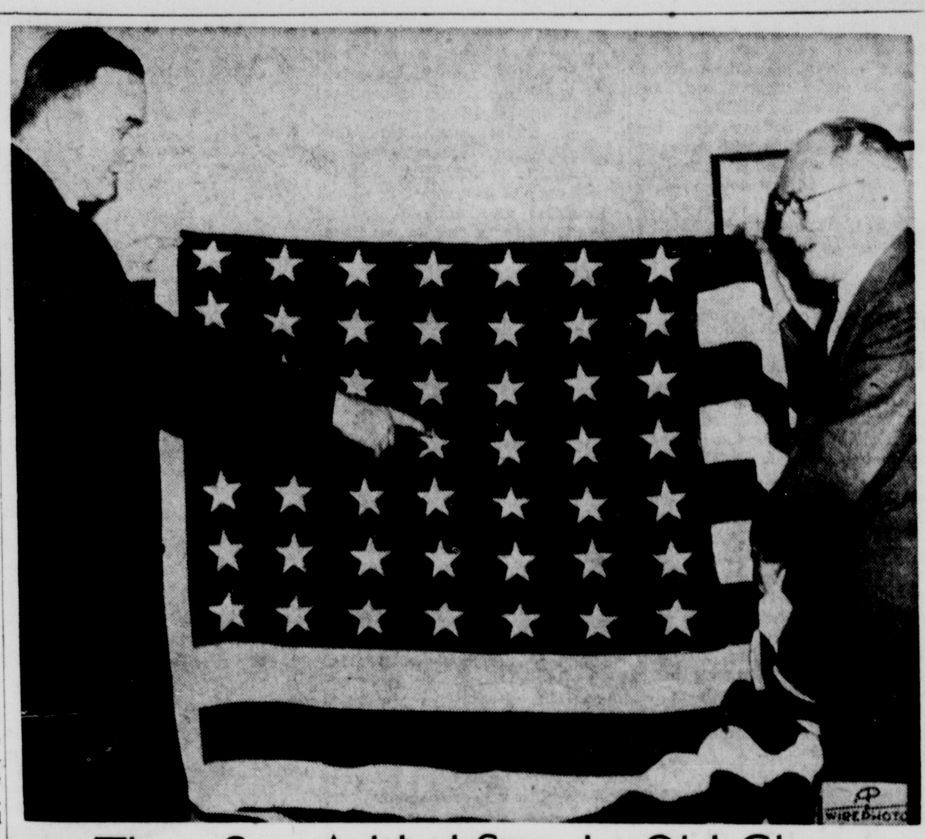

She spelled her name out loudly when she was called to the witness stand. Then she protested an attempt had been made to build her up as some "mysterious" woman known only as Tima. She also demanded to know why "such cloak and dagger" tactics had been resorted to.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind) accompanied her remarks with his gavel, banging and shouting that she was just supposed to answer questions. He ordered her remarks stricken from the record.

Stevenson Wins 'Snickers Award'

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — Adlai Stevenson ran up a landslide victory over a squad of Washington politicians today to win the "Snickers Award" of the National Association of Gagwriters.

His quips during his unsuccessful Democratic campaign for the presidency last fall were adjudged superior to the output of former Vice President Alben W. Barkley, former White House military aide Harry Vaughan, George Allen, Mrs. Perle Mesta, minister to Luxembourg, Sen. Charles W. Tobey (R-NH), Mike DiSalle—and even Harry S. Truman.

Hawaii Backed For Statehood, Alaska Rebuffed

By WILLARD H. MOBLEY

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — The Hawaii statehood bill won approval from the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee today but the group turned down by one vote a move to add Alaska.

Passage of the measure by both branches of Congress was predicted on all sides, but more political pulling and hauling over Alaska undoubtedly will come first. The administration schedule would put the Hawaii bill on President Eisenhower's desk in about three weeks.

Traditionally Hawaii tends toward the Republicans who now control Congress and Alaska toward the Democrats — factors which figured in both the debate and the final committee action today.

Bentsen Voices Criticism

Rep. Bentsen (D-Tex) brought the matter out most openly in the committee talk, saying he wondered if the GOP members were pushing statehood for the island territory and hanging back on Alaska, with the hope of adding two new Republicans to their slim Senate margin.

If that is what they have in mind, he suggested, maybe they had better write an oath of allegiance to the GOP into the legislation in view of "the recent experience in the state of Oregon." He obviously referred to the action of Sen. Wayne Morse who quit the Republican party during the presidential campaign and now calls himself an independent.

Engle Brings On Test

Rep. Engle (D-Calif) brought on the Alaska test with a motion to add the far north territory to the bill.

Chairman Miller (R-Neb) ruled him out of order. Rep. Donovan (D-NY) appealed that ruling to the committee itself and Miller was upheld 11-9 with two members voting present.

Then Rep. Rogers (D - Tex) moved to return the bill to subcommittee with instructions to write in Alaska statehood provisions. That produced the direct test vote which Alaska backers lost, 14-13.

Mrs. Luce Sworn In As Envoy To Italy

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — Blonde former Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce was sworn in today at a colorful State Department ceremony as the first woman ambassador from the United States to Italy.

With Secretary of State Dulles by her side, black-robed Chief Justice Fred Vinson administered the oath.

"This is the first time in history that any woman has been given this type of responsibility," Dulles told her. "It will open up a great vista for women, who in some countries are subject to prejudice, if you discharge your duties as we expect you will."

Pilot Of Airliner, 83 Aboard, Averts Possible Disaster

CHICAGO, March 3 (AP)—A fast-thinking Eastern Air Lines pilot averted possible disaster today when he deliberately spun his super Constellation loaded with 83 passengers off a runway after its nose landing gear collapsed.

The plane, which had just landed at Midway Airport after a non-stop flight from Miami, nosed into the muddy field, shaking up the passengers and crew. One passenger, Joseph J. Zicha, 47, of Chicago, suffered a slight cut on his foot. The others escaped uninjured.

Airline spokesman said the pilot, Capt. W. D. Brach of Miami, pulled off the runway because he was fearful that sparks from friction with the concrete might ignite the plane's fuel.

Krupp And Allies Sign Pact Today

MUNICH, Germany, March 3 (AP)—Alfried Krupp, whose family armed Germany for three wars, will sign an agreement with the Allies tomorrow never again to acquire a controlling interest in German coal, steel or iron industries.

In return Krupp will regain confiscated properties estimated to be worth between 150 and 300 million dollars.

This agreement—climaxing two years of negotiations—was disclosed today by informed sources familiar with its terms. They said the agreement will be signed by Krupp's lawyers tomorrow at Bonn in the presence of Allied and German officials.

It will break up a vast industrial empire built by Krupp's late father, Gustav Krupp, centered around Essen.

Krupp will agree to sell his coal, steel and iron producing properties, estimated worth $47,600,000. But the holdings he retains will still leave him one of Europe's greatest manufacturers of steel products. They include plants making everything from pots and pans, through pipes and plumbing, trucks and locomotives to ocean-going tankers.

All Krupp's properties — once worth nearly a half billion dollars —were confiscated by the Allies when Krupp was convicted of war crimes by a U. S. tribunal in Nuernberg in 1948 and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Former U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy freed Krupp in 1951 as an act of mercy and restored his property rights.

Fire Destroys Two Galena, Md., Buildings

GALENA, Md., March 3 (AP)—Fire destroyed a cluster of business buildings at this Kent County town's main corner today.

A dozen fire engines from surrounding towns raced here to help the Galena Volunteer department bring the blaze under control 45 minutes after it started about 11:30 a.m.

Destroyed were a two - story frame building on the corner which housed a tavern and an adjoining one-story shed occupied by a garage and a machine shop.

U.S. 8th Army Is Invincible, Ex-Boss Says

Congressmen Will Quiz General Today

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet returned to a hero's welcome at the White House today and held to his belief that the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea is invincible.

The strapping 60-year-old general was closeted alone with President Eisenhower for five minutes, which presumably gave the chief executive little opportunity to sound out Van Fleet at that time on his ideas for ending the long stalemated Korean War.

Then a parade of the nation's top military chieftains, including the veteran Gen. George C. Marshall, filed in and joined the discussion for another 20 minutes before the group went to lunch.

Later, Van Fleet told newsmen the things he talked about with Eisenhower and the military high command were strictly "confidential."

He is scheduled to begin a round of congressional quiz sessions at an open hearing before the House Armed Services Committee tomorrow. Chairman Short (R-Mo) said Van Fleet had agreed to testify publicly with as full information as possible without violating security.

Bombarded with newsmen's questions, Van Fleet ducked a direct reply when asked whether it would require heavy reinforcements for the United Nations to lash out on the offensive in Korea.

The general, who pricked congressional ears several weeks ago by saying the Eighth Army "certainly" could undertake a successful offensive now, answered the questions in these words:

"I'm certainly never going to admit that the Eighth Army could be defeated. The American Army has never been defeated and it never will be defeated. Those are my sentiments."

Some members of Congress have contended that without strong reinforcements the Eighth Army would suffer hazardous losses in attempting to break the military stalemate and drive the Communists out of their deep - dug entrenchments.

The four-star general is known to be deeply disappointed that the Korean truce talks put the wraps on the Eighth Army at a time when he felt he had the Communists on the run and permitted the enemy to build up their badly mauled forces.

Military Planes May Join Refugee Airlift In Berlin

BERLIN, March 3 (AP) — West Berlin was deluged tonight with a new flow of Soviet zone refugees and the West German government begged the Allies for military transport planes to supplement a commercial "Freedom Airlift" moving out the urgent cases.

Unless something is done quickly to step up the airlift to West Germany, the city will be hopelessly overcrowded, Refugee Director N. N. Nahm told a news conference in the capital at Bonn.

Ten thousand fear - stricken East Germans have fled to West Berlin since Sunday morning. Seventy thousand have flocked in since the first of the year and the feverish pace grows hourly.

Present System Inadequate

The commercial line airlift, operated by Air France, Pan American and British European Airways, is carrying only 500 to 800 daily to West Germany.

In Bonn, the government said the system is inadequate and a formal request went to the American, British and French High Commissions to consider use of military planes. Fifteen thousand refugees are waiting in Berlin now for a ride west and 30,000 more are being processed for the transfer.

West German officials said the present airlift might do the job if the commercial lines, now using medium craft, would put on four-engined planes for the refugees and cut the rates on the bigger planes about in half.

"Boxcars" Seen Solution

The West German government, footing the bill for the airlift, contends it cannot pay the equivalent of $15.47 the airlines ask for each seat on the four - engined planes. The fare per refugee in a two-engine plane is $8.33.

Berlin officials said the ideal solution would be to obtain sufficient "Flying Boxcars" from the U. S. Air Force to take out 4,000 refugees a day until the crisis eased.

Eighty-five West Berlin refugee camps are so full that City Sen. Otto Bach, who handles social problems, disclosed today a new plan to convert bomb ruins into some kind of shelter.

Loyalty Probers Subpoena Files

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Senate Investigations Subcommittee went after the loyalty files of two State Department employes today, contending that White House orders making them secret already have been violated.

Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis) issued subpoenas for the files of Theodore Kaghan and Edmund Schechter, both of whom hold senior positions under the U. S. high commissioner in Germany.

Whether the State Department will relinquish them remained to be seen. The executive order forbidding congressional access to security files was issued by former President Truman, and the Eisenhower Administration has let it stand.

McCarthy moved to obtain the files after two State Department officers gave conflicting testimony about whether Kaghan and Schechter had been cleared for loyalty to the United States.

Kimble's Delay Moves Fail

State Senate Demos Smother Republican Opposition To Finance, Tax Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, March 3 (AP)—Senate Democrats ran roughshod over Republican objections today and advanced a bill preventing the state from paying off future debts with real estate taxes.

Democrats also smothered Republican opposition in the Senate Finance Committee to boost along an automatic tax reduction plan.

Over violent objections of Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany), the committee decided to send to the floor a bill adapting Virginia's system to Maryland and starting out right away in hopes of easing property and income taxes payable in 1954.

There was enough of a vote in the committee to insure passage of the measure when it reaches the Senate floor.

Kimble had tried to delay action on the proposal to abolish eventually the real estate levy as a bank account for payment of state loans. He brought on an impromptu blast from Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) at "wasteful spending."

"In another few months," Goldstein said, "Maryland will have 159 million dollars in bonds sold or authorized. Think of it.

"How much longer can the state go on issuing bonds on the faith of real estate taxes? The time has come to call a halt to this wasteful spending."

The floor leader said some of the reasons state departments gave for wanting capital improvement funds were "utterly ridiculous."

"You should listen to them, Mr. President," he declared. "it would honestly make you laugh."

Goldstein said he objected particularly to Kimble's request for another day to bring in an amendment to the bill because "they're trying to kill this bill by delaying tactics."

The Governor's proposed budget calls for increasing the state property tax from 6.04 to 11.29 cents on every $100 valuation to help pay off the state's increased debt. Enough of an anticipated surplus has been set aside, however, to reduce the increase by 2 cents.

Goldstein's bill would prevent the state from using real estate taxes as a guarantee for floating any bonds authorized after June 30.

Kimble said he feared taking real estate from the guarantee field might triple or quadruple the rate of interest on future bonds. He said bonding companies would not be as willing to risk their money on items less tangible.

After the outburst, the Senate approved the Finance Committee's favorable report and set up the bill for final passage later this week.

Cooperative Russians Rush Work On New U.S. Embassy

MOSCOW, March 3 (AP) — Soviet officials have proved friendly and co-operative in rushing work on the new 10-story U. S. Embassy building. It will be ready for use this month.

The Russians have given top priority to the job and have even assigned engineers to speed up the work, embassy officials said today.

The building on Tchaikowsky Street will have offices and 44 apartments for the embassy staff constructed according to American specifications. It will be the most modern and probably the best appointed in Moscow.

The rent will be $102,500 a year.

The building was ordered after the Russians canceled the lease on the embassy's present building, on Mokhovaya Street across from the Kremlin. The Russians wanted the old, centrally located building for their own use.

Embassy officials said Soviet government and construction men have co-operated to a pleasing degree in meeting all American requirements.

More than a thousand Soviet workers are toiling day and night to complete the plumbing, electrical installations and the interior decoration. One seven-story wing containing 21 apartments is about ready for occupancy. The main building has been promised for March 22.

The apartments—the most spacious available to diplomats in Moscow—have up-to-date American type kitchens and bathrooms. The equipment was purchased in the United States and Germany.

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Hawaii statehood bill won approval from the House Interior and Insular Affairs Committee today but the group turned down by one vote a move to add Alaska.

Passage of the measure by both branches of Congress was predicted on all sides, but more political pulling and hauling over Alaska undoubtedly will come first. The administration schedule would put the Hawaii bill on President Eisenhower's desk in about three weeks.

Traditionally Hawaii tends toward the Republicans who now control Congress and Alaska toward the Democrats — factors which figured in both the debate and the final committee action today.

Bentsen Voices Criticism

Rep. Bentsen (D-Tex) brought the matter out most openly in the committee talk, saying he wondered if the GOP members were pushing statehood for the island territory and hanging back on Alaska, with the hope of adding two new Republicans to their slim Senate margin.

If that is what they have in mind, he suggested, maybe they had better write an oath of allegiance to the GOP into the legislation in view of "the recent experience in the state of Oregon." He obviously referred to the action of Sen. Wayne Morse who quit the Republican party during the presidential campaign and now calls himself an independent.

Engle Brings On Test

Rep. Engle (D-Calif) brought on the Alaska test with a motion to add the far north territory to the bill.

Chairman Miller (R-Neb) ruled him out of order. Rep. Donovan (D-NY) appealed that ruling to the committee itself and Miller was upheld 11-9 with two members voting present.

Then Rep. Rogers (D - Tex) moved to return the bill to subcommittee with instructions to write in Alaska statehood provisions. That produced the direct test vote which Alaska backers lost, 14-13.

Mrs. Luce Sworn In As Envoy To Italy

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Blonde former Congresswoman Clare Booth Luce was sworn in today at a colorful State Department ceremony as the first woman ambassador from the United States to Italy.

With Secretary of State Dulles by her side, black-robed Chief Justice Fred Vinson administered the oath.

"This is the first time in history that any woman has been given this type of responsibility," Dulles told her. "It will open up a great vista for women, who in some countries are subject to prejudice, if you discharge your duties as we expect you will."

Pilot Of Airliner, 83 Aboard, Averts Possible Disaster

CHICAGO, March 3 (AP)—A fast-thinking Eastern Air Lines pilot averted possible disaster today when he deliberately spun his super Constellation loaded with 83 passengers off a runway after its nose landing gear collapsed.

The plane, which had just landed at Midway Airport after a non-stop flight from Miami, nosed into the muddy field, shaking up the passengers and crew. One passenger, Joseph J. Zicha, 47, of Chicago, suffered a slight cut on his foot. The others escaped uninjured.

Airline spokesman said the pilot, Capt. W. D. Brach of Miami, pulled off the runway because he was fearful that sparks from friction with the concrete might ignite the plane's fuel.

Krupp And Allies Sign Pact Today

MUNICH, Germany, March 3 (AP)—Alfried Krupp, whose family armed Germany for three wars, will sign an agreement with the Allies tomorrow never again to acquire a controlling interest in German coal, steel or iron industries.

In return Krupp will regain confiscated properties estimated to be worth between 150 and 300 million dollars.

This agreement—climaxing two years of negotiations—was disclosed today by informed sources familiar with its terms. They said the agreement will be signed by Krupp's lawyers tomorrow at Bonn in the presence of Allied and German officials.

It will break up a vast industrial empire built by Krupp's late father, Gustav Krupp, centered around Essen.

Krupp will agree to sell his coal, steel and iron producing properties, estimated worth $47,600,000. But the holdings he retains will still leave him one of Europe's greatest manufacturers of steel products. They include plants making everything from pots and pans, through pipes and plumbing, trucks and locomotives to ocean-going tankers.

All Krupp's properties — once worth nearly a half billion dollars—were confiscated by the Allies when Krupp was convicted of war crimes by a U. S. tribunal in Nuernberg in 1948 and sentenced to 12 years in prison.

Former U. S. High Commissioner John J. McCloy freed Krupp in 1951 as an act of mercy and restored his property rights.

Fire Destroys Two Galena, Md., Buildings

GALENA, Md., March 3 (AP)—Fire destroyed a cluster of business buildings at this Kent County town's main corner today.

A dozen fire engines from surrounding towns raced here to help the Galena Volunteer department bring the blaze under control 45 minutes after it started about 11:30 a.m.

Destroyed were a two - story frame building on the corner which housed a tavern and an adjoining one-story shed occupied by a garage and a machine shop.

Military Planes May Join Refugee Airlift In Berlin

BERLIN, March 3 (AP) — West Berlin was deluged tonight with a new flow of Soviet zone refugees and the West German government begged the Allies for military transport planes to supplement a commercial "Freedom Airlift" moving out the urgent cases.

Unless something is done quickly to step up the airlift to West Germany, the city will be hopelessly overcrowded, Refugee Director N. N. Nahm told a news conference in the capital at Bonn.

Ten thousand fear - stricken East Germans have fled to West Berlin since Sunday morning. Seventy thousand have flocked in since the first of the year and the feverish pace grows hourly.

Present System Inadequate

The commercial line airlift, operated by Air France, Pan American and British European Airways, is carrying only 500 to 800 daily to West Germany.

In Bonn, the government said the system is inadequate and a formal request went to the American, British and French High Commissions to consider use of military planes. Fifteen thousand refugees are waiting in Berlin now for a ride west and 30,000 more are being processed for the transfer.

West German officials said the present airlift might do the job if the commercial lines, now using medium craft, would put on four-engined planes for the refugees and cut the rates on the bigger planes about in half.

"Boxcars" Seen Solution

The West German government, footing the bill for the airlift, contends it cannot pay the equivalent of $15.47 the airlines ask for each seat on the four - engined planes. The fare per refugee in a two-engine plane is $8.33.

Berlin officials said the ideal solution would be to obtain sufficient "Flying Boxcars" from the U. S. Air Force to take out 4,000 refugees a day until the crisis eased.

Eighty-five West Berlin refugee camps are so full that City Sen. Otto Bach, who handles social problems, disclosed today a new plan to convert bomb ruins into some kind of shelter.

U.S. 8th Army Is Invincible, Ex-Boss Says

Congressmen Will Quiz General Today

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet returned to a hero's welcome at the White House today and held to his belief that the U. S. Eighth Army in Korea is invincible.

The strapping 60-year-old general was closeted alone with President Eisenhower for five minutes, which presumably gave the chief executive little opportunity to sound out Van Fleet at that time on his ideas for ending the long stalemated Korean War.

Then a parade of the nation's top military chieftains, including the veteran Gen. George C. Marshall, filed in and joined the discussion for another 20 minutes before the group went to lunch.

Later, Van Fleet told newsmen the things he talked about with Eisenhower and the military high command were strictly "confidential."

He is scheduled to begin a round of congressional quiz sessions at an open hearing before the House Armed Services Committee tomorrow. Chairman Short (R-Mo) said Van Fleet had agreed to testify publicly with as full information as possible without violating security.

Bombarded with newsmen's questions, Van Fleet ducked a direct reply when asked whether it would require heavy reinforcements for the United Nations to lash out on the offensive in Korea.

The general, who pricked congressional ears several weeks ago by saying the Eighth Army "certainly" could undertake a successful offensive now, answered the questions in these words:

"I'm certainly never going to admit that the Eighth Army could be defeated. The American Army has never been defeated and it never will be defeated. Those are my sentiments."

Some members of Congress have contended that without strong reinforcements the Eighth Army would suffer hazardous losses in attempting to break the military stalemate and drive the Communists out of their deep - dug entrenchments.

The four-star general is known to be deeply disappointed that the Korean truce talks put the wraps on the Eighth Army at a time when he felt he had the Communists on the run and permitted the enemy to build up their badly mauled forces.

Loyalty Probers Subpoena Files

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—The Senate Investigations Subcommittee went after the loyalty files of two State Department employes today, contending that White House orders making them secret already have been violated.

Chairman McCarthy (R-Wis) issued subpoenas for the files of Theodore Kaghan and Edmund Schechter, both of whom hold senior positions under the U. S. high commissioner in Germany.

Whether the State Department will relinquish them remained to be seen. The executive order forbidding congressional access to security files was issued by former President Truman, and the Eisenhower Administration has let it stand.

McCarthy moved to obtain the files after two State Department officers gave conflicting testimony about whether Kaghan and Schechter had been cleared for loyalty to the United States.

Tydings Admits Gifting Woman

WASHINGTON, March 3 (AP)—Donald S. Tydings, a balding tax official, acknowledged painfully today that he was buying diamond-studded jewelry for a woman friend at a time when he was in trouble over a $3,000 bank loan guaranteed by a man described as a notorious law violator.

He also admitted that an explanation he gave federal agents concerning use of the loan money was a "figment of imagination."

Tydings, 56, a cousin of former Sen. Millard E. Tydings of Maryland, frequently sat silent or simply muttered, "I don't know," when a House ways and means subcommittee confronted him with repeated inconsistencies in his statements.

Tydings, an $8,700-a-year revenue official, is under investigation by the subcommittee for his activities between 1944 and last December when he was enforcement chief of the alcohol tax division district office in Atlanta, Ga.

The subcommittee is investigating political influence on the internal revenue service. Federal agents have termed Tydings untouchable by his superior because he had "the right connections."

Kimble's Delay Moves Fail

State Senate Demos Smother Republican Opposition To Finance, Tax Legislation

ANNAPOLIS, March 3 (AP)—Senate Democrats ran roughshod over Republican objections today and advanced a bill preventing the state from paying off future debts with real estate taxes.

Democrats also smothered Republican opposition in the Senate Finance Committee to boost along an automatic tax reduction plan.

Over violent objections of Minority Leader Kimble (R-Allegany), the committee decided to send to the floor a bill adapting Virginia's system to Maryland and starting out right away in hopes of easing property and income taxes payable in 1954.

There was enough of a vote in the committee to insure passage of the measure when it reaches the Senate floor.

Kimble had tried to delay action on the proposal to abolish eventually the real estate levy as a bank account for payment of state loans. He brought on an impromptu blast from Majority Leader Goldstein (D-Calvert) at "wasteful spending."

"In another few months," Goldstein said, "Maryland will have 159 million dollars in bonds sold or authorized. Think of it.

"How much longer can the state go on issuing bonds on the faith of real estate taxes? The time has come to call a halt to this wasteful spending."

The floor leader said some of the reasons state departments gave for wanting capital improvement funds were "utterly ridiculous."

"You should listen to them, Mr. President," he declared. "it would honestly make you laugh."

Goldstein said he objected particularly to Kimble's request for another day to bring in an amendment to the bill because "they're trying to kill this bill by delaying tactics."

The Governor's proposed budget calls for increasing the state property tax from 6.04 to 11.29 cents on every $100 valuation to help pay off the state's increased debt. Enough of an anticipated surplus has been set aside, however, to reduce the increase by 2 cents.

Goldstein's bill would prevent the state from using real estate taxes as a guarantee for floating any bonds authorized after June 30.

Kimble said he feared taking real estate from the guarantee field might triple or quadruple the rate of interest on future bonds. He said bonding companies would not be as willing to risk their money on items less tangible.

After the outburst, the Senate approved the Finance Committee's favorable report and set up the bill for final passage later this week.

Cooperative Russians Rush Work On New U.S. Embassy

MOSCOW, March 3 (AP) — Soviet officials have proved friendly and co-operative in rushing work on the new 10-story U. S. Embassy building. It will be ready for use this month.

The Russians have given top priority to the job and have even assigned engineers to speed up the work, embassy officials said today.

The building on Tchaikowsky Street will have offices and 44 apartments for the embassy staff constructed according to American specifications. It will be the most modern and probably the best appointed in Moscow.

The rent will be $102,500 a year.

The building was ordered after the Russians canceled the lease on the embassy's present building, on Mokhovaya Street across from the Kremlin. The Russians wanted the old, centrally located building for their own use.

Embassy officials said Soviet government and construction men have co-operated to a pleasing degree in meeting all American requirements.

More than a thousand Soviet workers are toiling day and night to complete the plumbing, electrical installations and the interior decoration. One seven-story wing containing 21 apartments is about ready for occupancy. The main building has been promised for March 22.

The apartments—the most spacious available to diplomats in Moscow—have up-to-date American type kitchens and bathrooms. The equipment was purchased in the United States and Germany.

Army Rejects Cheap, Superior Sub-Machinegun

HEIDELBERG, Germany, March 3 (AP)—The U. S. Army has turned down a $10 light sub-machinegun submitted with field test records indicating it will shoot faster, farther and straighter than the present $45 weapon.

Warrant Officer Loren C. Cook, a machine tool specialist with the 7849th Ordnance Stock Control Center at Coleman Barracks near here, developed the weapon. His home is in Rodeo, Calif.

After field trials in Europe, a description of the gun was forwarded to Washington with a recommendation that it is "of extremely simple and rugged construction, easily adaptable to inexpensive mass production and fabrication."

The response was a letter from the office of the chief of ordnance: "There is at the present time no U. S. user requirement for a new weapon of the machine pistol, submachinegun or carbine class.

"This situation has existed over a period of some years, and it is believed unlikely that the using arms will give serious consideration to the adoption of the type proposed by Warrant officer Cook."

By "U. S. user" and "using arms" the ordnance office meant the American military forces which might employ such a weapon.

Emergency Razor Blade Operation Fails As Baby Dies

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 3 (AP) — Emergency razor blade surgery by her physician mother failed to save the life of 7-month-old Jane Marie Strathman. An autopsy showed the child died last night of suffocation caused by an aspirin tablet lodged in her throat.

Deputy Dist. Atty. Robert W. Cole, who talked with Dr. Eleanor Strathman, 27, and her husband, Benjamin, said, "I've seen some heartbreaking ones but nothing like that one."

The little girl had a cold, and her mother gave her a small, orange - flavored aspirin. It got stuck in her windpipe, and Jane Marie's face began turning blue.

The doctor tried to open her daughter's windpipe with a paring knife, but it was too dull. She slit the windpipe with a double edged razor blade.

Dr. A. G. Prisinzano, the autopsy surgeon, said the cut was made too late.

Grammer's Attorneys Train Fire On Judge

BALTIMORE, March 3 (AP)—Attorneys for George Edward Grammer, convicted of slaying his wife and trying to make it look like a traffic accident, today contended the judge who tried the case should have disqualified himself.

Judge Herman M. Moser, the defense complained, conspired with the prosecutor to keep secret the identity of Mathilde Mizibrocky, New York secretary and "the other woman" in the case.

The complaint was part of a motion for a new trial for Grammer, who now faces either hanging or life imprisonment. The motion will be argued before Baltimore's circuit judges Saturday.

U.S. Stops Move For New Appeal To China

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y., March 3 (INS)—The United States stopped cold tonight a Latin American drive in the U. N. for a new appeal to Red China to arrange a truce in Korea based on India's war prisoner repatriation plan.

U. S. pressure for ending the Korean debate in the Political Committee this week was prompted by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky's adament refusal yesterday to offer the slightest hope for any truce except on Communist terms.

Ecuador touched off the move at U. N. to give the Communists another opportunity to negotiate a truce in Korea on the basis of the Indian proposal.

Kindness Makes House Complete

CHICAGO, March 3 (AP)—Co-operation and kindness have completed the house George H. Kovasic never could find time to finish.

Construction men, builders, decorators and plumbers took up where Kovasic left off 18 months ago and finished the job in two weeks.

Kovasic, 37, his wife, Bernadine, 35, and their daughters, Diane, 6, and Denice, 3, moved into their unfinished home in suburban Morton Grove two years ago.

Kovasic, a foreman in a plastic brick manufacturing concern, worked on the home in his spare time and finished the downstairs rooms—kitchen, living room, utility room and bedroom. Two bedrooms upstairs were unfinished.

Then polio struck Mrs. Kovasic 18 months ago. She was taken to a hospital in Evanston in critical condition and placed in an iron lung.

That left Kovasic with two small daughters to care for and heavy medical expenses. He seized every chance to work overtime on his job and cut his sleeping schedule to a few hours a night.

Mrs. Kovasic came home from the hospital last September—still in the iron lung part time. A therapeutic tank containing water was placed in the utility room. Her iron lung was in the kitchen. She slept in the bedroom.

Her brother and his wife came to help with the work, moving into the crowded household.

The Morton Grove American Legion Post and the Lions Club heard of the family's plight last month. They arranged to hold a dance, using the admission receipts to finish the house.

But the plan never went through. Everyone they approached for labor or materials insisted on donating them. Mayor Max Finke, a plumber, was among those donating equipment and his services.

Peron Escapes Bomb Blast In Rail Station

BUENOS AIRES, March 3 (AP)—A bomb ripped a large hole in the wall of the Buenos Aires railway station last night a few minutes before President Juan D. Peron returned by special train from a state visit to Chile.

Peron's car was halted about 100 yards from the explosion in the station's luggage checkroom. If he knew about it, the president did not mention the incident later in a speech to thousands gathered outside the station to welcome him home.

The only casualty reported was a boy who was cut on the face. A few persons nearby fainted and received first aid treatment.

"If the agreements are not valid, what have we got to complain to the Russians about?" asked Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn).

A few hours after the Foreign Relations Committee acted, however, the Senae Republican Policy Committee unanimously backed its action and decided to push the revised resolution before the Senate itself.

Peron Escapes Bomb Blast In Rail Station

BUENOS AIRES, March 3 (AP)—A bomb ripped a large hole in the wall of the Buenos Aires railway station last night a few minutes before President Juan D. Peron returned by special train from a state visit to Chile.

Peron's car was halted about 100 yards from the explosion in the station's luggage checkroom. If he knew about it, the president did not mention the incident later in a speech to thousands gathered outside the station to welcome him home.

The only casualty reported was a boy who was cut on the face. A few persons nearby fainted and received first aid treatment.

Home Of British War Minister Ransacked

LONDON, March 3 (AP)—Scotland Yard was called in today to investigate the ransacking of War Minister Antony Head's home by a man posing as an electrician.

An aide said the war minister does not keep any secret documents in the house. A survey is being made to determine whether anything else is missing.

the Russians for violating them," said Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala).

"If the agreements are not valid, what have we got to complain to the Russians about?" asked Sen. Humphrey (D-Minn).

A few hours after the Foreign Relations Committee acted, however, the Senae Republican Policy Committee unanimously backed its action and decided to push the revised resolution before the Senate itself.

Old Discovery

A Blend of the Choicest Straight Whiskies from the Three World-Famous Whiskey States

A Story of the Old South... and Old Discovery

And it came to pass that two distillers, a Marylander and a Kentucky Colonel, fell out over the merits of their whiskies. A duel was averted only when a mutual friend from Pennsylvania appeared with a blend of the two whiskies, plus some from his own stock. Today, this blending of the finest whiskies from these 3 states achieves a smoother, more delightful drink. For the complete story of this interesting legend, read the back label on the bottle of Old Discovery.

Target: Chaos

Shadow Of Hammer, Sickle Cast Across Heart Of Africa

(Editor's note: East Africa is a fertile field for those who support Stalin's revolution. The target is chaos, in an area that can be important either as an asset or a handicap in the cold war and any hot wars that may follow. There, for the last month, William L. Ryan has been surveying the Communist line. Today the AP's specialist on Communist affairs presents the first of three important series depicting the situation from Kenya to Cairo.

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Foreign News Analyst

NAIROBI, Kenya, March 3 (AP)—The lengthening shadow of the hammer and sickle of world communism is creeping across the heart of Africa.

Here in the spectacularly beautiful hills of Britain's Kenya colony, the shadow is still fairly faint, but it is growing.

In the magnificent white highlands, white men with guns hunt down a murderous gang of black men called Mau Mau, and build themselves a formidable legacy of hate in the process. A situation is being created which may be exploited by the Communists.

As far as can be made out, the secret, ritualistic Mau Mau is not the direct result of Communist activity, though there may be some secret agitation behind it. It is a native rising, dedicated from frustration to expelling the white man by terroristic butchering of whole families, by arson and mutilation.

The biggest and practically the only organized native political force is the Kenya African Union (KAU). It is not Communist-controlled as yet, but there is grave danger it will be taken over for Communist purposes—unless there is intelligent action by the white settlers and British authority.

KAU has 100,000 members—perhaps as many as 150,000. Its president is Jomo Kenyatta, mystery man of the Kenya problem. He apparently received useful instruction in Moscow during a sojourn there of more than two years. He does not admit to being Communist inspired; in fact, ask his philosophy and he says: "True Christian."

Last October Kenyatta was arrested on charges of managing and assisting the Mau Mau terror. His captivity has the British in a dilemma. The trial of Kenyatta and five other natives has been going on for a month in a little schoolhouse at Kapenguria, 75 miles north of the equator, and may go on for another week or so.

If the magistrate acquits him that will rank in the African mind as a defeat of white authority, and Kenyatta will be a hero. If the magistrate convicts him it will make Kenyatta a martyr. At the most he can get a seven-year sentence.

A consummate actor, Kenyatta conducts himself at the trial as if he enjoyed it. He is cocky, sidesteps glibly, plays with Swahili and English words, even bullies the prosecutor and tells him how he should go about getting a conviction. He sets the grim, armed settlers to laughing in spite of themselves.

Is Jomo Kenyatta a man with a mission from the Kremlin, or a true native leader?

Some of his background arouses suspicion among anti-Communists. Kenyatta was not back six months from his 15 years in Europe before he took over the presidency of KAU, reorganized it with a "central committee" and introduced discipline. He has an organization called Kenya Teachers College, a big cluster of mud huts near his Kiambu home. The African teachers, most of them totally unqualified to teach, spread whatever doctrine he wants.

The timing of the Mau Mau rising coincided neatly with Moscow's turning major attention to "colonial and dependent peoples."

Defending him in the trial is D. N. Pritt, the London lawyer who defended Communist Gerhart Eisler against extradition proceedings when the German Red jumped bail in the United States and fled on the Polish liner Batory to England and eventually to East Berlin.

Kenyatta exudes confidence, insisting he is actually an enemy of Mau Mau. He insists that he led 30,000 Kikuyus in pronouncing a curse upon it. The prosecution says it was no curse at all, but simply instructions for it to go underground.

After the arrest of Kenyatta a mysterious traveler had a long talk with Joseph Marumbi, general secretary of KAU. He told Marumbi to get in touch with a Negro organization in the U. S. if he wanted help. The organization quickly sent financial help and promised more.

Marumbi, a highly educated native leader, seemed genuinely surprised when he learned the organization is operated by the Communists.

What KAU stands for, Marumbi said, is more equitable treatment of the black man. There are 5½ million of them, as against 120,000 Indians and 35,000 Whites. The Whites run the government and have taken all the fertile highlands. The Indians have taken over all mercantile establishments. There are relatively few educated Africans and even they have a scant chance, economically.

The Kikuyu reserve, once fertile, is now much wasted by erosion. The tribesmen have resisted introduction of scientific farming methods. Whole families barely eke out a living from small plots. The problem is becoming more acute because of a growing population resulting from the British introduction of medicine.

The legal minimum wage in Nairobi is about $7 a month, plus a housing allowance of just under $1.

British colonial authorities, when they give any indication of giving in to native demands, are up against a tough situation. The settlers at such times are hardly less emphatic in their denunciation of the colonial office than of the natives. They talk of breaking away from the crown or of appealing to South Africa's Nationalists for support.

Man Hires Trio To Strangle Wife

BUTLER, Pa., March 2 (AP)—Dist. Atty. Clark H. Painter said today a truck mechanic admitted hiring three Pittsburgh Negroes to strangle his wife because she constantly nagged him.

Painter said Ernest E. Storch, 50, signed a statement saying he agreed to pay $10,000 to the men for killing his 49-year-old wife, Alice.

The district attorney identified the Negroes as Richard Haines, 28; Walter Henderson, 26; and Russell Budd, 29. He did not reveal which of the trio actually did the killing.

Painter said first-degree murder charges will be filed against all four men.

Mrs. Storch was strangled and stabbed last Tuesday night in her attractive new home about 20 miles west of this Western Pennsylvania city.

More For Parcel Post

A current deficit in parcel post operations is cited by the Postoffice Department in petitioning the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize a raise in parcel post rates by an average of 35 per cent. The postal laws direct the postmaster general to adjust rates on parcel post to make that part of the postal service self-supporting. Any changes must first be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The current proposal would raise parcel post revenues by an estimated $130 million a year.

Meantime, Senators Carlson (R., Kan.) and Johnston (D., S.C.) have introduced a bill returning to Congress the responsibility for fixing parcel post rates, a responsibility borne by Congress at present for all other postal rates. "The cost ascertainment system of the Postoffice Department," according to Carlson, "does not reflect the proper apportionment of expenditures and revenues against the several classes of mail."

The most recent annual report of the postmaster general put the total postal deficit for the fiscal year 1952 at $727,050,218. The same report carried a preliminary estimate—subject to considerable change—of $150,719,000 for the portion of the deficit attributable to fourth class mail, or parcel post.

These figures give a somewhat inaccurate picture of the portion of the current deficit attributable to parcel post. Parcel post rates were raised an average of 25 per cent on October 1, 1951. Thus parcels were carried for the first three months of fiscal 1952 at the old rates.

New size and weight limitations imposed by Congress went into effect on January 1, 1952. The intent was to "take the postoffice out of the freight business." The present maximum weight for parcel post packages going more than 150 miles between first-class post offices is 20 pounds.

The new size limitations did not materially reduce the number of packages handled. The result was that parcel post revenues were proportionately lowered. Subsequent wage increases in the postal service and higher railway mail pay have additionally contributed to the greater proportion of the current postal deficit due to parcel post.

The parcel post service was created by Congress effective January 1, 1913. The aim was to provide United States firms and citizens the same accommodations for mailing packages to one another as they enjoyed in mailing packages abroad.

In most foreign countries the government maintains a monopoly on transportation of all packages as well as of mail. In the United States, however, private companies operate in the same field; in recent years they have complained of unfair government competition.

At Yalta And Potsdam

A resolution sponsored by the administration would have Congress join with the President in repudiating any perversion of World War II agreements that is being used to enslave free peoples. Some Republicans, but not the Democrats, would go further and repudiate certain of the territorial settlements made at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences.

The published agreements on Germany at Yalta in February 1945 concerned reparations, denazification and demilitarization, trials of war criminals, destruction or control of war industries, zonal occupation. Those agreements were renewed and expanded at Potsdam in the following August.

A secret understanding at Yalta, not published until March 1947, also was accepted at Potsdam. By this, Russia was to get the Kurile Islands, the southern part of Sakhalin Island, and certain port and railroad rights in Manchuria in return for entering the war against Japan.

The published agreements at Potsdam divided East Prussia between Poland and Russia, drew up the zones of occupation in Germany and Austria, provided that Germany was to be treated as a single economic unit while under occupation. Freedom had been pledged Korea at the Cairo conference in December 1943, and this pledge was reiterated at Potsdam. The 38th Parallel as the dividing line between the American and the Russian occupying forces in Korea was an American-Russian arrangement after the defeat of Japan.

At the Cairo conference it was agreed that Japan was to lose all territory except its four main islands and certain minor adjacent ones. This agreement covered Korea, Manchuria and Formosa, in addition to some islands not awarded to Russia by the secret Yalta understanding.

Nostradamus In A-Age

Not much has been heard about Nostradamus since the war ended, if it did. So many of his alleged prophecies failed to come true during World War II—because they had been misinterpreted, his followers said—that the cult apparently went into eclipse. But now a group calling itself the Brotherhood of the White Temple is mixing Nostradamus with pyramidology in Colorado.

This is an underground movement, in a way. In the foothills west of Denver its followers have built a retreat, which they say is atom-proof. Back in the 16th Century, they say, Nostradamus predicted a Russian atom-bomb attack on the United States sometime in 1953.

The exact date is somewhat uncertain. It may be May 10, or perhaps August 10, or maybe September. And it is a safe bet that if September passes without an attack, the cultists will announce that they misinterpreted the oracle and will then set a later date.

Michel de Notredame, whose name rendered in Latin is Nostradamus, was a French astrologer of note. He wrote verses intended as prophecies, predicting all sorts of wonders in language so vague and apocalyptic that a great deal of it may fit some of the wonders of the last four centuries. Until the science fiction writers came along, his feats of prediction looked pretty good.

The trouble with Nostradamus, as with most oracles, is that his prophecies are never understood until after the events they predict. His followers can point to passages which they say predicted this or that event which has already happened, and who can say them nay? But when they try to predict, by consulting his writings, what is going to happen they don't have any luck.

The bomb shelter in the Colorado foothills, according to news accounts, its quite a swanky affair. It will have its uses, no doubt, no matter how Nostradamus stands among the prophets.

If, as predicted, man will soon be able to fly 3,000 miles an hour, more characters than ever can be expected to overshoot the mark.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Origins Of Gall Bladder Attacks

Many individuals with gall bladder disease have the impression they never will encounter distress so long as they remain on a diet. This is true in some instances, and there is no doubt that discomfort is minimized by restrictions along this line. But eating the wrong food is not the only cause of attacks of gall bladder colic and inflammation and therein lies the limitations of this method of treatment.

The gall bladder will rebel when the individual is emotionally upset. This explains why the physician often is called in the middle of the night to relieve a bout that had its origin in some domestic or financial difficulty. The victim will explain that he had not overindulged in food or drink and he does not understand why the organ has gone on a rampage. Further questioning usually reveals a recent family quarrel, a spat with one of the domestics, tension at the office, or the loss of a large account. In this respect excitement, anxiety, or fear is implicated.

Others develop an attack early in the morning, suggesting that posture may play a role. This is a reasonable assumption because a gall bladder full of stones is like a sack of marbles; in a certain position it is easier for these rocks to slip out into the passageway leading to the intestine. These unscheduled journeys often end in gall bladder colic and those who undergone the experience will attest to its painful nature. Occasionally the siege follows another illness or operation for appnedicitis. Some women have developed colic after confinement and a few have gone so far as to blame this state for their gall bladder troubles, but undoubtedly gallstones were present long before pregnancy occurred.

Dietary treatment need not be discarded entirely, however, even though it may not provide complete protection. The main bugaboo is fat, especially that of pork, veal, salmon, mutton, and sardines. The chief duty of the gall sac is to store the bile that digests fat and whenever fatty substances reach the stomach, the gall bladder is given the high sign so that it can send a supply of bile into the intestine. Most of us never are aware of this process but a diseased organ will act up when forced to contract and as a result, fats are not handled properly and indigestion is the outcome.

Most physicians asked their patients to take some uncooked fat because bile is needed in the digestive tract and the gall bladder remains in better health when it is emptied periodically. Through a process of trial and error, more and more fat is consumed until the sufferer learns how much can be eaten before symptoms occur. Fried, greasy, and highly seasoned foods are to be avoided and the same applies to condiments other than salt, pastry, pie, and rich cake. Foods that are bland and non-irritating are well tolerated. This eliminates most tough and fibrous items, as well as gas forming vegetables such as cabbage, turnips, rutabagas, broccoli, onions, peppers, and corn. The exceptions are small amounts of crisp lettuce, ripe tomatoes without skin or seeds, and celery hearts.

TOMORROW: Aspects of coronary attacks.

CAFFEINE AND SLEEP

G. S. writes: Wny is it that if I have coffee or tea for breakfast and lunch I have trouble getting to sleep at night?

REPLY

I doubt if a moderate amount of coffee and tea at breakfast and lunch would produce insomnia. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, however. Try cutting down or abstaining and see what happens.

A HANGOVER

Mrs. J. writes: Is there any help for a boy who still runs a low grade temperature since an attack of acute mononucleosis 18 months ago?

REPLY

There is no need to worry because infectious mononucleosis rarely proves fatal. How does this boy feel? Have other causes of fever such as focal infection been taken into consideration?

BRONCHITIS IN CHILD

Mrs. L. G. writes: My three-year- comes down with bronchitis and fever every spring and fall. How did he ever develop this condition?

REPLY

Most youngsters have two or more colds a year, hence there is no need for alarm over this situation.

ROUND GARTERS

G. Q. writes: Do women develop varicose veins from wearing round garters?

REPLY

Tight round garters are not the primary cause of varicose veins but they will aggravate the condition when it exists.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

"Young Bob" La Follette Did Not Lack Courage; Wisconsin Battler Thought He Let His Father Down; Communists Defeated La Follette In '46

WASHINGTON — For 46 years there was a member of the LaFollett family in the United States Senate. And for even longer there has been a LaFollette in Washington.

In a way there still is. Up in the Capitol, where every state is permitted to place two of its most cherished heroes, stands the statue of the elder Bob LaFollett. Actually the elder Bob sits, sits and muses, and looks out on the stream of tourists which flock by him in such numbers that the tip of his bronze shoes is worn shiny where thousands of admirers touch his feet.

If that statue were able to think, or if the elder Bob is able to look down and know that his eldest son, named for him, took his own life the other day, he should not be too harsh on him.

In a way, it was through thinking of his father that young Bob took his own life. He felt he had let old Bob down.

Actually he hadn't. Following in the footsteps of a man as brilliant and meteoric as the elder Bob, a man who had run for President, had come so close to building up a third party, had held the state of Wisconsin and much of the Northwest in the hollow of his hand, was a difficult thing to do.

But in the opinion of his fellow senators, young Bob had all the courage of the old man, with more stability.

Communists Voted For McCarthy

He put across the LaFollette-Monroney Bill for the reorganization of Congress. He bucked the National Association of Manufacturers in a long expose of civil liberties infractions, showed how they covertly spent money to influence the press, how they even secretly subsidized commentator-columnist George Sokolsky. He exposed the murders of coal operators in Harlan County, Ky., he was the top presiding officer of the Senate, and he dared buck FDR on lifting the arms embargo when he, like his father, feared we would drift into war.

But having fought big business just as vigorously as his father, and sometimes more effectively, young Bob accumulated enemies—powerful enemies.

And they concentrated everything they had to defeat him in 1946. The NAM poured in money, and left-wing labor poured in votes. It's an ironic twist of fate that the 5,396-vote margin by which Bob LaFollette was defeated came from the Communist party, which went all-out against him.

And the man they voted for and who defeated Bob welcomed their support. "They have a right to vote, haven't they?" Joseph R. McCarthy told newsmen.

Humdrum Law Practice

After young Bob's defeat, he was considered for various federal jobs, such at TVA administrator, but finally ended up practicing law. He was on the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck, and he represented the United Fruit Company. But it was pretty humdrum stuff compared with the days when he was battling things out in the Senate.

Young Bob used to get a little depressed about it. He used to come and lunch in the Mayflower Hotel, all by himself, just sitting and thinking—thinking how he'd let his father down.

Especially he used to think of the days when his father had helped make Wisconsin one of the great forward-looking, progressive states of the Union, and how today the man who represented it in the Senate had started a reign of terror and witch-hunting that might lead to fascism.

Attending the 25th wedding anniversary of his old friend, Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama, young Bob spoke sadly of this, told how he never should have let McCarthy beat him, how he had let his father down.

And, troubled with a severe heart condition, he went up to the Capitol building where his father once made the longest speech in history, where he himself had served as a page boy, where he had presided over many a session of the august, sometimes unruly Senate. And taking one last look at the statue of his father, the image which so many visitors had reverently touched, young Bob went home, phoned his wife, and joined his father.

What Washington Is Buzzing About

Secretary of Defense Wilson's lavish layout — 10 bedrooms and 10 baths — at the Wardman Park Hotel.

"Bugeye" Baker, the Un-American Activities investigator who took the rap for Congressman Velde's mistake about Mrs. Agnes Meyer.

Budget Director Joe Dodge, who is so suspicious of secretaries that he opens all his own mail.

The suggestion that Pentagon menus should list the calories as well as the price of each dish — to help overweight officers reduce.

Senator McCarthy's secret investigation of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark.

Merry-Go-Round

Congressman Pat Sutton has been whispering around Tennessee that he will try to unseat Senator Kefauver next year. Sutton seems to think the voters have forgotten how he pulled wires to fix a famous tax fraud involving his father-in-law. . . . The Communist Daily Worker has quietly purged its veteran Washington correspondent, Rob Hall. He's been replaced by a new party-liner, named Harry Raymond . . . . The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is investigating the bad propaganda effect of certain Hollywood movies. Worst example is "The Desert Rat," which glorified Nazi Field Marshal Rommel. However, the State Department has surveyed all its embassies and reports to the senators that American movies have done far more good than harm in winning friends for us abroad . . . . Congressman Velde will start hearings on Communists in Hollywood the end of March. Velde's committee has already slapped subpoenas on 62 witnesses . . . . Velde is so jittery over the criticism he's been getting from the clergy that he's even dodging the press corps in the hope people will forget his blunders . . . . Frederick Billings Lee of Woodstock, Vt., now deputy administrator of CAA, is slated to be new CA Administrator . . . . New Jersey's ex-Sen. Albert Hawkes is working backstage to defeat Congressman Cliff Case's bid to be Republican governor of New Jersey. Case is a good man.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The committee sessions of the General Assembly of the so-called United Nations have seen many strange things, but none stranger than the scene presented by Andrei Vishinsky, representative of the Communist government of Russia, in accusing the United States of wanting to pursue a policy of war and then admitting brazenly that his government is selling arms to Communist China.

Here is a man whose government has instigated the war in the Far East, whose government has been and still is sending planes and war suplies to kill and maim the troops of the United Nations—yet he is given the opportunity to utter his own accusations on a level of equality with the envoys of other nations, all of this in the face of a UN resolution of 1950 calling on all member nations to refrain from assisting the aggressors in Korea.

Just a few days ago former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, now the American ambassador to the UN, told photographers he did not care to be photographed shaking hands with Vishinsky.

Winning By Infiltration

Mr. Lodge was right. No American representative ought to be caught shaking the hands of representatives of a government dripping with the blood of American boys in Korea. What is more, it appears incomprehensible that, since Ambassador Lodge frankly told the world how Russia had instigated the Far Eastern war, there should be any official relations with the Moscow government at all. Certainly during the last war nobody in his right mind in America would have advocated shaking the hands of Hitler's personal representatives or conducting official relations with the Nazi government.

The argument offered now in rebuttal is that technically there is no war going on between Soviet Russia and the United States. What this means really is that, although 130,000 Amreican casualties have been incurred in Korea, the aggressor's action is nevertheless sugar-coated as something else besides "war." The word "war" is avoided on the theory that it means only large-scale military operations. Soviet Russia has relatively little capacity to make large-scale war at this time. She has no need to use her own military forces because she is winning by infiltration into large areas of the earth's surface while the so-called free nations sit by with a peace-at-any-price philosophy and let the Communists gain victory after victory.

The United Nations was set up as an organ to promote world peace, but it has failed to live up to its own moral code, which was to punish aggression. The representatives of the Soviet government—an aggressor—are allowed the freedom of action throughout the world that they desire. They can send funds and agents anywhere to stir up revolution. They can infiltrate in various countries, including the United States. A considerable number of misguided Americans are even arguing that the Communist conspirators are merely a political party entitled to freedom of speech. These Americans should visit a few Army hospitals and tell that to some of the paralyzed veterans there.

It was Judge Learned Hand, of the U. S. Court of Appeals, who said in his famous decision on the "clear and present danger" doctrine that it isn't necessary to wait for a conspiracy to be consummated before taking protective measures against enemies of the state.

Reds Financing Revolutions

The Communist diplomats are financing from this country revolutions and disturbances in Central and South America. The Communist government in Moscow is spending its funds to make ammunition and weapons for Chinese Communist armies to kill and wound American and UN soldiers, sailors, and airmen. How long will the UN allow in its sessions the representatives of an aggressor nation? The submissiveness at the UN toward Vishinsky and his ilk can only be interpreted by Moscow as meaning that the allied democracies are weak-kneed and afraid—even to do what the League of Nations did, which was to expel the Russian government from membership as not fit to associate any longer with decent, civilized governments.

Peace-at-any-price policies have always led the aggressor to misconstrue pacifism for cowardice—and the biggest danger of a third world war today arises out of the lack of firmness among the Allies toward a known aggressor.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The PMA

The Production and Marketing Administration (PMA) of the Department of Agriculture has 106,000 employes (including per diem committeemen), who are in every state and every county and form a grid of political power which seeks to dwarf a secretary of Agriculture to its will. Many members of Congress find that these government employes constitute a pressure group whose policies may be and often are different from those of the department which pays them either a salary or a per diem fee.

The PMA is a child of the AAA and while there may be some slight difference of complexion, the philosophic background is the same, namely, a socialization of agriculture by the process of dependence upon government aids and subsidies. While the AAA set up controls over the agricultural process, its object was to make the farmer a controlled citizen. To understand something of this institution, it is necessary to go back into its genealogy.

The AAA was the agency of government which Harold Ware, in 1934, hit upon as the best unit to use as a training base for infiltration into government. Harold Ware was the son of Mother Bloor, a leader of the American Communist party. Of colonial stock, he had early become interested in the Russian Revolution and was recruited by Lenin to teach the Russians all about mechanized agriculture. He devoted about 10 years to this Russian activity, setting up the large, communal farms all owned by the Russian government, and using tractors and other agricultural machinery to which the Russians were not accustomed.

About $75,000 was raised by the American Friends of Soviet Russia and the newly formed American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee for this purpose.

In 1934, shortly after the United States had recognized Soviet Russia, which had agreed not to interfere in our lives, Harold Ware, in the United States, organized his cell consisting mostly of Harvard Law School graduates, including Alger Hiss, to infiltrate high positions of government. To train them in methods and techniques, he used the AAA.

(King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Such persons as Alger Hiss, Lee Pressman, Nathan Witt, Henry H. Collins Jr., John Abt were in this group. Whittaker Chambers says, in "Witness," that there must have been 60 or 70 persons in this cell, as it developed, and that they were all dues-paying members of the Communist party. He says that Henry H. Collins Jr., of a distinguished Philadelphia manufacturing family, was treasurer of the Harold Ware cell and was actually a recruiting agent for the Soviet apparatus.

After being trained in the AAA, many of the abler ones moved into other departments of government where they made notable public careers and served their master, Stalin, ably and adequately. However, they left behind enough of their own people who adhered to their Socialistic philosophy in AAA to have given that agency a purpose and a bad name. Eventually, the AAA became the PMA, which is not only an agency of government but a political machine. The size of PMA is to be gauged by the fact that the usual employes of the Department of Agriculture amount to only 70,000.

These PMA employes mostly work at the grass roots level, where they can affect the careers of members of Congress. It is therefore possible for them, if they are so minded, to bring influences to bear which may strengthen or harm a secretary of Agriculture who has little control over them. The PMA is a department within a department, an empire of officeholders built up into an enormity for political advantage.

The PMA ought to be abolished. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will find that mere reorganization or pruning for economy reasons will not serve. It would be possible for the FBI to check the names for loyalty, but such a task, involving 106,000 individuals, would consume the full manpower of that agency for a year or more, considering what else they have to do. The cost would be enoromus. It seems to me that it would cost less and be more effective to abolish the PMA, distributing its useful functions to other agencies in the Department of Agriculture.

At any rate, something needs to be done about this bureaucratic behemoth, and obviously unless it is done by the administration ,it will be accomplished by the investigative process of a congressional committee.

On The Line

by Bob Considine

NEW YORK (INS)—Any reporter who tries to cover one of those big testimonial dinners in New York, Chicago, Hollywood, or anywhere else is an irresponsible boob.

So here goes:

This one was for Bob Hope. At Mom Waldorf's boarding house. Blue plate special, $50. Paid by Toots Shor, boy sandhog in my case. It was given by the Friars Club, the rich little lambs who never lost a sheep. More famous people paid tribute to this illustrious import from England than to almost any Britisher since Tom Paine.

Bernard Baruch, for instance, and Gen. Emmett O'Donnell. And the mayors of this great city and of Cleveland. And former Vice President Barkley, George Jessel, Frank Folsom, Milton Berle, Fred Allen, Jesse Block, Eric Johnston, etc. etc. etc. All of them had something especial to say.

What they had to say ranged from the hilarious to the sad. Briefly to sample the latter, Symington, junior senator from Mississippi, told of a many-striped and very tough sergeant crying aloud at an Alaskan base as Hope and his dear wife, Dolores, sang Holy Night on an otherwise forlorn Christmas Eve a couple of years ago.

Later, Symington told the jammed ballroom, Hope and his wife and two of the four Hope children showed up in a mess hall in the frozen place, for Christmas dinner, and Bob asked about the boys who were on hand. Turned out that they were kids who had drawn lots and had lost the opportunity to see his show the night before. So he put it on again in the mess hall.

Laughs, too, at this dinner for Hope, and I'm happy to say that they weren't as strained as most of these things are, when pros meet pros.

George Jessel, telling of other dinners he had presided at in the main ballroom of the Waldorf, said, "if these walls could talk, they'd speak with an accent."

Fred Allen, adjusting his eye glasses and saying, "I'm wearing these because my speech is in third dimension," reviewed Hope's early poverty. Hope was so poor as a child in Cleveland, he said, that the only thing that could be seen through the windows of his house was an eclipse. Hope used a bicycle pump to blow up kippers into bloaters, Fred said, and, because he was English, his people baptized him in milk because they needed the water for their tea.

Allen took a dim view of Hollywood, to which Hope repaired. "Hollywood," he said, "is a place where somebody works all his life to be recognized and then wears dark glasses to be sure he isn't."

Eric Johnston told of a Red Pole who condemned Hope because he exemplified U. S. imperialism by appearing in "aggressive" pictures (with Bing Crosby) having to do with finding proper roads to such targets as Bali, Morocco, Zanzibar, etc. etc.

Milton Berle, who said that he and his principal TV rival, Bishop Fulton Sheen, have the same sponsor, "Skychief," praised Hope sincerely and faithfully promised to use all his jokes next Tuesday.

The Veep spoke of a trip he and the Hopes had made to Berlin and the mysterious "Irene" whose name had been mentioned in connection with Bob. Mrs. Hope asked Bob about "Irene" and Bob explained that it was one of Bing Crosby's horses. The next day, it seems, Bob returned to wherever they all were staying and asked if anything had happened, and Mrs. Hope said, "nothing, except that that horse called a couple of times."

Hope was in a tough spot, following those who preceded him. But, as usual, he came through fine. Speaking of Adolph Zukor, 80, he said he remembered him as a used buffalo dealer, and casting a fond look at Berle, and recalling Miltie's difficulties with Bishop Sheen, he said that Berle had just engaged four new writers—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

Been trying to discover if any treaties were actually autographed at Potsdam and Yalta.

Would be easier to find out if Button Gwinnett ever sent a postcard from Paris.

If they were signed they were a direct rupture of the Constitution. It says plain as gingham: No treaties without the consent of the Senate.

I'm a perfectionist on things like that. A perfectionist is a man who puts an ingrown hair up in curl papers.

So far as I can dig the Potsdam and Yalta gimmicks were agreements. Sort of a certified nod.

More For Parcel Post

A current deficit in parcel post operations is cited by the Postoffice Department in petitioning the Interstate Commerce Commission to authorize a raise in parcel post rates by an average of 35 per cent. The postal laws direct the postmaster general to adjust rates on parcel post to make that part of the postal service self-supporting. Any changes must first be approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The current proposal would raise parcel post revenues by an estimated $130 million a year.

Meantime, Senators Carlson (R., Kan.) and Johnston (D., S.C.) have introduced a bill returning to Congress the responsibility for fixing parcel post rates, a responsibility borne by Congress at present for all other postal rates. "The cost ascertainment system of the Postoffice Department," according to Carlson, "does not reflect the proper apportionment of expenditures and revenues against the several classes of mail."

The most recent annual report of the postmaster general put the total postal deficit for the fiscal year 1952 at $727,050,218. The same report carried a preliminary estimate—subject to considerable change—of $150,719,000 for the portion of the deficit attributable to fourth class mail, or parcel post.

These figures give a somewhat inaccurate picture of the portion of the current deficit attributable to parcel post. Parcel post rates were raised an average of 25 per cent on October 1, 1951. Thus parcels were carried for the first three months of fiscal 1952 at the old rates.

New size and weight limitations imposed by Congress went into effect on January 1, 1952. The intent was to "take the postoffice out of the freight business." The present maximum weight for parcel post packages going more than 150 miles between first-class post offices is 20 pounds.

The new size limitations did not materially reduce the number of packages handled. The result was that parcel post revenues were proportionately lowered. Subsequent wage increases in the postal service and higher railway mail pay have additionally contributed to the greater proportion of the current postal deficit due to parcel post.

The parcel post service was created by Congress effective January 1, 1913. The aim was to provide United States firms and citizens the same accommodations for mailing packages to one another as they enjoyed in mailing packages abroad.

In most foreign countries the government maintains a monopoly on transportation of all packages as well as of mail. In the United States, however, private companies operate in the same field; in recent years they have complained of unfair government competition.

At Yalta And Potsdam

A resolution sponsored by the administration would have Congress join with the President in repudiating any perversion of World War II agreements that is being used to enslave free peoples. Some Republicans, but not the Democrats, would go further and repudiate certain of the territorial settlements made at the Yalta and Potsdam conferences.

The published agreements on Germany at Yalta in February 1945 concerned reparations, denazification and demilitarization, trials of war criminals, destruction or control of war industries, zonal occupation. Those agreements were renewed and expanded at Potsdam in the following August.

A secret understanding at Yalta, not published until March 1947, also was accepted at Potsdam. By this, Russia was to get the Kurile Islands, the southern part of Sakhalin Island, and certain port and railroad rights in Manchuria in return for entering the war against Japan.

The published agreements at Potsdam divided East Prussia between Poland and Russia, drew up the zones of occupation in Germany and Austria, provided that Germany was to be treated as a single economic unit while under occupation. Freedom had been pledged Korea at the Cairo conference in December 1943, and this pledge was reiterated at Potsdam. The 38th Parallel as the dividing line between the American and the Russian occupying forces in Korea was an American-Russian arrangement after the defeat of Japan.

At the Cairo conference it was agreed that Japan was to lose all territory except its four main islands and certain minor adjacent ones. This agreement covered Korea, Manchuria and Formosa, in addition to some islands not awarded to Russia by the secret Yalta understanding.

Nostradamus In A-Age

Not much has been heard about Nostradamus since the war ended, if it did. So many of his alleged prophecies failed to come true during World War II—because they had been misinterpreted, his followers said—that the cult apparently went into eclipse. But now a group calling itself the Brotherhood of the White Temple is mixing Nostradamus with pyramidology in Colorado.

This is an underground movement, in a way. In the foothills west of Denver its followers have built a retreat, which they say is atom-proof. Back in the 16th Century, they say, Nostradamus predicted a Russian atom-bomb attack on the United States sometime in 1953.

The exact date is somewhat uncertain. It may be May 10, or perhaps August 10, or maybe September. And it is a safe bet that if September passes without an attack, the cultists will announce that they misinterpreted the oracle and will then set a later date.

Michel de Notredame, whose name rendered in Latin is Nostradamus, was a French astrologer of note. He wrote verses intended as prophecies, predicting all sorts of wonders in language so vague and apocalyptic that a great deal of it may fit some of the wonders of the last four centuries. Until the science fiction writers came along, his feats of prediction looked pretty good.

The trouble with Nostradamus, as with most oracles, is that his prophecies are never understood until after the events they predict. His followers can point to passages which they say predicted this or that event which has already happened, and who can say them nay? But when they try to predict, by consulting his writings, what is going to happen they don't have any luck.

The bomb shelter in the Colorado foothills, according to news accounts, its quite a swanky affair. It will have its uses, no doubt, no matter how Nostradamus stands among the prophets.

If, as predicted, man will soon be able to fly 3,000 miles an hour, more characters than ever can be expected to overshoot the mark.

How To Keep Well

By Dr. T. R. Van Dellen

To the limit of space, questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual diseases.

Origins Of Gall Bladder Attacks

Many individuals with gall bladder disease have the impression they never will encounter distress so long as they remain on a diet. This is true in some instances, and there is no doubt that discomfort is minimized by restrictions along this line. But eating the wrong food is not the only cause of attacks of gall bladder colic and inflammation and therein lies the limitations of this method of treatment.

The gall bladder will rebel when the individual is emotionally upset. This explains why the physician often is called in the middle of the night to relieve a bout that had its origin in some domestic or financial difficulty. The victim will explain that he had not overindulged in food or drink and he does not understand why the organ has gone on a rampage. Further questioning usually reveals a recent family quarrel, a spat with one of the domestics, tension at the office, or the loss of a large account. In this respect excitement, anxiety, or fear is implicated.

Others develop an attack early in the morning, suggesting that posture may play a role. This is a reasonable assumption because a gall bladder full of stones is like a sack of marbles; in a certain position it is easier for these rocks to slip out into the passageway leading to the intestine. These unscheduled journeys often end in gall bladder colic and those who undergone the experience will attest to its painful nature. Occasionally the siege follows another illness or operation for appnedicitis. Some women have developed colic after confinement and a few have gone so far as to blame this state for their gall bladder troubles, but undoubtedly gallstones were present long before pregnancy occurred.

Dietary treatment need not be discarded entirely, however, even though it may not provide complete protection. The main bugaboo is fat, especially that of pork, veal, salmon, mutton, and sardines. The chief duty of the gall sac is to store the bile that digests fat and whenever fatty substances reach the stomach, the gall bladder is given the high sign so that it can send a supply of bile into the intestine. Most of us never are aware of this process but a diseased organ will act up when forced to contract and as a result, fats are not handled properly and indigestion is the outcome.

Most physicians asked their patients to take some uncooked fat because bile is needed in the digestive tract and the gall bladder remains in better health when it is emptied periodically. Through a process of trial and error, more and more fat is consumed until the sufferer learns how much can be eaten before symptoms occur. Fried, greasy, and highly seasoned foods are to be avoided and the same applies to condiments other than salt, pastry, pie, and rich cake. Foods that are bland and non-irritating are well tolerated. This eliminates most tough and fibrous items, as well as gas forming vegetables such as cabbage, turnips, rutabagas, broccoli, onions, peppers, and corn. The exceptions are small amounts of crisp lettuce, ripe tomatoes without skin or seeds, and celery hearts.

TOMORROW: Aspects of coronary attacks.

CAFFEINE AND SLEEP

G. S. writes: Why is it that if I have coffee or tea for breakfast and lunch I have trouble getting to sleep at night?

REPLY

I doubt if a moderate amount of coffee and tea at breakfast and lunch would produce insomnia. The proof of the pudding is in the eating, however. Try cutting down or abstaining and see what happens.

A HANGOVER

Mrs. J. writes: Is there any help for a boy who still runs a low grade temperature since an attack of acute mononucleosis 18 months ago?

REPLY

There is no need to worry because infectious mononucleosis rarely proves fatal. How does this boy feel? Have other causes of fever such as focal infection been taken into consideration?

BRONCHITIS IN CHILD

Mrs. L. G. writes: My three-year- comes down with bronchitis and fever every spring and fall. How did he ever develop this condition?

REPLY

Most youngsters have two or more colds a year, hence there is no need for alarm over this situation.

ROUND GARTERS

G. Q. writes: Do women develop varicose veins from wearing round garters?

REPLY

Tight round garters are not the primary cause of varicose veins but they will aggravate the condition when it exists.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

"Young Bob" La Follette Did Not Lack Courage; Wisconsin Battler Thought He Let His Father Down; Communists Defeated La Follette In '46

WASHINGTON — For 46 years there was a member of the LaFollett family in the United States Senate. And for even longer there has been a LaFollette in Washington.

In a way there still is. Up in the Capitol, where every state is permitted to place two of its most cherished heroes, stands the statue of the elder Bob LaFollett. Actually the elder Bob sits, sits and muses, and looks out on the stream of tourists which flock by him in such numbers that the tip of his bronze shoes is worn shiny where thousands of admirers touch his feet.

If that statue were able to think, or if the elder Bob is able to look down and know that his eldest son, named for him, took his own life the other day, he should not be too harsh on him.

In a way, it was through thinking of his father that young Bob took his own life. He felt he had let old Bob down.

Actually he hadn't. Following in the footsteps of a man as brilliant and meteoric as the elder Bob, a man who had run for President, had come so close to building up a third party, had held the state of Wisconsin and much of the Northwest in the hollow of his hand, was a difficult thing to do.

But in the opinion of his fellow senators, young Bob had all the courage of the old man, with more stability.

Communists Voted For McCarthy

He put across the LaFollette-Monroney Bill for the reorganization of Congress. He bucked the National Association of Manufacturers in a long expose of civil liberties infractions, showed how they covertly spent money to influence the press, how they even secretly subsidized commentator-columnist George Sokolsky. He exposed the murders of coal operators in Harlan County, Ky., he was the top presiding officer of the Senate, and he dared buck FDR on lifting the arms embargo when he, like his father, feared we would drift into war.

But having fought big business just as vigorously as his father, and sometimes more effectively, young Bob accumulated enemies—powerful enemies.

And they concentrated everything they had to defeat him in 1946. The NAM poured in money, and left-wing labor poured in votes. It's an ironic twist of fate that the 5,396-vote margin by which Bob LaFollette was defeated came from the Communist party, which went all-out against him.

And the man they voted for and who defeated Bob welcomed their support. "They have a right to vote, haven't they?" Joseph R. McCarthy told newsmen.

Humdrum Law Practice

After young Bob's defeat, he was considered for various federal jobs, such at TVA administrator, but finally ended up practicing law. He was on the board of directors of Sears, Roebuck, and he represented the United Fruit Company. But it was pretty humdrum stuff compared with the days when he was battling things out in the Senate.

Young Bob used to get a little depressed about it. He used to come and lunch in the Mayflower Hotel, all by himself, just sitting and thinking—thinking how he'd let his father down.

Especially he used to think of the days when his father had helped make Wisconsin one of the great forward-looking, progressive states of the Union, and how today the man who represented it in the Senate had started a reign of terror and witch-hunting that might lead to fascism.

Attending the 25th wedding anniversary of his old friend, Sen. Lister Hill of Alabama, young Bob spoke sadly of this, told how he never should have let McCarthy beat him, how he had let his father down.

And, troubled with a severe heart condition, he went up to the Capitol building where his father once made the longest speech in history, where he himself had served as a page boy, where he had presided over many a session of the august, sometimes unruly Senate. And taking one last look at the statue of his father, the image which so many visitors had reverently touched, young Bob went home, phoned his wife, and joined his father.

What Washington Is Buzzing About

Secretary of Defense Wilson's lavish layout — 10 bedrooms and 10 baths — at the Wardman Park Hotel.

"Bugeye" Baker, the Un-American Activities investigator who took the rap for Congressman Velde's mistake about Mrs. Agnes Meyer.

Budget Director Joe Dodge, who is so suspicious of secretaries that he opens all his own mail.

The suggestion that Pentagon menus should list the calories as well as the price of each dish — to help overweight officers reduce.

Senator McCarthy's secret investigation of Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark.

Merry-Go-Round

Congressman Pat Sutton has been whispering around Tennessee that he will try to unseat Senator Kefauver next year. Sutton seems to think the voters have forgotten how he pulled wires to fix a famous tax fraud involving his father-in-law. . . . The Communist Daily Worker has quietly purged its veteran Washington correspondent, Rob Hall. He's been replaced by a new party-liner, named Harry Raymond . . . . The Senate Foreign Relations Committee is investigating the bad propaganda effect of certain Hollywood movies. Worst example is "The Desert Rat," which glorified Nazi Field Marshal Rommel. However, the State Department has surveyed all its embassies and reports to the senators that American movies have done far more good than harm in winning friends for us abroad . . . . Congressman Velde will start hearings on Communists in Hollywood the end of March. Velde's committee has already slapped subpoenas on 62 witnesses . . . . Velde is so jittery over the criticism he's been getting from the clergy that he's even dodging the press corps in the hope people will forget his blunders . . . . Frederick Billings Lee of Woodstock, Vt., now deputy administrator of CAA, is slated to be new CA Administrator . . . . New Jersey's ex-Sen. Albert Hawkes is working backstage to defeat Congressman Cliff Case's bid to be Republican governor of New Jersey. Case is a good man.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—The committee sessions of the General Assembly of the so-called United Nations have seen many strange things, but none stranger than the scene presented by Andrei Vishinsky, representative of the Communist government of Russia, in accusing the United States of wanting to pursue a policy of war and then admitting brazenly that his government is selling arms to Communist China.

Here is a man whose government has instigated the war in the Far East, whose government has been and still is sending planes and war suplies to kill and maim the troops of the United Nations—yet he is given the opportunity to utter his own accusations on a level of equality with the envoys of other nations, all of this in the face of a UN resolution of 1950 calling on all member nations to refrain from assisting the aggressors in Korea.

Just a few days ago former Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, now the American ambassador to the UN, told photographers he did not care to be photographed shaking hands with Vishinsky.

Winning By Infiltration

Mr. Lodge was right. No American representative ought to be caught shaking the hands of representatives of a government dripping with the blood of American boys in Korea. What is more, it appears incomprehensible that, since Ambassador Lodge frankly told the world how Russia had instigated the Far Eastern war, there should be any official relations with the Moscow government at all. Certainly during the last war nobody in his right mind in America would have advocated shaking the hands of Hitler's personal representatives or conducting official relations with the Nazi government.

The argument offered now in rebuttal is that technically there is no war going on between Soviet Russia and the United States. What this means really is that, although 130,000 Amreican casualties have been incurred in Korea, the aggressor's action is nevertheless sugar-coated as something else besides "war." The word "war" is avoided on the theory that it means only large-scale military operations. Soviet Russia has relatively little capacity to make large-scale war at this time. She has no need to use her own military forces because she is winning by infiltration into large areas of the earth's surface while the so-called free nations sit by with a peace-at-any-price philosophy and let the Communists gain victory after victory.

The United Nations was set up as an organ to promote world peace, but it has failed to live up to its own moral code, which was to punish aggression. The representatives of the Soviet government—an aggressor—are allowed the freedom of action throughout the world that they desire. They can send funds and agents anywhere to stir up revolution. They can infiltrate in various countries, including the United States. A considerable number of misguided Americans are even arguing that the Communist conspirators are merely a political party entitled to freedom of speech. These Americans should visit a few Army hospitals and tell that to some of the paralyzed veterans there.

It was Judge Learned Hand, of the U. S. Court of Appeals, who said in his famous decision on the "clear and present danger" doctrine that it isn't necessary to wait for a conspiracy to be consummated before taking protective measures against enemies of the state.

Reds Financing Revolutions

The Communist diplomats are financing from this country revolutions and disturbances in Central and South America. The Communist government in Moscow is spending its funds to make ammunition and weapons for Chinese Communist armies to kill and wound American and UN soldiers, sailors, and airmen. How long will the UN allow in its sessions the representatives of an aggressor nation? The submissiveness at the UN toward Vishinsky and his ilk can only be interpreted by Moscow as meaning that the allied democracies are weak-kneed and afraid—even to do what the League of Nations did, which was to expel the Russian government from membership as not fit to associate any longer with decent, civilized governments.

Peace-at-any-price policies have always led the aggressor to misconstrue pacifism for cowardice—and the biggest danger of a third world war today arises out of the lack of firmness among the Allies toward a known aggressor.

These Days

The PMA

The Production and Marketing Administration (PMA) of the Department of Agriculture has 106,000 employes (including per diem committeemen), who are in every state and every county and form a grid of political power which seeks to dwarf a secretary of Agriculture to its will. Many members of Congress find that these government employes constitute a pressure group whose policies may be and often are different from those of the department which pays them either a salary or a per diem fee.

The PMA is a child of the AAA and while there may be some slight difference of complexion, the philosophic background is the same, namely, a socialization of agriculture by the process of dependence upon government aids and subsidies. While the AAA set up controls over the agricultural process, its object was to make the farmer a controlled citizen. To understand something of this institution, it is necessary to go back into its genealogy.

The AAA was the agency of government which Harold Ware, in 1934, hit upon as the best unit to use as a training base for infiltration into government. Harold Ware was the son of Mother Bloor, a leader of the American Communist party. Of colonial stock, he had early become interested in the Russian Revolution and was recruited by Lenin to teach the Russians all about mechanized agriculture. He devoted about 10 years to this Russian activity, setting up the large, communal farms all owned by the Russian government, and using tractors and other agricultural machinery to which the Russians were not accustomed.

About $75,000 was raised by the American Friends of Soviet Russia and the newly formed American Federated Russian Famine Relief Committee for this purpose.

In 1934, shortly after the United States had recognized Soviet Russia, which had agreed not to interfere in our lives, Harold Ware, in the United States, organized his cell consisting mostly of Harvard Law School graduates, including Alger Hiss, to infiltrate high positions of government. To train them in methods and techniques, he used the AAA.

Such persons as Alger Hiss, Lee Pressman, Nathan Witt, Henry H. Collins Jr., John Abt were in this group. Whittaker Chambers says, in "Witness," that there must have been 60 or 70 persons in this cell, as it developed, and that they were all dues-paying members of the Communist party. He says that Henry H. Collins Jr., of a distinguished Philadelphia manufacturing family, was treasurer of the Harold Ware cell and was actually a recruiting agent for the Soviet apparatus.

After being trained in the AAA, many of the abler ones moved into other departments of government where they made notable public careers and served their master, Stalin, ably and adequately. However, they left behind enough of their own people who adhered to their Socialistic philosophy in AAA to have given that agency a purpose and a bad name. Eventually, the AAA became the PMA, which is not only an agency of government but a political machine. The size of PMA is to be gauged by the fact that the usual employes of the Department of Agriculture amount to only 70,000.

These PMA employes mostly work at the grass roots level, where they can affect the careers of members of Congress. It is therefore possible for them, if they are so minded, to bring influences to bear which may strengthen or harm a secretary of Agriculture who has little control over them. The PMA is a department within a department, an empire of officeholders built up into an enormity for political advantage.

The PMA ought to be abolished. Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson will find that mere reorganization or pruning for economy reasons will not serve. It would be possible for the FBI to check the names for loyalty, but such a task, involving 106,000 individuals, would consume the full manpower of that agency for a year or more, considering what else they have to do. The cost would be enoromus. It seems to me that it would cost less and be more effective to abolish the PMA, distributing its useful functions to other agencies in the Department of Agriculture.

At any rate, something needs to be done about this bureaucratic behemoth, and obviously unless it is done by the administration it will be accomplished by the investigative process of a congressional committee.

On The Line

NEW YORK (INS)—Any reporter who tries to cover one of those big testimonial dinners in New York, Chicago, Hollywood, or anywhere else is an irresponsible boob.

So here goes:

This one was for Bob Hope. At Mom Waldorf's boarding house. Blue plate special, $50. Paid by Toots Shor, boy sandhog in my case. It was given by the Friars Club, the rich little lambs who never lost a sheep. More famous people paid tribute to this illustrious import from England than to almost any Britisher since Tom Paine.

Bernard Baruch, for instance, and Gen. Emmett O'Donnell. And the mayors of this great city and of Cleveland. And former Vice President Barkley, George Jessel, Frank Folsom, Milton Berle, Fred Allen, Jesse Block, Eric Johnston, etc. etc. etc. All of them had something especial to say.

What they had to say ranged from the hilarious to the sad. Briefly to sample the latter, Symington, junior senator from Mississippi, told of a many-striped and very tough sergeant crying aloud at an Alaskan base as Hope and his dear wife, Dolores, sang Holy Night on an otherwise forlorn Christmas Eve a couple of years ago.

Later, Symington told the jammed ballroom, Hope and his wife and two of the four Hope children showed up in a mess hall in the frozen place, for Christmas dinner, and Bob asked about the boys who were on hand. Turned out that they were kids who had drawn lots and had lost the opportunity to see his show the night before. So he put it on again in the mess hall.

Laughs, too, at this dinner for Hope, and I'm happy to say that they weren't as strained as most of these things are, when pros meet pros.

George Jessel, telling of other dinners he had presided at in the main ballroom of the Waldorf, said, "if these walls could talk, they'd speak with an accent."

Fred Allen, adjusting his eye glasses and saying, "I'm wearing these because my speech is in third dimension," reviewed Hope's early poverty. Hope was so poor as a child in Cleveland, he said, that the only thing that could be seen through the windows of his house was an eclipse. Hope used a bicycle pump to blow up kippers into bloaters, Fred said, and, because he was English, his people baptized him in milk because they needed the water for their tea.

Allen took a dim view of Hollywood, to which Hope repaired. "Hollywood," he said, "is a place where somebody works all his life to be recognized and then wears dark glasses to be sure he isn't."

Eric Johnston told of a Red Pole who condemned Hope because he exemplified U. S. imperialism by appearing in "aggressive" pictures (with Bing Crosby) having to do with finding proper roads to such targets as Bali, Morocco, Zanzibar, etc. etc.

Milton Berle, who said that he and his principal TV rival, Bishop Fulton Sheen, have the same sponsor, "Skychief," praised Hope sincerely and faithfully promised to use all his jokes next Tuesday.

The Veep spoke of a trip he and the Hopes had made to Berlin and the mysterious "Irene" whose name had been mentioned in connection with Bob. Mrs. Hope asked Bob about "Irene" and Bob explained that it was one of Bing Crosby's horses. The next day, it seems, Bob returned to wherever they all were staying and asked if anything had happened, and Mrs. Hope said, "nothing, except that that horse called a couple of times."

Hope was in a tough spot, following those who preceded him. But, as usual, he came through fine. Speaking of Adolph Zukor, 80, he said he remembered him as a used buffalo dealer, and casting a fond look at Berle, and recalling Miltie's difficulties with Bishop Sheen, he said that Berle had just engaged four new writers—Matthew, Mark, Luke and John.

Secretary of Secrecy?

Been trying to discover if any treaties were actually autographed at Potsdam and Yalta.

Would be easier to find out if Button Gwinnett ever sent a postcard from Paris.

If they were signed they were a direct rupture of the Constitution. It says plain as gingham: No treaties without the consent of the Senate.

I'm a perfectionist on things like that. A perfectionist is a man who puts an ingrown hair up in curl papers.

So far as I can dig the Potsdam and Yalta gimmicks were agreements. Sort of a certified nod.

Funeral Planned Saturday For Frank Toler

A funeral service for Frank Toler, 30, of Wellersburg, who died yesterday at 8:28 a. m. in Memorial Hospital of injuries sustained in an auto mishap Friday at Mt. Savage, will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. in the Evangelical Church, Wellersburg.

Toler had remained unconscious and in critical condition since his car crashed early last Friday at Mt. Savage. He sustained a skull fracture and internal injuries.

Dr. H. V. Deming, deputy county medical examiner, is investigating with State Police. Toler's death marked the third traffic fatality in Allegany county this year.

Trooper Donald F. Wade said Toler, riding alone and headed toward Route 36 on Sunnyside Road, failed to negotiate a curve. His vehicle turned over several times and he was thrown to the highway. "Excessive rate of speed" was blamed for the mishap.

Toler starred in recent years as a pitcher with Wellersburg and Allegany Ballistics teams in the County Softball League.

Formerly employed at the Amcelle Plant of the Celanese Corporation, Toler worked as a strip miner before serving six months in a CCC camp at Chambersburg, Pa. An infantryman in the Army for six years, he took part in fighting through North Africa during World War II.

Toler saw action in Italy and later participated in the invasion of France. Wounded in battle along the Siegfried Line in Germany, he suffered the partial loss of two fingers on his pitching hand.

After recuperating in an Army hospital in England, Toler was assigned to the 38th Engineers in France to help guard prisoners of war. He has been pitching softball since 1947.

Presenting the New 1953 Studebaker

The new American car with the European look!

It's almost unbelievably low! It's impressively long and wide! It has the sleek-lined smartness of a costly foreign car and it's right down to earth in price!

The completely new, sensationally different 1953 Studebaker unquestionably is the most daring step forward of our times in automobile design.

Here, first by far in an American car, is the continental charm of Europe's most distinguished cars—an impressively long and racy-looking new Studebaker that is so extremely low most people can see over its top!

Director of the Fellowship and Membership organization in the national headquarters, Miss Smith meets all foreign students the AAUW brings to this country, and decides which applicants receive fellowships. The Maryland branches contributed $1,500 towards the Fellowships in 1952.

Since 1890, when the first AAUW award was made, 548 American and foreign women scholars have received fellowships, giving them uninterrupted study and research. The AAUW also aids better international understanding by sending American women abroad and bringing women from all parts of the world to the United States for study.

In addition to the Fellowship fund, Cumberland Branch raises money each year for its Scholarship fund, which is used to send three girls to Frostburg State Teachers College, with the understanding they will teach in Allegany County upon graduation. This is part of the AAUW Teacher Recruitment program.

Miss Lillian C. Compton, president of the Frostburg State Teachers College, is to speak on the Scholarship fund and how it is administered.

There also will be vocal selections by Miss Betty Ann Hanna, winner of the local scholarship.

A brief business session will be held with Mrs. John A. Cupler II presiding. Officers are to be elected. Mrs. Robert M. King is chairman of the Nominating committee, which includes Miss Sara Wright and Mrs. Milton Granet. The names submitted are Mrs. Aden Everstine, president; Miss Nan Livingston, vice president; and Mrs. F. Bruce Fable, recording secretary, who also is delegate to the national convention in Minneapolis in June. Additional nominations may be made from the floor.

Skinny arms and bony collar bones take on new, curvier contours after sessions with today's "strap" exercise!

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Of a great beauty it is often said, "Her bones are beautiful." It is her structure that is being remarked on—and boniness, you can be sure, is something that does not enter into the picture she presents. Insufficient padding is never enchanting. In sun clothes or decolletage, the girl with too-thin arms and protruding collar bones is keenly aware of the fact.

This sixth in our current series of strap exercises designed to recontour figure flaws is a sure corrective for unattractive boniness in the upper arm and collar-bone portions of the body. Furthermore because it incorporates the use of a leather strap (a man's belt is ideal for the purpose) the exercise gets results in half the usual time. How can this be? Simply because it gives you something to work with and against thereby decreasing lackadaisical motions and boredom and stimulating you to more effective effort. Run through the following and you'll immediately understand how much the belt steps up the effectiveness of a workout.

Build-up Exercise

a. Sit tailor-fashion on the floor, strap in hands. b. Raise your arms to shoulder level with elbows fully extended; then, allowing the belt to run through your hands stretch your arms outward in opposite directions as far as possible. c. Pull the belt taut and keep it so throughout.

d. By slowly bending your elbows into your waist, draw your strap across your chest. Hold and return your arms to the extended position. e. By bending elbows outward at shoulder level, again bring the strap to your chest. f. Alternating, repeat ten times and gradually increase to thirty counts daily.

Curved Contours

Always work slowly and always resist the pull of the strap—that is what builds the muscle tissue, which, unless you are seriously underweight will round out your collar bones and arms with lovely curves. Yes, and in plenty of time for your first trip to the beach! You'll be mighty proud of your more glamorous swimsuit figure!

Whatever your figure problem may be, you will find a strap exercise in this series to help correct it. The next one will appear next week, so watch for it.

Metropolitan's 85th Annual Report to Policyholders

More Benefits for More People

More benefits for more people than ever before! This keynotes the service of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. In 1952, payments to policyholders and beneficiaries reached a new high—$945,000,000.

The daily transactions of Metropolitan are intimately interwoven with the hopes and aspirations of men and women throughout the United States and Canada. Behind the annual accounting lies the story of families helped toward security, of widows cared for, and children educated.

These human objectives far transcend the procession of cold figures across the pages of account books. Yet the figures reflect the planning by policyholders to help assure the fulfillment of their ambitions.

At the end of 1952, policyholders were protected by $51,900,000,000 of Metropolitan Life insurance—a new high record. Old and new policyholders increased their insurance protection by buying $3,600,000,000 of new Life insurance.

New long-term investments in 1952 totaled $1,600,000,000. The major part of these funds went to help meet the needs of commerce and industry. In many instances, Metropolitan financed the expenditures necessary to bring to the public the benefits of technological progress in such fields as chemistry and electronics.

Some $369,000,000 was invested in city and farm mortgage loans in 1952. Part of these funds helped finance 30,000 new homes, and they brought the total outstanding home loans of the Company to 197,000 at the year's close.

The net rate of interest earned on Metropolitan's total investments after deducting investment expenses was 3.21% in comparison with 3.07% in 1951. However, the Federal income tax reduced the net investment return for 1952 to 3.00%. On new long-term investments made last year, the net interest rate, after all investment expenses but before the Federal income tax, was 3.73%—the highest since 1934.

Other high lights in Annual Report:

1. The number of policyholders increased to 33,700,000—a new record.

2. Accident and Health protection continued to grow in public favor, and this was particularly true of the new forms of protection provided by hospital, surgical, and medical expense policies. At the end of the year about 6,200,000 persons were protected by Accident and Health coverage under Metropolitan Group and individual policies.

3. The mortality rate among Metropolitan's policyholders continued to be favorable. Death rates from many causes—particularly tuberculosis and most of the common childhood diseases—reached all-time lows.

4. In common with the experience of business generally, Metropolitan's expenses increased somewhat last year. A continuing effort is made to keep them at a low level consistent with proper service to policyholders.

5. Dividends to policyholders in 1952 amounted to $192,000,000—the largest sum in the Company's history.

Metropolitan's Report to Policyholders for 1952 would not be complete without appreciative reference to the loyal and capable Metropolitan men and women who made possible the efficient and progressive service which our policyholders quite properly expect.

Additional details of the Metropolitan's service last year are given in the Company's Annual Report, copies of which may be obtained on request.

The net rate of interest earned on Metropolitan's total investments after deducting investment expenses was 3.21% in comparison with 3.07% in 1951. However, the Federal income tax reduced the net investment return for 1952 to 3.00%. On new long-term investments made last year, the net interest rate, after all investment expenses but before the Federal income tax, was 3.73%—the highest since 1934.

Other high lights in Annual Report:

1. The number of policyholders increased to 33,700,000—a new record.

2. Accident and Health protection continued to grow in public favor, and this was particularly true of the new forms of protection provided by hospital, surgical, and medical expense policies. At the end of the year about 6,200,000 persons were protected by Accident and Health coverage under Metropolitan Group and individual policies.

3. The mortality rate among Metropolitan's policyholders continued to be favorable. Death rates from many causes—particularly tuberculosis and most of the common childhood diseases—reached all-time lows.

4. In common with the experience of business generally, Metropolitan's expenses increased somewhat last year. A continuing effort is made to keep them at a low level consistent with proper service to policyholders.

5. Dividends to policyholders in 1952 amounted to $192,000,000—the largest sum in the Company's history.

Metropolitan's Report to Policyholders for 1952 would not be complete without appreciative reference to the loyal and capable Metropolitan men and women who made possible the efficient and progressive service which our policyholders quite properly expect.

Additional details of the Metropolitan's service last year are given in the Company's Annual Report, copies of which may be obtained on request.

Crash Victim's Administrator Named In Suits

The administrator of the estate of a 23-year old local man who was killed in a December 11 automobile collision on State Route 36 a mile south of Shaft has been named defendant in three $5,000 suits filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by persons who were injured in the same crash.

Plaintiffs in the three actions, all filed by Attorney Edward J. Ryan, are Mrs. Ethel Mae Snyder, Mt. Savage; Mrs. Anna Lavin, Frostburg, and Irvin L. Sperry of Morantown. The defendant is Joseph B. Raith, 112 Independence Street, administrator of the estate of William L. Raith, his brother.

Driver Killed

All three declarations said that William L. Raith, driving south on Route 36, was responsible for the crash which killed him and injured the three plaintiffs when Raith's car collided headon with Mrs. Snyder's vehicle, which she was driving north on Route 36. Mrs. Lavin and Sperry were passengers in her car.

Two more suits resulting from the county's worst highway accident in history also have been docketed in Circuit Court.

One suit seeks $30,000 for the use of Elizabeth A. Gilmore, 24-year old widow of Timothy M. Gilmore, and her month-old daughter, Timmie Ann Gilmore, who was born after her father's death last August 31. In the other Mrs. Gilmore asks for $1,500 as administratrix of her husband's estate in order to pay for his burial and funeral expenses.

Defendants in both suits, filed by Attorneys Estel C. Kelley and Simon F. Reilly, are Lewis Howard Allwine and Lewis Thomas Allwine, both of Highland Park, N. J.

Mrs. Gilmore contends that the accident in which her husband and four other Tri-Towns young men were killed was caused by the improper parking by Lewis Howard Allwine of his father's car along McMullen Highway between Cresaptown and Rawlings. She says that he pulled off the highway on the left side and allowed his car lights to remain burning. This confused Gilmore, who was driving Richard Moran's car, so much so that he crashed into the Allwine vehicle killing five of the six occupants in Moran's car, the widow asserts.

Still another civil suit in Circuit Court here was filed by Ralph E. Diebold against Edward Martz, 781 Fayette Street. Diebold, in his declaration, filed by Attorney Ryan, says that he was a passenger in Martz's car, driven by the owner, which ran off U. S. Route 220 six miles south of Franklin, W. Va., striking a bank and throwing Diebold out of the car. November 19, 1950. Diebold asks $10,000 damage.

Flue Fire Checked

Yesterday morning East Side firemen checked a flue fire at the home of Mrs. Julia F. Norris, 517 Woodside Avenue. No damage was reported. The call was received at 10:41 a. m.

Lockard Gets 30-Day Term In Truck Theft

Blair Ellsworth Lockard, 24, Corriganville, was sentenced to 30 days in Allegany County Jail yesterday in Trial Magistrate Court on a charge of stealing and wrecking his employer's pickup truck.

Authorities said Lockard signed a statement admitting he took the vehicle, owned by Schriver Company, on February 6. The prisoner said he "borrowed" the truck.

Lockard told police that after taking the truck he drove the vehicle around town for a few hours, had several bottles of beer and later lost control of the truck on Oldtown Road.

He was picked up at a local bowling alley Monday afternoon by Detective Lt. James E. Van and Detective Leo E. P. Law. Lockard had been working at the bowling alley as a pinboy.

Fined For Overload

John Lewis Diel, Mt. Savage, was fined $58.75 fine and costs in Trial Magistrates Court for an overload on his truck at Route 36 two miles west of Corriganville.

Eves Commends Officials In Bus Dispute Settlement

Mayor Roy W. Eves publicly thanked at the council meeting Monday the people who were instrumental in getting the Sunday bus dispute cleared up in a short time.

Mayor Eves said Sunday morning when there was no bus service as Local 1110, Bus Drivers Union, called a work stoppage against Cumberland Transit Lines, he received many calls asking why the city government did not intervene.

The Mayor's Labor-Management Committee was unable to convene, Mayor Eves said, because of various reasons.

Very Commendable

He personally announced his appreciation to Stanley Clevenger of the Federal Conciliation Service; Mrs. Margaret E. Kimble, state deputy commissioner of the State Department of Labor and Industry, and Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, who sat in on the company-union talks Sunday afternoon.

The mayor said due to the good work by these three, together with the concessions by both the union and company, an amicable settlement was made and bus runs were started Sunday evening.

"It is very commendable that people can get together to avoid serious inconvenience to the public," he concluded.

In other council business Monday:

C. L. Brotemarkle, assistant superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company, reported total water consumption for the week ending March 1 was 89,006,000 as compared to 88,880,000 for the same period last year.

Water Rent Paid

The water in Lake Gordon is running two inches deep over the spillway, while Lake Koon is one inch over the spillway.

George L. Davis, tax collector, listed a total of $54,812 collected by his office during March. Of this amount, $32,931 was for water rents, $20,455 for general taxes; $1,388 for general improvement bonds and $37 for 1931 sewage bonds.

Wallace G. Ullery, city clerk, reported total fees collected last month by his office of $2,101. Bingo tax and recreation admission tax on bingo games accounted for $993; Sunday movie taxe, $592; recreation admission tax, $496, and license fees, $19.

Two hundred fifty loads of shale were hauled to the Cumberland Municipal Airport for distribution over its roads and parking areas, during February, Charles F. Heller, airport foreman of maintenance and construction, reported.

Marriage Volume Here Shows Drop

Marriage license activity in the office of Joseph E. Boden, clerk of Allegany County Circuit Court, showed a marked drop in February when only 175 were issued.

In February, 1952, there were 227 licenses. In January this year the total hit 199, a few higher than January 1952's 195. As usual a majority of those obtaining licenses were Pennsylvanians.

The U. S. national Capitol was designed by Pierre L'Enfant.

Board Urges City To Hire Smoke Abatement Engineer

The City Smoke Abatement Advisory Board has advised the Mayor and Council not to relax its requirements for a smoke abatement engineer.

Charles Z. Heskett, chairman of the board, submitted recommendations of the board in regard to filling the position vacated by George M. Hitchcock as city smoke abatement engineer.

When Hitchcock's contract as smoke engineer expired he was hired as full-time superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company. He formerly held both jobs.

Heskett said it is the opinion of the board that the engineer who is acquired to fill the job must deal with highly complex problems.

Suggestions Made

The vacancy should be advertised by the Mayor and Council locally and in one or two technical journals, the report advised.

The board also felt that one source to fill the job would be in the smoke abatement department of a larger city, where a competent assistant to the engineer could be obtained.

The board also stated it is its opinion that the smoke abatement engineer is to be under the control of the mayor. Heskett noted that there is now some confusion on this point.

The engineer, the board said, should be hired by the mayor, subject to the approval of the council.

Tabled For Week

The man should be employed on a one-year basis and not under classified civil service, the report declared.

However, he should be hired with the understanding that at the end of the year, providing he proves his competency, the law would be changed to place him under civil service.

This would serve as an inducement to a competent engineer, the board explained.

The report was signed by Chairman Heskett, and Max A. Shaffer and F. Perry Smith, members.

On motion of John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, the report was tabled for a week for council's consideration.

Charles F. Owens, former inspector, has been in charge of the department since the expiration of Hitchcock's contract.

Two Secretaries Pass National Exams

Two Cumberland secretaries have passed the Certified Professional Secretaries examination given nationally and now join a group of 184 in the entire U. S. who have been certified through the tests.

The women are Miss Helen Beck, 740 Baker Street, and Miss Lucille Malin, 418 Washington Street. They took the examination last October at the University of Pittsburgh. Their successful completion of the examination brings to three the number of Cumberland secretaries who have been certified through the tests.

Miss Beck is employed at the Amcelle Plant of the Celanese Corporation of America while Miss Malin is a secretary for Dr. Winter R Frantz, county and city health officer.

The test consists of 12 hours of examinations over a two-day period. The test covers such phases as accounting, economics, office procedure and practice, secretarial work and human relations.

Mrs. Dorothy (Roger) Row was the first Cumberland secretary to pass the examination when she successfully completed the test last year.

Fireworks Display Planned July 4

The Mayor and Council has cleared the way for a municipal fireworks display in Constitution Park on the Fourth of July.

The display, to be financed by popular subscription from merchants and fraternal, service and labor organizations, is being jointly sponsored by the City Recreation Department and Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion.

Bert Caldara, Mt Savage, fireworks display maker, introduced by City Recreation Director Robert F Pence, explained the setup, which required a city order, but was not binding in any part on the Mayor and Council.

The order was passed allowing Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker to sign the required state permit for the display." Any profit will be used on next year's display, Caldara explained.

Gov. Marland Asks End Of Gambling

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—Gov. Marland has told the Mayor of Martinsburg and 36 other communities to stamp out gambling or the state will help them do it.

The governor recently made public a copy of the letter he sent to the mayors of the 37 West Virginia cities.

He said he learned that "certain persons and firms" in the various cities hold licenses to operate gaming devices and that he assumed the licenses were being used for the purpose for which they were issued.

"If such conditions do exist and you are unable to cope with same, it will be necessary for the state of West Virginia to provide what assistance is necessary to discontinue operation of these gambling devices," he wrote to the mayors.

Equity Suits Filed

Four equity suits were filed in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Mary F. Hahn vs. Charles William Hahn, Richard Allen Durst vs. Laura Virginia Durst, Robert Farrell Moore vs. Ruth Ellen Moore and Gladys M. Walters vs. Clarence W. Walters.

Municipal Airport Lease Approved By City Council

The lease for Cumberland's Municipal Airport was approved by the Mayor and Council Monday along with an agreement with Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for the rental of a large hangar at the field.

Warren Mullenax, airport manager, had his present lease renewed for two years under past terms and conditions.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, pointed out it is conditional upon the stipulation of the Municipal Airport Commission that all fees due the city from profits at the airport be paid by Mullenax. The lease will run until February 28, 1955.

Under the approved hangar agreement, Kelly Springfield would pay the city $250 a month for 72 months for the use of the large hangar.

Finan explained that in 1951 the city constructed the hangar for Kelly's plane at a cost of $7,500 with Kelly agreeing to pay for it over a 60-month period at a $125 a month rental fee.

In 1952, Finan said, Kelly bought a larger plane and the city enlarged the hangar at a cost of $10,625. There was still a balance due on the initial outlay for the building of $5,625.

This balance, together with the expansion cost, plus a reasonable interest, brings the total amount outstanding at $18,000, Finan explained.

The agreement will have Kelly paying off this amount in six years and then renting it after 1959 at a rate of $1,200 a year.

The council voted a $500 contribution to the fund drive of Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Harold F. Shober, street department employe, was granted an indefinite leave of absence to go on continuous active duty with the Sixth Special Infantry Company, Marine Corps Reserve, here.

Board Urges City To Hire Smoke Abatement Engineer

The City Smoke Abatement Advisory Board has advised the Mayor and Council not to relax its requirements for a smoke abatement engineer.

Charles Z. Heskett, chairman of the board, submitted recommendations of the board in regard to filling the position vacated by George M. Hitchcock as city smoke abatement engineer.

When Hitchcock's contract as smoke engineer expired he was hired as full-time superintendent of the Evitts Creek Water Company. He formerly held both jobs.

Heskett said it is the opinion of the board that the engineer who is acquired to fill the job must deal with highly complex problems.

Suggestions Made

The vacancy should be advertised by the Mayor and Council locally and in one or two technical journals, the report advised.

The board also felt that one source to fill the job would be in the smoke abatement department of a larger city, where a competent assistant to the engineer could be obtained.

The board also stated it is its opinion that the smoke abatement engineer is to be under the control of the mayor. Heskett noted that there is now some confusion on this point.

The engineer, the board said, should be hired by the mayor, subject to the approval of the council.

Tabled For Week

The man should be employed on a one-year basis and not under classified civil service, the report declared.

However, he should be hired with the understanding that at the end of the year, providing he proves his competency, the law would be changed to place him under civil service.

This would serve as an inducement to a competent engineer, the board explained.

The report was signed by Chairman Heskett, and Max A. Shaffer and F. Perry Smith, members.

On motion of John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, the report was tabled for a week for council's consideration.

Charles F. Owens, former inspector, has been in charge of the department since the expiration of Hitchcock's contract.

Two Secretaries Pass National Exams

Two Cumberland secretaries have passed the Certified Professional Secretaries examination given nationally and now join a group of 184 in the entire U. S. who have been certified through the tests.

The women are Miss Helen Beck, 740 Baker Street, and Miss Lucille Malin, 418 Washington Street. They took the examination last October at the University of Pittsburgh. Their successful completion of the examination brings to three the number of Cumberland secretaries who have been certified through the tests.

Miss Beck is employed at the Amcelle Plant of the Celanese Corporation of America while Miss Malin is a secretary for Dr. Winter R Frantz, county and city health officer.

The test consists of 12 hours of examinations over a two-day period. The test covers such phases as accounting, economics, office procedure and practice, secretarial work and human relations.

Mrs. Dorothy (Roger) Row was the first Cumberland secretary to pass the examination when she successfully completed the test last year.

Fireworks Display Planned July 4

The Mayor and Council has cleared the way for a municipal fireworks display in Constitution Park on the Fourth of July.

The display, to be financed by popular subscription from merchants and fraternal, service and labor organizations, is being jointly sponsored by the City Recreation Department and Fort Cumberland Post 13, American Legion.

Bert Caldara, Mt Savage, fireworks display maker, introduced by City Recreation Director Robert F Pence, explained the setup, which required a city order, but was not binding in any part on the Mayor and Council.

The order was passed allowing Fire Chief Virgil A. Parker to sign the required state permit for the display." Any profit will be used on next year's display, Caldara explained.

Gov. Marland Asks End Of Gambling

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—Gov. Marland has told the Mayor of Martinsburg and 36 other communities to stamp out gambling or the state will help them do it.

The governor recently made public a copy of the letter he sent to the mayors of the 37 West Virginia cities.

He said he learned that "certain persons and firms" in the various cities hold licenses to operate gaming devices and that he assumed the licenses were being used for the purpose for which they were issued.

"If such conditions do exist and you are unable to cope with same, it will be necessary for the state of West Virginia to provide what assistance is necessary to discontinue operation of these gambling devices," he wrote to the mayors.

Equity Suits Filed

Four equity suits were filed in Allegany County Circuit Court. The bills of complaint were titled Mary F. Hahn vs. Charles William Hahn, Richard Allen Durst vs. Laura Virginia Durst, Robert Farrell Moore vs. Ruth Ellen Moore and Gladys M. Walters vs. Clarence W. Walters.

Municipal Airport Lease Approved By City Council

The lease for Cumberland's Municipal Airport was approved by the Mayor and Council Monday along with an agreement with Kelly-Springfield Tire Company for the rental of a large hangar at the field.

Warren Mullenax, airport manager, had his present lease renewed for two years under past terms and conditions.

Thomas B. Finan, city attorney, pointed out it is conditional upon the stipulation of the Municipal Airport Commission that all fees due the city from profits at the airport be paid by Mullenax. The lease will run until February 28, 1955.

Under the approved hangar agreement, Kelly Springfield would pay the city $250 a month for 72 months for the use of the large hangar.

Finan explained that in 1951 the city constructed the hangar for Kelly's plane at a cost of $7,500 with Kelly agreeing to pay for it over a 60-month period at a $125 a month rental fee.

In 1952, Finan said, Kelly bought a larger plane and the city enlarged the hangar at a cost of $10,625. There was still a balance due on the initial outlay for the building of $5,625.

This balance, together with the expansion cost, plus a reasonable interest, brings the total amount outstanding at $18,000, Finan explained.

The agreement will have Kelly paying off this amount in six years and then renting it after 1959 at a rate of $1,200 a year.

The council voted a $500 contribution to the fund drive of Allegany County Chapter of the American Red Cross.

Harold F. Shober, street department employe, was granted an indefinite leave of absence to go on continuous active duty with the Sixth Special Infantry Company, Marine Corps Reserve, here.

Bakery Employe Ordered Held

Accused of embezzling $2,228.49 from a Tri-Towns bakery, John James McConnell, 24, of 222 Maryland Avenue, Westernport, waived a preliminary hearing yesterday in Trial Magistrates Court and was ordered held under $2,000 bond for the April term of Circuit Court.

Substitute Magistrate Morris Baron ordered McConnell incarcerated in the county lockup in default of bond.

McConnell, driver-salesman for McIntyre's Bakery in Westernport, was arrested following an audit of books. He had a route in Maryland and nearby Pennsylvania.

Amcelle Gives Watch To Braddock Rd. Man

David J. Corrigan, Braddock Road, was awarded a gold wrist watch at Amcelle yesterday in recognition of 25 years of service with Celanese.

Corrigan, who is a tank man in the filtration section, also received an engraved 25-year certificate and emblem from John Bestwick, superintendent of spinning and auxiliaries.

He is married and the father of two daughters. His favorite pastimes are hunting and fishing. His ten-year old daughter often accompanies him on fishing trips and is rated by her father as an excellent angler.

Before coming to Amcelle, he worked for the Budd Manufacturing Company of Detroit and the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company.

Women's Civic Club Plans Infirmary Work

The garden group of the Women's Civic Club of Cumberland has offered to beautify the grounds around the Allegany County Infirmary.

Members of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners were asked yesterday if the group could procede with its plans. The offer was unanimously accepted by the board. The Civic Club's action was highly praised by the commissioners.

Mrs. George Henderson, chairman of the garden group, and Mrs. William A. Gunter, chairman of landscaping projects, contacted the board in the matter.

The infirmary grounds have recently been graded and a new roadway constructed around the institution. Planting of trees, flowers and grass on the adjacent areas will do much to enhance the appearance of the property.

Stakem, agent in charge, announced yesterday. The office will also be open Monday, March 16, the filing deadline.

The Old Second Guesser

by John Wheeler

An Exciting Assignment

The telephone rang while I was still half asleep. It was my day off, and I resented it. I had a good mind not to answer, and then curiosity got the better of me.

John Wheeler

"This is the city desk," said Paul Drane. "There has been a collision at sea near Nantucket, and there is a tug starting in three-quarters of an hour from the Battery. We have chartered it, and we want you on it."

That was the surprise fascination of the newspaper business in those days. If they put you to work on your day off, you felt you were making good. If they hired a tug for you to ride on, you were sure of it. I looked out the window. The fog was so thick you couldn't see across the street. I hustled into my clothes and caught the subway. As soon as I got aboard, we shoved off.

"I work for the New York Herald," I explained to the captain.

"I know you do," he answered. "That's why we were waiting for you."

Everything was at a standstill in the harbor. We groped around, trying to find our way to sea and rubbed up against a couple of anchored ships. The captain kept tooting his whistle. He let me stand beside him in the pilot house. Finally he heard a bell he recognized.

"That's on the quarantine dock at Staten Island," he announced, as he rang to reverse the engines.

But is was too late, and the next thing we were firmly aground in a potato patch. He tried to back off without success.

"We'll have to wait for high tide," he announced.

I stepped ashore, caught a trolley and ferry and landed back in the office, empty handed.

"The Morans have a salvage tug starting out," said the city editor. "Try to get on that."

I took off again. In the meantime, I had learned the White Star liner, Republic, which was full of important passengers going on a Mediterranean cruise, had been rammed by the Florida, an Italian ship, inbound. Many boats were standing by to rescue survivors.

This time we got to sea all right, and the weather began to clear. We met the Florida wobbling along with a big, gaping hole in her bow and a canvas strung over i We swung in behind her and put a hawser over her stern, so the tug could help steer by swinging. Of course, it was just what the captain wanted, for as soon as that line went aboard, he had a salvage claim. He stationed a man in the bow with an axe.

"You stand by here," he told him. "If she starts to go down, cut that rope, but don't do it until you see me come over the side. I'm going aboard."

"Don't cut it until you see me get off, too," I added.

The captain climbed up a rope ladder, and I followed. There were some passengers, who had been picked out of the sea, on the steamer, and I began to interview them. Then I talked to the master of the Florida. My friend, the tugboat captain, came up to me.

"You'd better get off here," he said, "or the immigration people will hold you up at Quarantine."

I shinnied down to the tug again. The sailor was still there with the axe. I finally reached the office with my story. I think Jack Binns was the Republic's wireless operator and sent out the famous distress signal — "C.Q.D." — which meant "Come, Quick, Danger."

I got an extra day's pay for the job — no bonus. I would have gladly paid for the privilege and the front-row seat.

"Don't cut it until you see me get off, too," I added.

The captain climbed up a rope ladder, and I followed. There were some passengers, who had been picked out of the sea, on the steamer, and I began to interview them. Then I talked to the master of the Florida. My friend, the tugboat captain, came up to me.

"You'd better get off here," he said, "or the immigration people will hold you up at Quarantine."

I shinnied down to the tug again. The sailor was still there with the axe. I finally reached the office with my story. I think Jack Binns was the Republic's wireless operator and sent out the famous distress signal — "C.Q.D." — which meant "Come, Quick, Danger."

I got an extra day's pay for the job — no bonus. I would have gladly paid for the privilege and the front-row seat.

Five Teams Battle For Three Places In Shuffle Playoffs

Five teams are engaged in a battle royal for three places in the playoffs of the Allegany County Women's National Shuffleboard League as the loop enters the next to final week of regular season play.

Frostburg American Legion's team already has clinched first place in the 12-team circuit with a 10-game lead over the nearest competitor. But the other three places in the four-way playoff are still in doubt as Clingerman's, Golden Nuggett of Frostburg, Cresap Tavern, Cumberland Woodmen of the World and Stadium Inn of Frostburg vie for contention.

Tonight's games will pit Cresap Tavern at Clingerman's in a battle of two of the playoff-seeking teams. In other matches Purple Heart is at Frostburg American Legion; Pocahontas at Stadium Inn in Frostburg; VFW at Moose in a match of two teams who have been eliminated from contention this season; Joe's Viaduct Inn at Golden Nugget, Frostburg.

The Cumberland Woodmen of the World at Twigg's Auto Body Shop match has been postponed until March 16.

Leagues To Meet

The Mt. Savage Little and Hot Stove Leagues will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the Mt. Savage Community Building. All league officials and managers of the teams in the two circuits are urged to attend the joint conference. Sponsors of the team in the two leagues are requested to name managers prior to the meeting, officials said last night.

Hyndman Quits Bi-State Loop

The Bi-State Baseball League will be a four or six club circuit this year but the Hyndman Firemen will not be among the starters, Carl "Pete" Dicken, league treasurer, announced last night.

Dicken stated that Hyndman has withdrawn from the loop and will be represented in the Bedford County League this year.

Six teams, namely McCoole, Westvaco, Grantsville, Cumberland, Mt. Savage and Frostburg were represented at Sunday's meeting of the league in Grantsville and all of the clubs but Frostburg were certain of fielding teams. There still is some interest shown by Frostburg and if the Mountain City retains its franchise the league will start with six teams.

The definite make-up of the league will be learned at a special meeting to be called within the next week, Dicken said.

"Overemphasis" Talk

Pence's Total 2,733

Letter From Coast

Lester's In Dough

By C. V. BURNS

SCHOOLS of Baltimore county have not been represented in the state basketball tournament since 1948 but they plan to survey this week's playoffs at Western Maryland College and the tourney wind-up next week before making a decision on whether to return to the tournament by 1955.

Harvey W. Kreuzburg, principal of Sparks High School, says:

"We will study the atmosphere of the tournament to see if there is too much overemphasis."

If Kreuzburg and Joshua K. Wheeler, principal of Kenwood High School, who also will attend, feel the tourney isn't emphasized they probably will recommend that schools of the Baltimore County League re-enter.

The excuse offered by the Baltimore County League (Franklin, Kenwood, Dundalk, Catonsville, Towson, Sparks, Milford Mill and Sparrows Point) for not entering before 1955 is that county league champions must be crowned before the end of February and the league schedule for 1954 calls for its season to end in March.

We believe the State Association has done a good job toward checking "overemphasis" by limiting schools to 21 basketball games, banning post-season games and limiting schools to two games a week during the regular season.

We can't understand such a statement coming from a high school principal because Maryland's program was set up by a committee composed of superintendents, high school principals, county supervisors and school athletic coaches. And the state fully abides by National Federation rules.

WHEN BOB PENCE connected for 23 points in last Sunday's game which the Old Germans lost to the Broadway Clowns he upped his 7-year total to 2,733 tallies, an average of 14.5 points per contest.

Since starting his local pro career with the Amvets during the 1946-47 season, Pence has figured in 188 of the 196 games played by the Amvets, Dukes, Spas and Old Germans and is credited with 1,150 field goals and 433 conversions in 595 tries at the charity line for a foul shooting average of .728.

Lou Bell has played in 192 of the 196 games over a seven-year span and has racked up 2,089 points. During the first five seasons he played in 148 consecutive games.

Pence has led the local quint in scoring six of the seven years. "Whitey" Mathewson, the New Jerseyite, paced the scorers here several years ago.

THE LONGEST winning streak credited to any of the pro teams that have performed here the past seven seasons was 14 in home and away games by "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Amvets in 1946-47. They were stopped in Washington, D. C., by the Cliftons at Uline Arena. Their 11-game string at home was snapped by the New York Rens.

JACK MAYO, outfielder, whose dad is district representative of the United Mine Workers here, has been mentioned as Phillies' trading bait for Ralph Kiner of the Pirates.

A story several days ago listed Mayo, Mel Clark, outfielder, Paul Stuffel, pitcher, Eddie Waitkus and cash as the Phils' offer for Kiner.

NORMAN GERDEMAN writes from Monterey, Calif., that he received a clipping of an "As You Were" article about Phil Fleming and adds that it brought back memories of way back to even the Midget League.

"I will say that I have been around plenty and I have not as yet met a prospect as good as Phil," Norm writes. "He really had it until he injured his arm while pitching for La-Salle. There is no doubt he would have made good in organized ball if it hadn't been for that misfortune.

"We have our first baseball practice tomorrow."

Gerdeman, who played with Fleming on the American Legion world junior championship team of 1934, is now with the Monterey Peninsula Merchants Baseball Club of the Mission League, California's oldest circuit.

MOOREFIELD High School is the only scholastic team to hit the century mark in points scored in a single game this season. The Yellow Jackets beat Franklin, 100-63, last Saturday. The next highest score was Davis High's 95-51 win over Harman.

On the collegiate side, Potomac State was on the short end in two games in which West Liberty topped the century mark. The scores were 102-68 and 107-74.

LAST AUGUST 30 at Saratoga, a 20-to-1 shot won the first race. The horse, Our Topper, was bred on Long Island and a horse-historian went to his trainer, Jack Lawrence, to obtain a detail or two about Our Topper's upbringing.

"Please write a sentence about the jockey and say he gave Our Topper a good ride," Lawrence said. "The boy is having trouble getting mounts."

This same jockey was seen at Hialeah Park in Florida the other day in a large gleaming automobile that was dripping with chromium. Apprentice Willie Lester, Our Topper's rider last August 30, was at the wheel. He's no longer having trouble getting mounts.

He was asked about the state of his finances six long months ago at Saratoga.

"I was having trouble hustling coffee money, "Little Willie said. "Mr. Lawrence was very kind to me."

Lester hails from Cass in Pocahontas county, W. Va.

Perini Blocks Move To Shift St. Louis Club

Braves Don't Want Browns In Milwaukee

SARASOTA, Fla., March 3 (AP)—The Boston Braves were reported today to be blocking a move for immediate transfer of the St. Louis Browns' American League baseball franchise to Milwaukee.

Bill Veeck, head of the Browns, is ready and eager to move and Milwaukee is beckoning him with a new $5,000,000 stadium, according to reports, but Lou Perini, president of the Braves, says, "No."

Perini's voice is a big one in any such negotiations. His Braves own 90 per cent of the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, who have territorial rights.

Meanwhile, Veeck rushed here from Miami for a meeting with Will Harridge, president of the American League, heightening speculation of an impending shift although both men insisted there was nothing to it.

Veeck maintained his visit had nothing to do with the proposed franchise transfer and Harridge commented succinctly: "I don't foresee any change of franchises in the near future."

Yet Russ Lynch, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, reported in a signed story that the Braves had been offered $500,000 compensation if they'd agree to move the Milwaukee AA franchise to Toledo, but this was turned down cold.

Lynch painted this involved picture of the behind-the scenes negotiations aimed at putting the Browns into Milwaukee before the flag goes up on the 1953 season:

Eagles Sign Michels

PHILADELPHIA, March 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League today announced the signing of John Michels, star guard from the University of Tennessee.

As You Were

(This is the 87th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

For approximately 25 years this colorful sports promoter was identified with basketball, baseball and soccer teams and live bird shooting in the Georges Creek section.

He managed a classy Barton Braves baseball team of the early 1920s whose personnel included Charles "Lefty" Dye, one of Allegany County's all-time greats, Frank "Warhorse" Muster, Johnny Foutz and Wilbur "Bub" Wells, all pitchers; Clarence Beeman and Clem Montgomery, catchers; George "Brindle" Long, "Hank" Gruber, "Shug" Doyle, Art Slocum and Marty Flynn, infielders, and Alvin Logsdon, Lucien Davis, Tommy McGuire and John "Chip" Grindle, outfielders.

Tommy McGuire, Clarence Keyes, Dennis Lashbaugh, Ross Bell, Babe Fazenbaker and Glenn Thompson were among the players on the Vivian Club basketball team that he managed.

He served as sponsor and purchaser of equipment for the great Barton High School soccer and basketball teams that functioned from 1920 to 1926. In fact, his barbershop was the main sporting headquarters in Barton for many years.

This man was the backer of Simeon Arnold, one of the Georges Creek's greatest live bird shooters. He also was associated with the Barton Braves soccer team in the old County League.

The fellow pictured here drove a team of horses in his younger days when he was in the grocery business established by his father. And for 30 years he conducted a barber shop in the up-creek town. In those days he was dubbed "Barton's Best Barber."

His name appears on a bronze plate on the door of the Allegany County Infirmary which was opened during his eight-year term as superintendent of the Allegany County Asylum and County Home.

He's a native of Barton but now resides in Cumberland.

What is his name?

He is Robert Workman, "Bob" Smith, 911 Bedford Street, now employed at Fred Driscoll's Barber Shop, Johnson Street. The photo was taken in 1923 when "Bob" was associated with Barton High School's first W.M.I. League championship basketball team.

Wynn And Doby To Talk Salary

TUCSON, Ariz., March 3 (AP) — Pitcher Early Wynn and Centerfielder Larry Doby both told General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians today they would come here shortly to argue salary.

For the first week of the Tribe's spring practice Wynn has stayed home in Florida and Doby has remained in New Jersey. Each has been offered a raise but wants a bigger one. Current guesses were Doby is shooting for $35,000 and Wynn for $40,000.

Salem Beaten By Methodists At Frostburg

Drop 44-42 Contest In Church Playoffs

FROSTBURG, March 3 — Frostburg Methodist rallied in the second half to edge Salem Reformed 44 to 42 tonight in an opening round playoff game in the Frostburg Church Basketball League before a slim crowd in the Beall High gym.

The Methodist aggregation thus joins St. Paul's Lutheran, 50-40 victor last night over Congregational in another first round battle, in the semi-finals of the six-team playoffs.

Salem Holds Lead

Salem, fifth team in the final standings during regular season play, nearly knocked Frostburg Methodist out of the playoffs in tonight's battle, leading the Methodists until four minutes of play had passed in the third quarter.

Salem led 10-8 and 19-15 at the close of the first two periods but Frostburg knotted the count at 25-all on John Bond's field goal. Bond then put the winners ahead to stay 27-25 with a pair of foul tosses.

Frostburg held a 33-30 lead at the end of the third stanza and the fourth period was nip and tuck until the final whistle.

The Methodists built their margin to 39-33, largest lead held by either team in the game, with 3½ minutes to play. Lee Lehr then connected with a goal and converted when fouled to cut the margin to 39-36.

Salem's Bill Groves pulled the losers within one point with a set shot before Bond scored for the Methodists. Charles Hunter tallied twice at the foul line for Salem with 40 seconds remaining to make it 41-40 Frostburg. Dave Linn's field goal and foul toss then gave Frostburg a 44-40 lead to clinch the victory. Groves closed out the scoring with a pair of fouls with seconds remaining for Salem.

Bond Leads Scorers

Bond paced the victors with 17 points while Groves had 15 for Salem. Eddie Thorp played a good floor game for the losers and contributed 10 points.

Thursday's final opening round game will pit St. Michael's against Midland Methodist at 7:30 in the Beall gym. Lou Baker and Ray Hull will officiate. Following the end of Thursday's game a drawing will be held between the victor and Frostburg Methodist and St. Paul's Lutheran. The team getting the bye will advance to the finals next week while the remaining two teams will meet in the semi-final engagement at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. The lineups:

Death Takes Clyde Milan, Nats' Coach

Collapses At Orlando, Stole 88 Bases In 1912

ORLANDO, Fla., March 3 (AP)—Clyde Milan, 65-year-old coach with the Washington Senators, died late today from a heart attack.

Clyde Milan
Senators

Milan collapsed in the Washington dressing room after a fungo hitting workout with the infielders in the 80-degree heat. An ambulance was called and took him to Orange County Hospital. He died little more than an hour later.

Milan came up the big leagues in 1907 and was a longtime star with Washington team in center field.

After his retirement as a player, he won pennants managing teams at Birmingham and Memphis in the Southern Association.

For the most of the last two decades Milan was the first base coach of the Senators.

Milan was one of the great base stealers of all time.

Over a 10-year span he averaged 45 stolen bases a year. He hit his peak in 1912, when he stole 88.

His record finally was broken by Ty Cobb, who stole 96.

Alvin Dark Agrees To 2-Year Contract

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 3 (INS) —Shortstop Alvin Dark ended his holdout status with the New York Giants today and agreed to a two-year "compromise" contract.

The Giants' captain, last man on the team to come to terms, agreed to a two-year contract calling for a reported $32,500 a season. The agreement was reached in a telephone talk with President Horace Stoneham.

Manager Leo Durocher announced that Dark is scheduled to leave his Lake Charles, Ia., home for the training site "on the first available plane."

Churches, Mile Tracks Fight Extra Race Days

ANNAPOLIS, March 3 (AP) — The big tracks, churches, horsemen and present racing commissioners all knocked today a bill to increase the number of racing days in Maryland and set up a $15,000-a-year czar of the sport.

The only support for any phase of the many-sided bill came from a minority of the minor tracks and harness promoters. They said they wanted more racing days.

The first word of support for more days came near the end of a long Senate Judiciary Committee hearing. John H. Zink of Timonium said his track was in favor of raising the number of days at the minor tracks from 10 to 12.

Before Zink spoke up, Edward T. Farrell Jr., president of the five-half-mile tracks, didn't even mention the extra days. He said the association of half-milers wanted only to oppose being forced to set aside one half per cent of its take for improvements. The big tracks now are required to do so.

Netoskie Scores 21; Bulldogs Are Hosts In 3rd Tilt Thursday

KEYSER, W. Va., March 3 — Keyser High evened its Class A sectional series with Martinsburg High here tonight by blasting the Bulldogs, 75 to 53, before a small crowd in the Tornado gym.

Five Teams Battle For Three Places In Shuffle Playoffs

Five teams are engaged in a battle royal for three places in the playoffs of the Allegany County Women's National Shuffleboard League as the loop enters the next to final week of regular season play.

Frostburg American Legion's team already has clinched first place in the 12-team circuit with a 10-game lead over the nearest competitor. But the other three places in the four-way playoff are still in doubt as Clingerman's, Golden Nuggett of Frostburg, Cresap Tavern, Cumberland Woodmen of the World and Stadium Inn of Frostburg vie for contention.

Tonight's games will pit Cresap Tavern at Clingerman's in a battle of two of the playoff-seeking teams. In other matches Purple Heart is at Frostburg American Legion; Pocahontas at Stadium Inn in Frostburg; VFW at Moose in a match of two teams who have been eliminated from contention this season; Joe's Viaduct Inn at Golden Nugget, Frostburg.

The Cumberland Woodmen of the World at Twigg's Auto Body Shop match has been postponed until March 16.

Leagues To Meet

The Mt. Savage Little and Hot Stove Leagues will meet Friday at 8 p. m. in the Mt. Savage Community Building. All league officials and managers of the teams in the two circuits are urged to attend the joint conference. Sponsors of the team in the two leagues are requested to name managers prior to the meeting, officials said last night.

Hyndman Quits Bi-State Loop

The Bi-State Baseball League will be a four or six club circuit this year but the Hyndman Firemen will not be among the starters, Carl "Pete" Dicken, league treasurer, announced last night.

Dicken stated that Hyndman has withdrawn from the loop and will be represented in the Bedford County League this year.

Six teams, namely McCoole, Westvaco, Grantsville, Cumberland, Mt. Savage and Frostburg were represented at Sunday's meeting of the league in Grantsville and all of the clubs but Frostburg were certain of fielding teams. There still is some interest shown by Frostburg and if the Mountain City retains its franchise the league will start with six teams.

The definite make-up of the league will be learned at a special meeting to be called within the next week, Dicken said.

"Overemphasis" Talk

Lester's In Dough

By C. V. BURNS

SCHOOLS of Baltimore county have not been represented in the state basketball tournament since 1948 but they plan to survey this week's playoffs at Western Maryland College and the tourney wind-up next week before making a decision on whether to return to the tournament by 1955.

Harvey W. Kreuzburg, principal of Sparks High School, says:

"We will study the atmosphere of the tournament to see if there is too much overemphasis."

If Kreuzburg and Joshua K. Wheeler, principal of Kenwood High School, who also will attend, feel the tourney isn't emphasized they probably will recommend that schools of the Baltimore County League re-enter.

The excuse offered by the Baltimore County League (Franklin, Kenwood, Dundalk, Catonsville, Towson, Sparks, Milford Mill and Sparrows Point) for not entering before 1955 is that county league champions must be crowned before the end of February and the league schedule for 1954 calls for its season to end in March.

We believe the State Association has done a good job toward checking "overemphasis" by limiting schools to 21 basketball games, banning post-season games and limiting schools to two games a week during the regular season.

We can't understand such a statement coming from a high school principal because Maryland's program was set up by a committee composed of superintendents, high school principals, county supervisors and school athletic coaches. And the state fully abides by National Federation rules.

WHEN BOB PENCE connected for 23 points in last Sunday's game which the Old Germans lost to the Broadway Clowns he upped his 7-year total to 2,733 tallies, an average of 14.5 points per contest.

Since starting his local pro career with the Amvets during the 1946-47 season, Pence has figured in 188 of the 196 games played by the Amvets, Dukes, Spas and Old Germans and is credited with 1,150 field goals and 433 conversions in 595 tries at the charity line for a foul shooting average of .728.

Lou Bell has played in 192 of the 196 games over a seven-year span and has racked up 2,089 points. During the first five seasons he played in 148 consecutive games.

Pence has led the local quint in scoring six of the seven years. "Whitey" Mathewson, the New Jerseyite, paced the scorers here several years ago.

THE LONGEST winning streak credited to any of the pro teams that have performed here the past seven seasons was 14 in home and away games by "Bobby" Cavanaugh's Amvets in 1946-47. They were stopped in Washington, D. C., by the Cliftons at Uline Arena. Their 11-game string at home was snapped by the New York Rens.

JACK MAYO, outfielder, whose dad is district representative of the United Mine Workers here, has been mentioned as Phillies' trading bait for Ralph Kiner of the Pirates.

A story several days ago listed Mayo, Mel Clark, outfielder, Paul Stuffel, pitcher, Eddie Waitkus and cash as the Phils' offer for Kiner.

NORMAN GERDEMAN writes from Monterey, Calif., that he received a clipping of an "As You Were" article about Phil Fleming and adds that it brought back memories of way back to even the Midget League.

"I will say that I have been around plenty and I have not as yet met a prospect as good as Phil," Norm writes. "He really had it until he injured his arm while pitching for LaSalle. There is no doubt he would have made good in organized ball if it hadn't been for that misfortune.

"We have our first baseball practice tomorrow."

Gerdeman, who played with Fleming on the American Legion world junior championship team of 1934, is now with the Monterey Peninsula Merchants Baseball Club of the Mission League, California's oldest circuit.

MOOREFIELD High School is the only scholastic team to hit the century mark in points scored in a single game this season. The Yellow Jackets beat Franklin, 100-63, last Saturday. The next highest score was Davis High's 95-51 win over Harman.

On the collegiate side, Potomac State was on the short end in two games in which West Liberty topped the century mark. The scores were 102-68 and 107-74.

LAST AUGUST 30 at Saratoga, a 20-to-1 shot won the first race. The horse, Our Topper, was bred on Long Island and a horse-historian went to his trainer, Jack Lawrence, to obtain a detail or two about Our Topper's upbringing.

"Please write a sentence about the jockey and say he gave Our Topper a good ride," Lawrence said. "The boy is having trouble getting mounts."

This same jockey was seen at Hialeah Park in Florida the other day in a large gleaming automobile that was dripping with chromium. Apprentice Willie Lester, Our Topper's rider last August 30, was at the wheel. He's no longer having trouble getting mounts.

He was asked about the state of his finances six long months ago at Saratoga.

"I was having trouble hustling coffee money, "Little Willie said. "Mr. Lawrence was very kind to me."

Lester hails from Cass in Poca Lontas county, W. Va.

Perini Blocks Move To Shift St. Louis Club

Braves Don't Want Browns In Milwaukee

SARASOTA, Fla., March 3 (AP)—The Boston Braves were reported today to be blocking a move for immediate transfer of the St. Louis Browns' American League baseball franchise to Milwaukee.

Bill Veeck, head of the Browns, is ready and eager to move and Milwaukee is beckoning him with a new $5,000,000 stadium, according to reports, but Lou Perini, president of the Braves, says, "No."

Perini's voice is a big one in any such negotiations. His Braves own 90 per cent of the Milwaukee Brewers of the American Association, who have territorial rights.

Meanwhile, Veeck rushed here from Miami for a meeting with Will Harridge, president of the American League, heightening speculation of an impending shift although both men insisted there was nothing to it.

Veeck maintained his visit had nothing to do with the proposed franchise transfer and Harridge commented succinctly: "I don't foresee any change of franchises in the near future."

Yet Russ Lynch, sports editor of the Milwaukee Journal, reported in a signed story that the Braves had been offered $500,000 compensation if they'd agree to move the Milwaukee AA franchise to Toledo, but this was turned down cold.

Lynch painted this involved picture of the behind-the scenes negotiations aimed at putting the Browns into Milwaukee before the flag goes up on the 1953 season:

Eagles Sign Michels

PHILADELPHIA, March 3 (AP)—The Philadelphia Eagles of the National Football League today announced the signing of John Michels, star guard from the University of Tennessee.

As You Were

(This is the 87th in a series of sketches with pictures of well known sport personalities of the past from the album of the Cumberland News Sports Editor. See if you can identify them by their photo.)

For approximately 25 years this colorful sports promoter was identified with basketball, baseball and soccer teams and live bird shooting in the Georges Creek section.

He managed a classy Barton Braves baseball team of the early 1920s whose personnel included Charles "Lefty" Dye, one of Allegany County's all-time greats, Frank "Warhorse" Muster, Johnny Foutz and Wilbur "Bub" Wells, all pitchers; Clarence Beeman and Clem Montgomery, catchers; George "Brindle" Long, "Hank" Gruber, "Shug" Doyle, Art Slocum and Marty Flynn, infielders, and Alvin Logsdon, Lucien Davis, Tommy McGuire and John "Chip" Grindle, outfielders.

Tommy McGuire, Clarence Keyes, Dennis Lashbaugh, Ross Bell, Babe Fazenbaker and Glenn Thompson were among the players on the Vivian Club basketball team that he managed.

He served as sponsor and purchaser of equipment for the great Barton High School soccer and basketball teams that functioned from 1920 to 1926. In fact, his barbershop was the main sporting headquarters in Barton for many years.

This man was the backer of Simeon Arnold, one of the Georges Creek's greatest live bird shooters. He also was associated with the Barton Braves soccer team in the old County League.

The fellow pictured here drove a team of horses in his younger days when he was in the grocery business established by his father. And for 30 years he conducted a barber shop in the up-creek town. In those days he was dubbed "Barton's Best Barber."

His name appears on a bronze plate on the door of the Allegany County Infirmary which was opened during his eight-year term as superintendent of the Allegany County Asylum and County Home.

He's a native of Barton but now resides in Cumberland.

What is his name?

He is Robert Workman, "Bob," champion ship basketball team. Smith, 911 Bedford Street, now employed at Fred Driscoll's Barber Shop, Johnson Street. The photo associated with Barton High School's first W.M.I. League was taken in 1923 when "Bob" was

Wynn And Doby To Talk Salary

TUCSON, Ariz., March 3 (AP) — Pitcher Early Wynn and Centerfielder Larry Doby both told General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Cleveland Indians today they would come here shortly to argue salary.

For the first week of the Tribe's spring practice Wynn has stayed home in Florida and Doby has remained in New Jersey. Each has been offered a raise but wants a bigger one. Current guesses were Doby is shooting for $35,000 and Wynn for $40,000.

Salem Beaten By Methodists At Frostburg

Drop 44-42 Contest In Church Playoffs

FROSTBURG, March 3 — Frostburg Methodist rallied in the second half to edge Salem Reformed 44 to 42 tonight in an opening round playoff game in the Frostburg Church Basketball League before a slim crowd in the Beall High gym.

The Methodist aggregation thus joins St. Paul's Lutheran, 50-40 victor last night over Congregational in another first round battle, in the semi-finals of the six-team playoffs.

Salem Holds Lead

Salem, fifth team in the final standings during regular season play, nearly knocked Frostburg Methodist out of the playoffs in tonight's battle, leading the Methodists until four minutes of play had passed in the third quarter.

Salem led 10-8 and 19-15 at the close of the first two periods but Frostburg knotted the count at 25-all on John Bond's field goal. Bond then put the winners ahead to stay 27-25 with a pair of foul tosses.

Frostburg held a 33-30 lead at the end of the third stanza and the fourth period was nip and tuck until the final whistle.

The Methodists built their margin to 39-33, largest lead held by either team in the game, with 3½ minutes to play. Lee Lehr then connected with a goal and converted when fouled to cut the margin to 39-36.

Salem's Bill Groves pulled the losers within one point with a set shot before Bond scored for the Methodists. Charles Hunter tallied twice at the foul line for Salem with 40 seconds remaining to make it 41-40 Frostburg. Dave Linn's field goal and foul toss then gave Frostburg a 44-40 lead to clinch the victory. Groves closed out the scoring with a pair of fouls with seconds remaining for Salem.

Bond Leads Scorers

Bond paced the victors with 17 points while Groves had 15 for Salem. Eddie Thorp played a good floor game for the losers and contributed 10 points.

Thursday's final opening round game will pit St. Michael's against Midland Methodist at 7:30 in the Beall gym. Lou Baker and Ray Hull will officiate. Following the end of Thursday's game a drawing will be held between the victor and Frostburg Methodist and St. Paul's Lutheran. The team getting the bye will advance to the finals next week while the remaining two teams will meet in the semi-final engagement at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday. The lineups:

Death Takes Clyde Milan, Nats' Coach

Collapses At Orlando, Stole 88 Bases In 1912

ORLANDO, Fla., March 3 (AP)—Clyde Milan, 65-year-old coach with the Washington Senators, died late today from a heart attack.

Clyde Milan
Senators

Milan collapsed in the Washington dressing room after a fungo hitting workout with the infielders in the 80-degree heat. An ambulance was called and took him to Orange County Hospital. He died little more than an hour later.

Milan came up the big leagues in 1907 and was a longtime star with Washington team in center field.

After his retirement as a player, he won pennants managing teams at Birmingham and Memphis in the Southern Association.

For the most of the last two decades Milan was the first base coach of the Senators.

Milan was one of the great base stealers of all time.

Over a 10-year span he averaged 45 stolen bases a year. He hit his peak in 1912, when he stole 88.

His record finally was broken by Ty Cobb, who stole 96.

Alvin Dark Agrees To 2-Year Contract

PHOENIX, Ariz., March 3 (INS)—Shortstop Alvin Dark ended his holdout status with the New York Giants today and agreed to a two-year "compromise" contract.

The Giants' captain, last man on the team to come to terms, agreed to a two-year contract calling for a reported $32,500 a season. The agreement was reached in a telephone talk with President Horace Stoneham.

Manager Leo Durocher announced that Dark is scheduled to leave his Lake Charles, Ia., home for the training site "on the first available plane."

Churches, Mile Tracks Fight Extra Race Days

ANNAPOLIS, March 3 (AP) — The big tracks, churches, horsemen and present racing commissioners all knocked today a bill to increase the number of racing days in Maryland and set up a $15,000-a-year czar of the sport.

The only support for any phase of the many-sided bill came from a minority of the minor tracks and harness promoters. They said they wanted more racing days.

The first word of support for more days came near the end of a long Senate Judiciary Committee hearing. John H. Zink of Timonium said his track was in favor of raising the number of days at the minor tracks from 10 to 12.

Before Zink spoke up, Edward T. Farrell Jr., president of the five-half-mile tracks, didn't even mention the extra days. He said the association of half-milers wanted only to oppose being forced to set aside one half per cent of its take for improvements. The big tracks now are required to do so.

Maxim Favored In Go Tonight With Nardico

Danny Is Confident He Can Stop Ohioan

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, March 3 (AP) — Danny Nardico, hard-punching Tampa fighter who bolted into prominence last New Year's Eve on a technical knockout over Jake Lamotta, predicted today he will stop Joey Maxim in their 10-round battle Wednesday night at Miami Stadium.

Maxim's the guy I want," said the former Marine. "I'll take him like I took Lamotta, and that ought to get me a crack at Archie Moore's light heavyweight title."

The fight will be televised nationally (CBS) starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

In the event of rain, it will be re-scheduled for Wednesday, March 11, and a fight in Washington, D. C. between Holly Mims and Willie Troy will be substituted on the television network.

Maj. W. H. Peeples Jr., co-promoter with the International Boxing Club, predicted the fight would draw 12,000 live fans and a gross gate of $40,000. Each fighter will receive 30 per cent of the gate and 30 per cent of the television receipts, which have not been announced.

Odds, which started at 2 to 1 favoring Maxim, were shortening as support for Nardico came from fans impressed by the beating he gave Lamotta. The odds were expected to level off at about 7 to 5 for Maxim at fight time.

Nardico was an 11-5 underdog when he delivered a smashing right-hand blow that flattened Lamotta in the seventh round. It was the first time the Bronx Bull had been floored in his career of 102 fights. Lamotta was unable to come out for the eighth.

Maxim, on the comeback trail after losing his light heavyweight crown to Moore, predicted he would win easily. The fight means a lot to Joey because, as his manager, Jack Kearns, put it; "if we lose this one, we're dead."

Four Homers Mark Dodgers' Slugfest

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 3 (AP) —Brooklyn hitters caught up with the pitchers in Dodgertown today as the "phenoms" outslugged the "Regulars," 13-11, in a six-inning brawl which saw four hurlers rocked for 25 hits.

Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Don Thompson, the first entry in leftfield, hit homers for the Regulars. Pitcher Ronnie Lee, also the top moundsman of the day, and Wayne Belardi hit circuit blows for the winners.

Lee, a lefthanded ex-GI, allowed two runs on three hits for four innings. Ronnie Negray, Glenn Mickens and Bob Milliken all were hit hard.

Yanks Pick Hurlers For Two Exhibitions

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. March 3 (AP)—Casey Stengel today named the six pitchers who will work in the New York Yankees' first two exhibition games, both against the St. Louis Cardinals here Saturday and Sunday.

Johnny Sain, 35-year-old veteran, and Rookies Bob Wiesler and Al Cicotte face the National Leaguers in the Grapefruit League opener. Righthander Jim McDonald and Southpaws Art Schallock and Bill Miller are Sunday's nominees.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP) — Caught short:

If you are wondering how they dream up those names for race horses, this might give you an idea: Straight Face, winner of the Flamingo at Hialeah last Saturday, was given that label because its dam was named Expression, which was named for the grand dam, Never Change. Dead Pan would have been apt, too. The USGA has recognized the decreased value of the dollar. Amateurs now may receive merchandise prizes valued up to $150. Used to be $100.

If you are a hunch player you probably would consider putting a bob or two on Gulf Stream to win the $100,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park March 21. A few years ago Santa Claus won the Santa Claus Handicap Christmas Day, Black Pepper won the Sen. Pepper Handicap, Irish Sun won the St. Patrick's Day Handicap, and Little Bunny won the day before Easter. Bobby Locke will return to this country again this year to pick up any golf gold that might have eluded him on previous visits.

So you think basketball is a young man's game? Al Cervi, playing pilot of the Syracuse Nationals, recently observed his 36th birthday. This is his 19th season as a pro, and although it may be his last he hasn't said "positively." Fred Corcoran nominates these golfers as the greatest putters of all time: Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Bobby Jones, Ben Hogan and (surprise) Fred Wright. Wright seven times amateur champ of Massachusetts, has been named by George Von Elm as the greatest putter he's ever seen.

Sgt. Pat McMurtry, Tacoma amateur rated by his coach, Homer Amundsen, as a future world heavyweight champion, recently won two service tournaments in Korea. Pat has a brother, Mike, whom Amundsen rates right alongside Pat in ability. If Pat should one day win the title, wonder what would happen if his brother was the leading contender? A bow to Coach John (Honey) Russell, whose Seton Hall basketball team was stopped by Dayton after winning 27 straight. Instead of giving out with a "We wuz robbed" Russell frankly admitted his team was outplayed.

Maxim Favored In Go Tonight With Nardico

Danny Is Confident He Can Stop Ohioan

By BEN FUNK

MIAMI, March 3 (AP) — Danny Nardico, hard-punching Tampa fighter who bolted into prominence last New Year's Eve on a technical knockout over Jake Lamotta, predicted today he will stop Joey Maxim in their 10-round battle Wednesday night at Miami Stadium.

Maxim's the guy I want," said the former Marine. "I'll take him like I took Lamotta, and that ought to get me a crack at Archie Moore's light heavyweight title."

The fight will be televised nationally (CBS) starting at 10 p.m. (EST).

In the event of rain, it will be re-scheduled for Wednesday, March 11, and a fight in Washington, D. C. between Holly Mims and Willie Troy will be substituted on the television network.

Maj. W. H. Peeples Jr., co-promoter with the International Boxing Club, predicted the fight would draw 12,000 live fans and a gross gate of $40,000. Each fighter will receive 30 per cent of the gate and 30 per cent of the television receipts, which have not been announced.

Odds, which started at 2 to 1 favoring Maxim, were shortening as support for Nardico came from fans impressed by the beating he gave Lamotta. The odds were expected to level off at about 7 to 5 for Maxim at fight time.

Nardico was an 11-5 underdog when he delivered a smashing right-hand blow that flattened Lamotta in the seventh round. It was the first time the Bronx Bull had been floored in his career of 102 fights. Lamotta was unable to come out for the eighth.

Maxim, on the comeback trail after losing his light heavyweight crown to Moore, predicted he would win easily. The fight means a lot to Joey because, as his manager, Jack Kearns, put it; "if we lose this one, we're dead."

Four Homers Mark Dodgers' Slugfest

VERO BEACH, Fla., March 3 (AP)—Brooklyn hitters caught up with the pitchers in Dodgertown today as the "phenoms" outslugged the "Regulars," 13-11, in a six-inning brawl which saw four hurlers rocked for 25 hits.

Jackie Robinson, Duke Snider and Don Thompson, the first entry in leftfield, hit homers for the Regulars. Pitcher Ronnie Lee, also the top moundsman of the day, and Wayne Belardi hit circuit blows for the winners.

Lee, a lefthanded ex-GI, allowed two runs on three hits for four innings. Ronnie Negray, Glenn Mickens and Bob Milliken all were hit hard.

Whitney Martin's SPORTS TRAIL

NEW YORK, March 3 (AP) — Caught short:

If you are wondering how they dream up those names for race horses, this might give you an idea: Straight Face, winner of the Flamingo at Hialeah last Saturday, was given that label because its dam was named Expression, which was named for the grand dam, Never Change. Dead Pan would have been apt, too. The USGA has recognized the decreased value of the dollar. Amateurs now may receive merchandise prizes valued up to $150. Used to be $100.

If you are a hunch player you probably would consider putting a bob or two on Gulf Stream to win the $100,000 Florida Derby at Gulfstream Park March 21. A few years ago Santa Claus won the Santa Claus Handicap Christmas Day, Black Pepper won the Sen. Pepper Handicap, Irish Sun won the St. Patrick's Day Handicap, and Little Bunny won the day before Easter. Bobby Locke will return to this country again this year to pick up any golf gold that might have eluded him on previous visits.

So you think basketball is a young man's game? Al Cervi, playing pilot of the Syracuse Nationals, recently observed his 36th birthday. This is his 19th season as a pro, and although it may be his last he hasn't said "positively." Fred Corcoran nominates these golfers as the greatest putters of all time: Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Bobby Jones, Ben Hogan and (surprise) Fred Wright. Wright seven times amateur champ of Massachusetts, has been named by George Von Elm as the greatest putter he's ever seen.

Sgt. Pat McMurtry, Tacoma amateur rated by his coach, Homer Amundsen, as a future world heavyweight champion, recently won two service tournaments in Korea. Pat has a brother, Mike, whom Amundsen rates right alongside Pat in ability. If Pat should one day win the title, wonder what would happen if his brother was the leading contender? A bow to Coach John (Honey) Russell, whose Seton Hall basketball team was stopped by Dayton after winning 27 straight. Instead of giving out with a "We wuz robbed" Russell frankly admitted his team was outplayed.

Secondary Road Control Sought By Counties

The legislative committee of the State Association of County Commissioners has unanimously voted to give the counties jurisdiction over funds for secondary roads in the state's proposed 12-year multi-million dollar program.

This information was received by the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday from Ralph L. Lowman, chairman of the legislative committee and head of the Anne Arundel County Commissioners.

Lowman urged the Allegany commissioners to attend a special hearing March 10 at 8 p. m. at the State House in Annapolis on the state's elaborate roads construction plans. Indications are that the Allegany commissioners will attend.

The committee head said: "It was felt that the state program for secondary roads is very elaborate and that much more could be accomplished if these funds were controlled by the counties."

In an analysis attached to their invitation of "road construction and reconstruction in the proposed 12-year program," the legislative committee noted:

"The study of the Maryland road system did not include the county road system of the various counties. The counties and incorporated towns have 13,382 miles of roads. The state road system comprises 4,736 miles of roads.

"Practically every county has many miles of roads within its system that are of equal importance to the state secondary roads system.

"The proposed 12-year program would allocate to the state for primary and secondary roads a sum of $568,000,000.

"During this period, new revenue of only $20,000,000 would be allocated to the counties and incorporated towns in the form of a proportionate share of 20 per cent of the 1-cent gas tax increase.

"During the 12-year period, slightly in excess of $20,000,000 of the $568,000,000 is to be used to reconstruct 2,208 miles of the state roads secondary system.

"It is suggested that in lieu of the proportionate shares of the one-cent gas tax allocation to the counties, that a flat sum of $500 per mile for each mile of county road and incorporate street, be allotted to the various counties each year for the 12-year period."

Cranford Gets Six Years On Burglary Counts

One of two men tried in Circuit Court yesterday in connection with a series of burglaries last February 1 and 2 which netted them almost $900 was sentenced by Associate Judge George Henderson to six years in the Maryland penitentiary on one charge and another six-year term was suspended.

He is James Irvin Cranford, 29, of Maryland Avenue, who was involved in burglaries at the Sunshine Feed Store, 214 South George Street; Perrin Building, 72 Pershing Street and the Law Building, 117 South Liberty Street. Cranford was also placed under parole for a period of 10 years.

The other accused man is Francis George Humbertson, 27, of Baker Street and Washington. The court decided to withhold sentencing of Humbertson until after a complete check can be made of his past in a Juvenile Court case. Humbertson, who has no police record, was involved in a case in Juvenile Court in which he was ordered to pay for the support of his child. Judge Henderson said he wanted to know the facts in this case before passing judgment.

Cranford has a long police record and Judge Henderson said no leniency could be extended. He also commented that Cranford also was dishonorably discharged from the Army. On the other hand, Humbertson had a good Army record during World War II.

The cases were prosecuted by State's Attorney Paul M. Fletcher. Edward J. Ryan was counsel for Humbertson while Harold E. Naughton represented Cranford.

Both men were tried on criminal information filed by Fletcher. The two accused men had waived their rights to action by the April grand jury on the charges.

At the feed store, approximately $600 in cash and checks were stolen from a metal box.

For centuries it has been considered an ill omen for sailors to whistle aboard ship. Actually, whistling might be mistaken for signals from the boatswain's whistle or pipe.

Long Suggests Salary Boost For Trial Magistrates Here

John J. Long, police and fire commissioner, has called for an increase in monthly pay for Cumberland's two trial magistrates who serve as Police Court magistrates.

In Monday's meeting of the Mayor and Council, Commissioner Long pointed out the Police Department feels Magistrates Donald W. Mason, J. Milton Dick and their substitute, Morris Barron, are doing "excellent jobs."

He said he feels the city payroll could stand giving the magistrates a raise from the current $75 a month they now receive.

Increased Previously

Arthur B. Gibson, city auditor, explained the city code calls for only a minimum of $50 a month, but does not set a maximum pay. Gibson said their pay was increased from $50 to $75 monthly under the administration of William V. Keegan as police and fire commissioner.

City Attorney Thomas B. Finan reported he would check into the legal point whether they could have their wages increased during their tenure of office.

All three come up for reappointment this spring, and all have been nominated by Governor McKeldin. Confirmation is necessary by the State Senate.

Engineer Reports

City Engineer Charles M. Nuzum, in other matters presented before the council, gave his March report. The 12 building permits issued by his office provided for $64,650 in construction work. Nuzum also listed four occupancy permits granted, along with two sewer permits.

The Water Department in February issued 37 new water taps for revenue of $2,250 and installed seven meters for $160 in fees.

The Mayor and Council approved Robert H. Meister as a regular member of the Fire Department. He completed his probationary period on February 18.

Eagles Plan Meeting

Mrs. Lucile Roeder, street commissioner, reported that in February 495 paved streets, 75 alleys, 28 catch basins and 11 manholes were cleaned by municipal workers.

A request for the Mayor and Council to place an ad in the program of the Maryland Eagles Convention was referred to William V. Keegan, finance commissioner.

Cumberland Aerie 245, according to Herman L. Myers, secretary, will be host to the state meeting June 12, 13 and 14.

Piedmont Asked To Help Pay For Gas Rate Fight

30-Day Limit Set On Weighbill Credit

PIEDMONT — All persons having coal weighed on the city scales will not be extended credit for this service beyond 30 days, it was ordered at the regular meeting of Mayor Allan L. Hill and the City Council Monday evening.

This order followed the suggestion of the West Virginia State auditor.

No parking signs to prohibit parking at any time in Kalbaugh's alley have arrived and will be erected.

The city clerk will notify officials of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company about an old B & O reservoir on West Hampshire Street, needing some repairs.

Mayor Hill read a letter from Mayor Chester Compton of Keyser, calling attention of a meeting of the Executive Committee of Mayor's working on the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company rate case.

The communication said the cost of fighting the case was $8,376, of which $3,236, has been paid, leaving a balance of $5,140. The treasurer has approximately $1,250 on hand, leaving about $3,900 to be raised.

Total cost of fighting the case amounted to about 43 per cent of the estimated cost, $19,500, which was allocated to the various population centers, Mayor Compton said.

He said the executive committee urges Piedmont to send 43 per cent of the amount originally allocated, which would amount to $645.

The Mayor and Council recently made an appeal to citizens for donations toward this fund. Only $4 has been received to date. Persons desiring to make contributions may leave them at the city clerk's office here.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 3—(INS)—Some of those talks at the William Perlberg house in Palm Springs between Bill and Bing Crosby revoled around "The Country Girl." I happen to know when Bing gets back from Europe and after he stars in "White Christmas" he will have the top role in "The Country Girl." This will be one of the important Perlberg-Seaton pictures of 1953.

Maybe you are wondering what about the music. Well, the play within the play will have music and, of course, the only and only Bing will sing the songs.

Bing is so pleased with "Little Boy Lost," a touching drama and something so different from anything he has ever done on the screen, he is very anxious to work again for the Perlberg-Seaton unit.

I had heard that Van Johnson and MGM were saying goodbye to each other, but I guess this was mostly talk. At any rate Van is being borrowed by Columbia from MGM to co-star with Brod Crawford.

They'll do "Rough Company," a musical, and Van, who started out as a dancer and had considerable success, will dance. He's taken off so much weight he should be able to dance without too much effort.

Charlie Farrell, the hottest Republican in 42 states—or one of the hottest—entertained Adlai Stevenson at luncheon at the Racquet Club Sunday.

Adlai, who is a tennis fan, wanted to meet Gussie Moran but Charlie couldn't find her. Later she telephoned. Gussie is tennis hostess at the Racquet Club and is representing Charlie while he's busy on "My Little Margie," his TV show.

Charlie told me that he was narrator on a picture with Gussie called "The Three-D Follies"—and how I love that title! His honor of Palm Springs made it for Sol Lesser.

When Billy Rose and Milton Berle walked into Lindy's in New York everyone stopped eating. Could be Uncle Miltie was discussing his ex, Joyce Mathews, whom he's never gotten out of his system.

I hear from a scout of mine in Florida that when he was there Miltie saw Joyce very often but very secretly. Maybe she's tired of waiting for Rose, whose troubles with his ex-wife, Eleanor Holm, stemmed from his association with Joyce.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dick Haymes is being seen everywhere in New York with Eileen McDonald, columnist for the Long Island Press. Wonder why Dick and Nora denied they were separating when I asked them before I went to New York.

Jack Clark and Betty Henan tied the knot at Tijuana over the weekend. Clark is the manager of Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke, and Betty is a ballet dancer and actress under contract to Paramount.

Janet Gaynor will make one of the awards at the Academy. It will be the first time she has made an appearance since she won the first Oscar ever given for "Seventh Heaven.

Paul Hartman, the dancer who was so heartbroken when he and his wife of 20 years separated, is marrying Ann Buckles, Broadway actress, March 14. She's appearing with Helen Hayes in "Mrs. McThing."

Rosemarie is being tested to play opposite her old pal, Jimmy Durante, in "I've Gotta Million Of Them." She'd be just great.

For the past 15 years, Robert Young and Mecca Graham have celebrated their birthdays together. This year the party was held at the Young home, all arranged by Betty (Mrs. Young).

Good to see so many of their old friends in a town where friends are often regarded too lightly.

Gail Patrick told me that she and Corny Jackson have adopted another child, a little boy six weeks old, named Tommy.

Syd Boehm, who's up for an Oscar for the best original story and screenplay for Paramount's "Atomic City," will have his old Journal-American gang pulling for him. They'll meet in a body to watch the telecast.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Serge Kogan — Serge Kogan — Schiaparelli

'Copter Brings New Twist To Ancient Tradition Of Sea

BY ROBERT J. GUERINK
Written for Central Press

A new twist was given to an old tradition recently, when the U. S. Navy supply ship Grommet Reefer went down in angry seas which smashed her on the rocks off Leghorn, Italy.

Instead of being the last man to hit the churning waters, the skipper of the Grommet Reefer was the last man to take to the air—by way of a rescuing helicopter from a nearby carrier.

The tradition is as old as the sea itself: when the call is sounded to man the lifeboats, the captain sticks with his ship as long as he can, until he is the only man left aboard.

It's a heartbreaker when the "old man" makes his last decision to leave. When all hope was gone for the bomb-blasted American carrier Lexington during the Battle of the Coral Sea in May, 1942, Capt. Frederick C. Sherman lingered in torment on his doomed, burning ship. Then he went to an emergency cabin, and came out wearing a cap loaded with dazzling, brand new gold braid.

"I hear there's not to be any more gold braid until after the war," he wryly told one of his subordinates. "I wouldn't like to have to use that yellow cotton substitute. Thought I'd better save my best one."

A rope was hanging over the Lexington's side, but Sherman wasn't in any hurry. When his officers told him the ship might blow up any minute, he didn't seem a bit fazed, and was slow in getting to the rope. "I was just thinking," he mused before going over, "wouldn't I look silly if I left this ship and the fires went out?"

In the autumn of 1942, the carrier Wasp was mortally hit by three Japanese torpedoes and the order to abandon ship was given. Soon the only men left were the captain and the rear admiral commanding the task force.

For a few moments, it was Alphonse and Gaston: who would be the last to go, the ship's captain or his superior? As the Wasp settled deeper and deeper into the water, the two men tossed a coin. The captain—and the tradition of the sea—won; the skipper was the last man over the side.

Sometimes the captain stays with his ship all the way. When the Cunard liner Lusitania was torpedoed on May 7, 1915, with 1,924 passengers aboard, Capt. W. T. Turner put on a life belt—and remained in the wheelhouse. "I stood on the bridge when it sank," he said later, "and the Lusitania went down under me. My watch stopped at 2:36 a. m."

However, the sea wanted the Lusitania, not her captain. Turner was spewed up to the water's surface, where he grabbed an oar, then a deck chair, and hung on for three hours until he was picked up—a saddened, broken man who never again held a command on the ocean.

The proudest captain of them all on April 14,1912, was E. J. Smith, master of the Titanic, then the largest ship in the world. The next day the Titanic struck an iceberg, and only 705 of over 2,000 passengers were saved.

In the words of one survivor: "The water had risen slowly and was now to the floor of the bridge. Then it was at Captain Smith's waist. I saw him no more." A seaman later said that Smith had been washed up near a raft carrying 35 persons, but declined to be taken on. "Goodby, boys," he told them. "I'm going to follow the ship!"

Even when his vessel was foundering in a gale between Havana and New York on Sept. 12, 1857, Capt. William Lewis Herndon of the paddle steamer Central America had a lot to live for. He was only 44, extremely young for a captain those days, and had gained much fame for his explorations of the Amazon river.

If he could have seen into the future through the wild spray swirling over his decks, he would have seen his daughter Ellen marrying a future President of the United States—Chester A. Arthur. However, as a rescue ship stood by for the Central America's 474 passengers and 101 crew members, Herndon's only thought was for his sinking ship.

Herndon gave his watch to one of the last passengers—for his wife. "Give it to her," he said, "and tell her . . . tell her—from me." With that, he went back to the bridge and took off the oilskin cover that concealed the insigna on his cap. Bracing himself against the vessel's list, he waived his hand and was gone as the Central America turned over.

Everyone knows the story of Capt. Kurt Carlsen of the Flying Enterprise, who just a year ago, on Jan. 19, 1952, crawled out on the funnel of his capsized freighter and jumped for safety only when the sea started pouring through the open stack.

During his last few days aboard, he had shaken off his loneliness by reading a book, The Seaman and the Law, until the mate from a rescue tug joined him in his vigil.

That book did not contain the law that made Captain Carlsen stay with the Flying Enterprise to the end. However, it is the strongest unwritten law in the world.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—If you live to be old and wise and sad enough, and see enough dear friends shuffle off this mortal coil, you learn one thing: there is no way to bring them back.

You can carve them in stone or say prayer to them once a year, in tenderness and recollection, but the laugh, the smile, the voice, the light in an eye—these are gone for good.

I learned it over again yesterday morning when I stopped by at the Museum of the City of New York, a quiet place full of oil paintings of men in wigs and all the other relics that collectors keep to remind them of days of glory. They have set aside one room in the museum, until April, to remember Gertrude Lawrence.

They have called the exhibit "A Star Danced," after Gertie's autobiographical book, and I entered it with the feeling that maybe, through some magical process, I would be able to feel myself once more in her presence.

I do not know why men do this, why they hope illogically that some day they will awaken to find that someone they loved has been reborn, but they do, they do. I suppose that to most of us death is so flat, so final, so incomprehensible, that we are reluctant to accept it.

If there is a way to bring them back, the museum has hit upon it. They have filled a room with posters of Gertie's wonderful days in the theater, and they have built a small room within the room to imitate her dressing room. Here, things are strewn around as if Miss Gertie just has stepped out for a moment and will be right back. However, the moment is so long.

The vanity drawer is half open, and a wispy green handkerchief with "GL" on it in gold hangs out. There is an ivory-backed hairbrush, the familiar eyeglasses—she always was almost as blind as the proverbial bat—peeping from a case, a pair of blue slippers under the vanity, a portable radio opened and ready to play, costumes for "The King and I" hung on a rack and a bunch of lilies-of-the-valley in a small vase on a small table.

Keys to cities are hung on the wall, including a big white wooden one from Boy's Town. On the wall, pictures of Shaw, General MacArthur and Gertie's beloved theatrical pal, Noel Coward, look down.

On other pegs are hung the various service uniforms—Red Cross, etc.—she wore during the last war, along with the mortar board she wore when some college or other conferred on her an honorary degree.

Outside, on the outer walls, are photographs and playbills that remind you of the enchantment she brought to the people when the curtain went up. "Skylark", "Private Lives", "Tonight at 8:30", "Pygmalion", "Susan and God"—all of them.

Over there are photos of "Candle-Light"; you look and see Gertie with Leslie Howard, somebody else who made magic in the theater until an accurate German machine-gunner delivered the plane in which he was a passenger to the bottom of the English channel.

Here are pictures of her with "dear Noel" in "Private Lives". I wonder if anyone but those two could have spoken so spectacularly such whimsical dialogue as "Have you ever crossed the Sahara on a camel?" "Frequently."

There are letters from great men and women—waspish notes from Shaw, warm notes from Gerald duMaurier — and one little pink letter written from Brighton that she must have treasured most of all. "Please excuse the way I wrote my letter. I only noticed it when I finished it," it concludes. It was written Feb. 6, 1928, by her daughter Pamela.

I looked at it all. I stood before the dressing room for a long time and tried to see Gertie again, tried to picture her as she was when I lunched with her early last summer in her quiet house in the East 60s and virtually held my breath while she talked theater, so lovingly. However, it wasn't any use.

It was just a room, a room full of framed pictures and silken gowns and the sunlight coming in from Fifth Avenue outside. I couldn't bring her back, so I stopped, at last, and went down the marble staircase and out into the sunlight that once was hers, too.

'Reign Of Terror' Probed, Florida Newspaper Says

MIAMI, Fla., March 3 (AP)—The Miami Herald says "a reign of terror perhaps unprecedented in in Florida's history" is being investigated by a federal grand jury.

The paper says the "reign of terror" involves "numerous acts of violence in the central part of the state," some of which never have been publicized.

"These incidents include beatings of White and Negroes, men and women, deaths in some cases resulting from injuries received in beatings, and dynamiting of an Orlando store," the Herald reports.

The story said the jury is probing the activities of two Ku Klux Klan klaverns in Orlando.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, March 3—(INS)—Some of those talks at the William Perlberg house in Palm Springs between Bill and Bing Crosby revoled around "The Country Girl." I happen to know when Bing gets back from Europe and after he stars in "White Christmas" he will have the top role in "The Country Girl." This will be one of the important Perlberg-Seaton pictures of 1953.

Maybe you are wondering what about the music. Well, the play within the play will have music and, of course, the only and only Bing will sing the songs.

Bing is so pleased with "Little Boy Lost," a touching drama and something so different from anything he has ever done on the screen, he is very anxious to work again for the Perlberg-Seaton unit.

I had heard that Van Johnson and MGM were saying goodbye to each other, but I guess this was mostly talk. At any rate Van is being borrowed by Columbia from MGM to co-star with Brod Crawford.

They'll do "Rough Company," a musical, and Van, who started out as a dancer and had considerable success, will dance. He's taken off so much weight he should be able to dance without too much effort.

Charlie Farrell, the hottest Republican in 42 states—or one of the hottest—entertained Adlai Stevenson at luncheon at the Racquet Club Sunday.

Adlai, who is a tennis fan, wanted to meet Gussie Moran but Charlie couldn't find her. Later she telephoned. Gussie is tennis hostess at the Racquet Club and is representing Charlie while he's busy on "My Little Margie," his TV show.

Charlie told me that he was narrator on a picture with Gussie called "The Three-D Follies"—and how I love that title! His honor of Palm Springs made it for Sol Lesser.

When Billy Rose and Milton Berle walked into Lindy's in New York everyone stopped eating. Could be Uncle Miltie was discussing his ex, Joyce Mathews, whom he's never gotten out of his system.

I hear from a scout of mine in Florida that when he was there Miltie saw Joyce very often but very secretly. Maybe she's tired of waiting for Rose, whose troubles with his ex-wife, Eleanor Holm, stemmed from his association with Joyce.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

Dick Haymes is being seen everywhere in New York with Eileen McDonald, columnist for the Long Island Press. Wonder why Dick and Nora denied they were separating when I asked them before I went to New York.

Jack Clark and Betty Henan tied the knot at Tijuana over the weekend. Clark is the manager of Jimmy Van Heusen and Johnny Burke, and Betty is a ballet dancer and actress under contract to Paramount.

Janet Gaynor will make one of the awards at the Academy. It will be the first time she has made an appearance since she won the first Oscar ever given for "Seventh Heaven."

Paul Hartman, the dancer who was so heartbroken when he and his wife of 20 years separated, is marrying Ann Buckles, Broadway actress, March 14. She's appearing with Helen Hayes in "Mrs. McThing."

Esther Williams will name her baby Julie if it's a girl—and she's certainly keeping her fingers crossed.

Rosemarie is being tested to play opposite her old pal, Jimmy Durante, in "I've Gotta Million Of Them." She'd be just great.

For the past 15 years, Robert Young and Mecca Graham have celebrated their birthdays together. This year the party was held at the Young home, all arranged by Betty (Mrs. Young).

Good to see so many of their old friends in a town where friends are often regarded too lightly.

Gail Patrick told me that she and Corny Jackson have adopted another child, a little boy six weeks old, named Tommy.

Syd Boehm, who's up for an Oscar for the best original story and screenplay for Paramount's "Atomic City," will have his old Journal-American gang pulling for him. They'll meet in a body to watch the telecast.

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

Serge Kogan — Serge Kogan — Schiaparelli

'Copter Brings New Twist To Ancient Tradition Of Sea

BY ROBERT J. GUERINK
Written for Central Press

A new twist was given to an old tradition recently, when the U. S. Navy supply ship Grommet Reefer went down in angry seas which smashed her on the rocks off Leghorn, Italy.

Instead of being the last man to hit the churning waters, the skipper of the Grommet Reefer was the last man to take to the air—by way of a rescuing helicopter from a nearby carrier.

The tradition is as old as the sea itself: when the call is sounded to man the lifeboats, the captain sticks with his ship as long as he can, until he is the only man left aboard.

It's a heartbreaker when the "old man" makes his last decision to leave. When all hope was gone for the bomb-blasted American carrier Lexington during the Battle of the Coral Sea in May, 1942, Capt. Frederick C. Sherman lingered in torment on his doomed, burning ship. Then he went to an emergency cabin, and came out wearing a cap loaded with dazzling, brand new gold braid.

"I hear there's not to be any more gold braid until after the war," he wryly told one of his subordinates. "I wouldn't like to have to use that yellow cotton substitute. Thought I'd better save my best one."

A rope was hanging over the Lexington's side, but Sherman wasn't in any hurry. When his officers told him the ship might blow up any minute, he didn't seem a bit fazed, and was slow in getting to the rope. "I was just thinking," he mused before going over, "wouldn't I look silly if I left this ship and the fires went out?"

In the autumn of 1942, the carrier Wasp was mortally hit by three Japanese torpedoes and the order to abandon ship was given. Soon the only men left were the captain and the rear admiral commanding the task force.

For a few moments, it was Alphonse and Gaston: who would be the last to go, the ship's captain or his superior? As the Wasp settled deeper and deeper into the water, the two men tossed a coin. The captain—and the tradition of the sea—won; the skipper was the last man over the side.

Sometimes the captain stays with his ship all the way. When the Cunard liner Lusitania was torpedoed on May 7, 1915, with 1,924 passengers aboard, Capt. W. T. Turner put on a life belt—and remained in the wheelhouse. "I stood on the bridge when it sank," he said later, "and the Lusitania went down under me. My watch stopped at 2:36 a. m."

However, the sea wanted the Lusitania, not her captain. Turner was spewed up to the water's surface, where he grabbed an oar, then a deck chair, and hung on for three hours until he was picked up—a saddened, broken man who never again held a command on the ocean.

The proudest captain of them all on April 14,1912, was E. J. Smith, master of the Titanic, then the largest ship in the world. The next day the Titanic struck an iceberg, and only 705 of over 2,000 passengers were saved.

In the words of one survivor: "The water had risen slowly and was now to the floor of the bridge. Then it was at Captain Smith's waist. I saw him no more." A seaman later said that Smith had been washed up near a raft carrying 35 persons, but declined to be taken on. "Goodby, boys," he told them. "I'm going to follow the ship!"

Even when his vessel was foundering in a gale between Havana and New York on Sept. 12, 1857, Capt. William Lewis Herndon of the paddle steamer Central America had a lot to live for. He was only 44, extremely young for a captain those days, and had gained much fame for his explorations of the Amazon river.

If he could have seen into the future through the wild spray swirling over his decks, he would have seen his daughter marrying a future President of the United States—Chester A. Arthur. However, as a rescue ship stood by for the Central America's 474 passengers and 101 crew members, Herndon's only thought was for his sinking ship.

Herndon gave his watch to one of the last passengers—for his wife. "Give it to her," he said, "and tell her . . . tell her—from me." With that, he went back to the bridge and took off the oilskin cover that concealed the insigna on his cap. Bracing himself against the vessel's list, he waived his hand and was gone as the Central America turned over.

Everyone knows the story of Capt. Kurt Carlsen of the Flying Enterprise, who just a year ago, on Jan. 19, 1952, crawled out on the funnel of his capsized freighter and jumped for safety only when the sea started pouring through the open stack.

During his last few days aboard, he had shaken off his loneliness by reading a book, The Seaman and the Law, until the mate from a rescue tug joined him in his vigil.

That book did not contain the law that made Captain Carlsen stay with the Flying Enterprise to the end. However, it is the strongest unwritten law in the world.

My New York

by Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—If you live to be old and wise and sad enough, and see enough dear friends shuffle off this mortal coil, you learn one thing: there is no way to bring them back.

You can carve them in stone or say prayer to them once a year, in tenderness and recollection, but the laugh, the smile, the voice, the light in an eye—these are gone for good.

I learned it over again yesterday morning when I stopped by at the Museum of the City of New York, a quiet place full of oil paintings of men in wigs and all the other relics that collectors keep to remind them of days of glory. They have set aside one room in the museum, until April, to remember Gertrude Lawrence.

They have called the exhibit "A Star Danced," after Gertie's autobiographical book, and I entered it with the feeling that maybe, through some magical process, I would be able to feel myself once more in her presence.

I do not know why men do this, why they hope illogically that some day they will awaken to find that someone they loved has been reborn, but they do, they do. I suppose that to most of us death is so flat, so final, so incomprehensible, that we are reluctant to accept it.

If there is a way to bring them back, the museum has hit upon it. They have filled a room with posters of Gertie's wonderful days in the theater, and they have built a small room within the room to imitate her dressing room. Here, things are strewn around as if Miss Gertie just has stepped out for a moment and will be right back. However, the moment is so long.

The vanity drawer is half open, and a wispy green handkerchief with "GL" on it in gold hangs out. There is an ivory-backed hairbrush, the familiar eyeglasses—she always was almost as blind as the proverbial bat—peeping from a case, a pair of blue slippers under the vanity, a portable radio opened and ready to play, costumes for "The King and I" hung on a rack and a bunch of lilies-of-the-valley in a small vase on a small table.

Keys to cities are hung on the wall, including a big white wooden one from Boy's Town. On the wall, pictures of Shaw, General MacArthur and Gertie's beloved theatrical pal, Noel Coward, look down.

On other pegs are hung the various service uniforms—Red Cross, etc.—she wore during the last war, along with the mortar board she wore when some college or other conferred on her an honorary degree.

Outside, on the outer walls, are photographs and playbills that remind you of the enchantment she brought to the people when the curtain went up. "Skylark", "Private Lives", "Tonight at 8:30", "Pygmalion", "Susan and God"—all of them.

Over there are photos of "Candle-Light"; you look and see Gertie with Leslie Howard, somebody else who made magic in the theater until an accurate German machine-gunner delivered the plane in which he was a passenger to the bottom of the English channel.

Here are pictures of her with "dear Noel" in "Private Lives". I wonder if anyone but those two could have spoken so spectacularly such whimsical dialogue as "Have you ever crossed the Sahara on a camel?" "Frequently."

There are letters from great men and women—waspish notes from Shaw, warm notes from Gerald duMaurier — and one little pink letter written from Brighton that she must have treasured most of all. "Please excuse the way I wrote my letter. I only noticed it when I finished it," it concludes. It was written Feb. 6, 1928, by her daughter Pamela.

I looked at it all. I stood before the dressing room for a long time and tried to see Gertie again, tried to picture her as she was when I lunched with her early last summer in her quiet house in the East 60s and virtually held my breath while she talked theater, so lovingly. However, it wasn't any use.

It was just a room, a room full of framed pictures and silken gowns and the sunlight coming in from Fifth Avenue outside. I couldn't bring her back, so I stopped, at last, and went down the marble staircase and out into the sunlight that once was hers, too.

'Reign Of Terror' Probed, Florida Newspaper Says

MIAMI, Fla., March 3 (AP)—The Miami Herald says "a reign of terror perhaps unprecedented in in Florida's history" is being investigated by a federal grand jury.

The paper says the "reign of terror" involves "numerous acts of violence in the central part of the state," some of which never have been publicized.

"These incidents include beatings of White and Negroes, men and women, deaths in some cases resulting from injuries received in beatings, and dynamiting of an Orlando store," the Herald reports.

The story said the jury is probing the activities of two Ku Klux Klan klaverns in Orlando.

It is known the grand jury has been investigating the bomb killings of a Negro couple at Mims, Fla., dynamiting of the Carver village Negro housing project in Miami, and attempted dynamitings of synagogues and a Catholic church in Miami.

Radio And Television

by John Crosby

Soft Vs. Hard-Selling

I suppose of all the complaints that pass across this desk the one that comes most often, year in year out, is the noise level of the commercials. "We get our set adjusted to proper volume for comfortable listening," writes one reader, "only to have the commercials come through loud enough to blast us out of our chairs. It seems to me this is unnecessary and simply a matter of poor management in the control room."

John Crosby

No, it isn't poor management. It's a deliberate (and, in some ways, understandable) attempt by the sponsor to make sure you don't get any free entertainment without paying the price of listening to his pitch. This is a violation of the Federal Communications Commission regulations which insist that broadcasters maintain a consistent level of volume. Still, violations occur every half hour on most every radio and television station in the land and nothing is ever done about it.

I don't imagine anything ever will be done about it unless the folks themselves express their disapproval by patronizing those sponsors who use soft rather than hard-selling techniques. There is a trend in this direction. One of the most effective of all salesmen on the air is Arthur Godfrey, a man who never raises his voice much above the level of a hearty chuckle. Faye Emerson sold Pepsi-Cola by the boxcar, all in a dulcet whisper. You don't have to shout at people.

Not long ago, "Sponsor" magazine, which makes more sense than any other trade magazine, declared: "There is a growing number of broadcasters and advertisers who feel that the radio and TV audience is fed up with high pressure commercials.

"Listeners and viewers, this group contends, are either gripped by an immense boredom or are restraining themselves from bopping station executives over the head with their own microphones every time they hear shouting announcers and other hard-selling techniques."

"The group is small as yet and no one among them will stake his reputation on the opinion that they will in time become a majority. Indeed, some broadcasters are having a hard fight right now convincing advertisers that soft, cool, extra-mild commercials are good for the ears.

"Among those trying hardest to convince advertisers are the classical music stations. It seems to be axiomatic so far as audiences are concerned that Beethoven and painless commercials go hand in hand. Some stations like WQXR, New York have gone through the mill and find advertisers pre-sold on the advantages of non-irritating commercials. Others, like WBMS, couldn't sell the listener and therefore couldn't sell the sponsor.

In other words, the irritating, shouting, jingling commercial will continue as long as it is successful. And it will continue to be as successful as long as you folks buy the stuff—so that the ultimate responsibility rests with the viewers. You can hardly blame the advertiser for trying to attract attention. There is a fairly painless way of doing this, which is becoming increasingly popular.

That is by using a personality who is presumably attractive enough to win attention without yelling at us. Westinghouse has Betty Furness, probably the pioneer in this line of work. Amident has Dick Stark; Autolite (among others) has Rex Marshall; Lucky Strike has Dorothy Collins. They're all doing so well that many other sponsors are seeking attractive personalities who will be associated with their products.

The plain fact is that the popularity of a TV show is not always reflected in the sale of the product. The most popular on the air right now is "I Love Lucy"—but Philip Morris which sponsors it is not selling cigarets to nearly as many of the 43,000,000 people who are supposed to look at "Lucy" as they had hoped. Other shows, whose ratings are minute next to "Lucy," do much better at moving the stuff off the shelves.

Radio And Television

Soft Vs. Hard-Selling

I suppose of all the complaints that pass across this desk the one that comes most often, year in year out, is the noise level of the commercials. "We get our set adjusted to proper volume for comfortable listening," writes one reader, "only to have the commercials come through loud enough to blast us out of our chairs. It seems to me this is unnecessary and simply a matter of poor management in the control room."

John Crosby

No, it isn't poor management. It's a deliberate (and, in some ways, understandable) attempt by the sponsor to make sure you don't get any free entertainment without paying the price of listening to his pitch. This is a violation of the Federal Communications Commission regulations which insist that broadcasters maintain a consistent level of volume. Still, violations occur every half hour on most every radio and television station in the land and nothing is ever done about it.

I don't imagine anything ever will be done about it unless the folks themselves express their disapproval by patronizing those sponsors who use soft rather than hard-selling techniques. There is a trend in this direction. One of the most effective of all salesmen on the air is Arthur Godfrey, a man who never raises his voice much above the level of a hearty chuckle. Faye Emerson sold Pepsi-Cola by the boxcar, all in a dulcet whisper. You don't have to shout at people.

Not long ago, "Sponsor" magazine, which makes more sense than any other trade magazine, declared: "There is a growing number of broadcasters and advertisers who feel that the radio and TV audience is fed up with high pressure commercials.

"Listeners and viewers, this group contends, are either gripped by an immense boredom or are restraining themselves from bopping station executives over the head with their own microphones every time they hear shouting announcers and other hard-selling techniques."

"The group is small as yet and no one among them will stake his reputation on the opinion that they will in time become a majority. Indeed, some broadcasters are having a hard fight right now convincing advertisers that soft, cool, extra-mild commercials are good for the ears.

"Among those trying hardest to convince advertisers are the classical music stations. It seems to be axiomatic so far as audiences are concerned that Beethoven and painless commercials go hand in hand. Some stations like WQXR, New York have gone through the mill and find advertisers pre-sold on the advantages of non-irritating commercials. Others, like WBMS, couldn't sell the listener and therefore couldn't sell the sponsor.

In other words, the irritating, shouting, jingling commercial will continue as long as it is successful. And it will continue to be as successful as long as you folks buy the stuff—so that the ultimate responsibility rests with the viewers. You can hardly blame the advertiser for trying to attract attention. There is a fairly painless way of doing this, which is becoming increasingly popular.

That is by using a personality who is presumably attractive enough to win attention without yelling at us. Westinghouse has Betty Furness, probably the pioneer in this line of work. Amident has Dick Stark; Autolite (among others) has Rex Marshall; Lucky Strike has Dorothy Collins. They're all doing so well that many other sponsors are seeking attractive personalities who will be associated with their products.

The plain fact is that the popularity of a TV show is not always reflected in the sale of the product. The most popular on the air right now is "I Love Lucy"—but Philip Morris which sponsors it is not selling cigarets to nearly as many of the 43,000,000 people who are supposed to look at "Lucy" as they had hoped. Other shows, whose ratings are minute next to "Lucy," do much better at moving the stuff off the shelves.

Daily Bridge Lesson

by Shepard Barclay

COUP IN LOW CONTRACT

MOST of the standard plays, called by magnificent names like squeeze, throw-in and coup, come in the play of high contracts. True as that is of things which really occur at the bridge table, it is more emphatically so with hands chosen by writers on the game to illustrate those plays. The reason for the latter fact is simple. It is generally easier to demonstrate the definite need for such devices if the rest of the hand is a pretty clear-cut matter. Every such play, however, can develop in a low contract, and upon occasion every one of them does.

Can you imagine West passing his partner's heart raise? His side could have made 4-Hearts by very ordinary play. But the pair used a convention in which a single raise indicated a very mediocre holding; with a better one East should have first made a takeout in a minor suit, even though lacking biddable length, to be followed by his heart support. Another illustration of how warped conventions can cause mixups.

On seeing the dummy, South reckoned he could get a relatively fine result if he went down only one, losing no trick in trumps. West took in the heart K and Q, then shifted to the club 2, the A killing the K. The diamond A and Q disclosed the trump situation, showing North with a K-9 tenace over the J-8. Proceeding, South led the club 6, West scoring the J and Q and returning the heart A, on which the spade 3 was tossed as the diamond 3 ruffed. The spade 7 was led to the A and the heart 2 came back, the spade Q being discarded and the diamond 5 ruffing. On the club 10, the spade K was discarded.

Now, when the spade 10 was led, West had to play from the diamond J-8 before the K-9 in dummy, which therefore got the last two tricks by what might be called an over-ruffing trump coup, or something of the sort.

If East overcalls North's 1-Diamond with 1-Heart, how should the rest of the bidding go on this deal?

Famed Stuffed Cat Stolen Back

TREVIGLIO, Italy, March 2 (AP)—After seven centuries, the fame stuffed cat of Treviglio has been stolen back to neighboring Caravaggio—where it seemed to be heading anyway back in 1215 when the fight started.

To go back those seven centuries, one fine day an ordinary alley cat was seen strolling along the boundary between the two cities—and promptly was claimed by rival townsfolk on both sides.

Caravaggio seemed to have the best claim—for the cat's head was pointed toward that town and its tail toward Treviglio when it was seized. But the Trevigliese outnumbered their rivals and carried the animal off, after a fight in which a score were killed and injured.

The cat, finally stuffed, was put in proud display in one of Treviglio's ancient buildings.

But after all this time, a little band from Caravaggio slipped in last night on the anniversary of the event, and stole back the stuffed cat.

Treviglio threatens to take the case to court.

Underground Storage Of Gas Near Coal Mines Stirs Up Controversy

PITTSBURGH, March 2 (AP)—The coal mining and gas industries are squaring away for what may be a major controversy over the underground storage of gas near coal mines.

Coal operators say gas seeping into their mines from storage areas is creating the twin hazards of fire and explosion.

But officials of gas companies reply that there is no more danger from underground storage areas than there is from producing gas wells.

The problem arose after gas companies began to pump gas during the summer months into worked-out gas reservoirs. The gas is withdrawn from the sealed reservoirs during the winter months when demand outruns supply in many areas.

Over the nation, there are an estimated 140 such underground storage areas in 18 states from New York to California. The storage areas, called pools, are concentrated in Southwestern Pennsylvania—one of the richest and largest coal producing areas in the world. Coal men claim gas has been stored at high pressures under at least 10 operating mines near Pittsburgh.

After a secret Pittsburgh meeting of about 75 coal mining executives and engineers, the coal men issued a statement which called underground storage of gas near mines "a new and growing man-made menace" which "introduces hazards of unprecedented scope."

One such pool, they contended, will store about 65 million cubic feet of gas in a reservoir near Jeannette, Pa., 25 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Coal sources argue that gas companies pump gas into worked out reservoirs under greater pressure than the original rock pressure. After the stored gas is sealed in, the pressure forces the gas to seep along crevices and fissures in coal veins or rock strata and into coal mines.

U.S. Bureau of Mines reports, according to coal industry officials, show that several miners have been killed and injured in accidents resulting from the presence of natural gas or coke oven gas in coal mines. Sparks from mine locomotives or other equipment have set off explosions and fires.

One coal executive said safety of miners is the prime consideration. He is Vice President W. L. Affelder of the Emerald Coal and Coke Co., who said:

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:
A X Y D L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

COUP IN LOW CONTRACT

MOST of the standard plays, called by magnificent names like squeeze, throw-in and coup, come in the play of high contracts. True as that is of things which really occur at the bridge table, it is more emphatically so with hands chosen by writers on the game to illustrate those plays. The reason for the latter fact is simple. It is generally easier to demonstrate the definite need for such devices if the rest of the hand is a pretty clear-cut matter. Every such play, however, can develop in a low contract, and upon occasion every one of them does.

Can you imagine West passing his partner's heart raise? His side could have made 4-Hearts by very ordinary play. But the pair used a convention in which a single raise indicated a very mediocre holding; with a better one East should have first made a takeout in a minor suit, even though lacking biddable length, to be followed by his heart support. Another illustration of how warped conventions can cause mixups.

On seeing the dummy, South reckoned he could get a relatively fine result if he went down only one, losing no trick in trumps. West took in the heart K and Q, then shifted to the club 2, the A killing the K. The diamond A and Q disclosed the trump situation, showing North with a K-9 tenace over the J-8. Proceeding, South led the club 6, West scoring the J and Q and returning the heart A, on which the spade 3 was tossed as the diamond 3 ruffed. The spade 7 was led to the A and the heart 2 came back, the spade Q being discarded and the diamond 5 ruffing. On the club 10, the spade K was discarded.

Now, when the spade 10 was led, West had to play from the diamond J-8 before the K-9 in dummy, which therefore got the last two tricks by what might be called an over-ruffing trump coup, or something of the sort.

Underground Storage Of Gas Near Coal Mines Stirs Up Controversy

PITTSBURGH, March 2 (AP)—The coal mining and gas industries are squaring away for what may be a major controversy over the underground storage of gas near coal mines.

Coal operators say gas seeping into their mines from storage areas is creating the twin hazards of fire and explosion.

But officials of gas companies reply that there is no more danger from underground storage areas than there is from producing gas wells.

The problem arose after gas companies began to pump gas during the summer months into worked-out gas reservoirs. The gas is withdrawn from the sealed reservoirs during the winter months when demand outruns supply in many areas.

Over the nation, there are an estimated 140 such underground storage areas in 18 states from New York to California. The storage areas, called pools, are concentrated in Southwestern Pennsylvania—one of the richest and largest coal producing areas in the world. Coal men claim gas has been stored at high pressures under at least 10 operating mines near Pittsburgh.

After a secret Pittsburgh meeting of about 75 coal mining executives and engineers, the coal men issued a statement which called underground storage of gas near mines "a new and growing man-made menace" which "introduces hazards of unprecedented scope."

One such pool, they contended, will store about 65 million cubic feet of gas in a reservoir near Jeannette, Pa., 25 miles southwest of Pittsburgh.

Coal sources argue that gas companies pump gas into worked out reservoirs under greater pressure than the original rock pressure. After the stored gas is sealed in, the pressure forces the gas to seep along crevices and fissures in coal veins or rock strata and into coal mines.

U.S. Bureau of Mines reports, according to coal industry officials, show that several miners have been killed and injured in accidents resulting from the presence of natural gas or coke oven gas in coal mines. Sparks from mine locomotives or other equipment have set off explosions and fires.

One coal executive said safety of miners is the prime consideration. He is Vice President W. L. Affelder of the Emerald Coal and Coke Co., who said:

"This is not a competitive fuel battle, but a movement to make the mines a safer places to work."

Famed Stuffed Cat Stolen Back

TREVIGLIO, Italy, March 2 (AP)—After seven centuries, the fame stuffed cat of Treviglio has been stolen back to neighboring Caravaggio—where it seemed to be heading anyway back in 1215 when the fight started.

To go back those seven centuries, one fine day an ordinary alley cat was seen strolling along the boundary between the two cities—and promptly was claimed by rival townsfolk on both sides.

Caravaggio seemed to have the best claim—for the cat's head was pointed toward that town and its tail toward Treviglio when it was seized. But the Trevigliese outnumbered their rivals and carried the animal off, after a fight in which a score were killed and injured.

The cat, finally stuffed, was put in proud display in one of Treviglio's ancient buildings.

But after all this time, a little band from Caravaggio slipped in last night on the anniversary of the event, and stole back the stuffed cat.

Treviglio threatens to take the case to court.

Industrial Expansion Bill For Area Signed

Allegany, Garrett Measures Progress

Governor McKeldin yesterday signed a bill designed to aid in the industrial expansion of Allegany County.

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth Jr. said the bill will become effective on June 1, 1953.

In effect, the act will grant the same incentives, through tax exemptions, to expansions and additions made by industries of the county as are offered to new industries.

The industrial expansion bill is the second Allegany County bill to become law. The governor recently signed the first measure, the Westernport Charter Bill.

10-Year Exemptions

Delegate Whitworth said the bill provides 10-year tax exemptions for future additions and expansions completed after June 1, 1951, providing the assessable value of the project is more than $25,000.

No rebate in taxes is provided, and any taxes due in 1953 must be paid, according to terms of the bill.

Delegate Whitworth said the bill contains a limitation that no exemption will be granted for the replacement of obsolete machinery or buildings, except to the extent that such work might increase the assessable value of the properties.

The Allegany County Delegation-sponsored bill is modeled after a measure which has proved its worth in South Carolina and was planned to encourage county industries to expand here, rather than moving to other areas.

Back Wills Creek Bill

The Delegation yesterday issued a favorable report on House Bill 313, sponsored by Delegate Estel C. Kelley, which requires the city to keep Wills Creek clear of stagnation.

The bill requires the City Health Officer to take such steps as are necessary to halt stagnation in the stream and to abate the foul odors coming from it.

Enter Civil Service Bill

A delegation representing the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association and Local 812, Municipal Workers Union of Cumberland yesterday presented a proposed civil service bill to Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

A delegation spokesman said the city employes met with the Delegation briefly, but that the legislators did not read the proposal.

Seek Unified Bill

Meanwhile, the Mayor and Council and the Civil Service Commission will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. in City Hall to plan a unified Civil Service Board.

The city officials held a six-hour meeting Monday making revisions to the bill proposed by the two employe organizations and on Thursday will tackle a bill which was worked out following conferences between the Civil Service Board and the Mayor and Council, and which incorporates suggestions made by the city groups.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said the city wants to work out a bill which the city can support and that every effort will be made to work out a unified bill.

This meeting was planned yesterday morning, but plans were dropped after a quorum failed to turn up.

Enter Registration Bill

Introduced by the Delegates yesterday was House Bill 504, which directs the Board of Election Supervisors to schedule registration days in four communities of the county before each election.

Communities specified are Frostburg, Lonaconing, Westernport and Mt. Savage.

Passes Fire Bill

House Bill 419, which directs the Board of Allegany County Commissioners to pay $22,025 to volunteer fire companies in Allegany County, passed the House yesterday.

The bill will provide an increase in appropriation for all active volunteer fire companies, but does not boost the appropriation to two social companies.

JOSEPH L. LILLEY

Phone Company Appoints Lilley To New Position

Will Be In Charge Of Construction

Joseph L. Lilley has been transferred here from Baltimore by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company to assume duties as foreman supervisor construction.

He replaces L. E. Glaser, who was transferred to Hagerstown as foreman supervisor supplies, according to E. O. Robinson, outstate division construction superintendent with offices in Baltimore.

Lilley will be in charge of line and cable construction for Cumberland, Frostburg, Flintstone, Oakland, Accident, Friendsville and Kitzmiller and has six line foremen and one splicing foreman working under him.

He began working with the telephone company in 1941 and was employed as a splicer's helper and splicer at Baltimore for about 10 years. Later he became an engineering assistant and splicing foreman before his transfer here.

During World War II, he served in the U. S. Marine Corps. Enlisting October 15, 1942, he received basic training at Parris Island, S. C. and later attended a Field Wire Telephone School at Camp Lejeune, N. C.

His first overseas duty after leaving the West Coast was at Kiska and Adak in the Aleutian Islands, where he served for about three months.

S/Sgt. Lilley, a member of the 5th Amphibious Corps Signal Battalion, saw action in the Saipan-Tinian operations. He landed on the afternoon of D-Day at Iwo Jima and later received a personal citation for meritorious service on that island.

After serving with occupation forces in Japan for about four months. Sgt. Lilley returned to the United States and was discharged at Bainbridge in January of 1946.

While attending Catonsville High School, where he graduated in 1938, Lilley worked with the Ellicott City Times. He was active in sports during high school and starred as shortstop in baseball and softball.

A native of Oella, Md., near Catonsville, he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O. Lilley. He is married and the father of three children, Frances Louise, 6; Donald Joseph, 4½, and Robert Michael, 1½ years old.

He plans to move his family here this week to reside at 572 Patterson Avenue and expects to join SS. Peter and Paul parish. He is a member of St. Mark's Catholic Church in Catonsville at present and also a member of the Holy Name Society.

His favorite pastime is photography.

W.Va. Severance Tax Bill Not Recommended

Cat-And-Mouse Game Features Legislature

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—The West Virginia Legislature continued to play a cat-and-mouse game today with Gov. Marland's tax program.

The House Finance Committee made the latest move by bringing out the controversial severance tax bill without recommendation.

Sent To Committee

The action came in a meeting immediately after a House session at which another Marland tax proposal for an increased gasoline levy had been sent back to the Finance Committee.

The action also followed by less than 24 hours the Senate Finance Committee's vote last night to rule out any further consideration of the severance proposal by that body.

The severance tax would impose a 10-cents-per-ton levy on coal and similar imposts on other natural resources production.

Marland estimated the tax would yield $18,000,000 a year, to be earmarked for road and school purposes.

Prospects Dim

On the face of it, the House committee's new action seemed to add little to the apparently hopeless prospect that Marland's severance bill ever would be enacted.

Even should the house pass the measure, it normally then would have to go through the Senate Finance Committee before coming to the floor of that chamber.

The Senate finance group's decisive action last night left no doubt as to what would happen to any House severance tax bill sent before it.

The administration bill to increase the gasoline tax saw the light of day briefly in the House today before being hustled back to the Finance Committee by a 67-30 vote.

Democrats Join

Thirty-four Democrats, including Majority Leader Bowles, joined with the 33-member Republican delegation in voting to send the bill back to committee.

Gov. Marland had recommended the penny increase over the present five-cents-a-gallon gasoline excise tax, as a means of raising an additional $4,000,000 a year for the state's road program.

The Senate, devoting its session largely to amending a resolution to propose annual sessions of the Legislature in order to streamline

Date For School Bond Hearing To Be Unchanged

The Allegany County Delegation announced last night that the hearing on the $5,985,000 Allegany County school construction bill will be held in Annapolis Monday at 3:30 p. m., since previous commitments make it impossible to schedule a hearing here this weekend.

Delegate Charles M. See, chairman of the Delegation, said many of the officials who plan to be present at the hearing in Annapolis would be unable to fit a Cumberland visit into their schedules on such short notice.

And he added that since the bill is local legislation, additional delay is not desirable, since it might be lost in the last-minute rush which develops at each session of the Assembly.

Pullen To Attend

Delegates See said Dr. Thomas G. Pullen, Jr., state superintendent of schools, and members of the Department of Education staff, are scheduled to attend the hearing.

He said Dr. Pullen is anxious to learn the details of the Allegany County school building program.

Also scheduled to testify are officials of the Baltimore investment banking firm of Baker, Watts and Company. The firm has already stated the $5,985,000 could be raised over a six year period without jeopardizing the credit of the county.

Delegate See said the Delegation regrets it is impossible to hold the hearing here, but commented he was sure a representative group of citizens will attend the hearing.

He said the Delegation has received over 100 letters and telegrams relating to the measure, House Bill 441, and that all of the communications have been favorable. There has been no opposition expressed, he added.

Legislative Rush On

As late as yesterday noon, the Board of Allegany County Commissioners were attempting to have the hearing scheduled here over the weekend.

Officials of the Delegation said the legislative rush is underway at Annapolis and that the rest of the session will be rushed. They pointed out that about 900 bills have been introduced, and that few of them have gone through the legislative hoppers.

Today Marks Anniversary Of New Deal

Talk about the new Eisenhower administration probably has obscured the fact, but it was 20 years ago today that the New Deal era began with the inauguration of Franklin Delano Roosevelt for his first term as President of the United States.

Some of the most significant words in that FDR inaugural address are preserved in the Edward R. Murrow recordings of 12 years of history entitled "I Can Hear It Now."

"Our greatest primary task is to put people to work," Roosevelt said in that first inaugural address on a raw March 4 afternoon 20 years ago. There were then 15,000,000 Americans unemployed.

"First of all, let me assert my firm belief that the only thing we have to fear is hear itself . . . nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror which paralyzes needed effort to convert retreat into advance," Roosevelt stressed.

That was the last time an inauguration took place on March 4. Thereafter, under terms of the 20th Amendment to the Constitution, the inauguration has occurred on January 20. Another amendment, the 22d, has assured Roosevelt another distinction in American history. No other man ever will serve as President as long as he did, 12 years, one month and eight days. It now is illegal for a man to serve as President more than two terms.

Frostburg Tops Blood Unit Goal Despite Weather

The Frostburg Branch of Allegany County Chapter, American Red Cross, yesterday oversubscribed its blood quota for the regional bloodmobile visit, despite slippery streets and sidewalks caused by a steady, cold rainfall.

Mrs. J. B. Cobey, chairman of the Red Cross branch, said Frostburg topped its 150-pint blood quota with a collection of 165 productive pints.

Mrs. Cobey said that at 6 p. m., when the Johnstown, Pa., bloodmobile unit had to be closed, there were still many donors waiting to give blood. Although yesterday was one of Frostburg's worst winter days this year, Mrs. Cobey said, it was the most successful visit of the blood unit to Frostburg.

Officials reported that 46 of the donors were walk-ins at the American Legion Home on West Main Street, where the unit was located.

Glen Layman, West Main Street, was responsible for recruiting 33 persons as donors. Officials said Laymen's three-year old son, Anthony Richard, is a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital and his case requires frequent blood transfusions. Since the Baltimore hospital does not have the Red Cross free blood program, the local blood bank has been supplying the needed blood.

Mrs. Kathleen Todd is chairman of the recruitment, and working at the unit yesterday were eight nurses, five staff aides and many canteen volunteers.

Because of bad weather, Cumberland fell short of its 150-pint quota when the unit visited here Monday afternoon. Mrs. W. Lee Witherup, executive secretary of the Allegany County Chapter, said 132 persons contributed blood Monday and reported workers were pleased with the turnout on the bad day.

Walk-ins amounted to 36, Mrs. Witherup said, indicating that the program is getting to be generally known. There were a number of cancellations of appointments due to the widespread flu and virus infections of the past months, she explained.

W. J. Elliott Commissioned Lieutenant By U.S. Army

William J. Elliott Jr., 27, son of Rev. and Mrs. William J. Elliott Sr., 132 Bedford Street, has been commissioned a second lieutenant by the Army following graduation from OCS Artillery School at Fort Sill, Okla.

Lt. Elliott, who enlisted in the Army in 1948, plans to make the service his career. Prior to entering OCS and completing the six-months course, he was stationed at Frankfurt, Germany with the 709 MP Battalion where he served as a traffic accident investigator.

He spent about four years in Germany after receiving basic training at Camp Breckenridge, Ky. During World War II, Lt. Elliott was an engineer aboard various ships as a member of the Maritime Service.

At the age of 17 he left high school at Gaithersburg and joined the Maritime Service. From 1943 to 1948 he was a crew member on ships transporting troops and supplies to the ETO and Pacific theaters.

After travelling about 60 or 70 thousand miles on the sea lanes of the world and touching points on every continent, Lt. Elliott decided to join the Army and settle down.

He escaped injury during the invasion of Italy when he was aboard a ship at Palermo, Sicily which was bombed and sunk by enemy fire. His wife, employed in Germany as a secretary, plans to join Lt. Elliott after he reports to Fort Sill, where he will be assigned as tactical officer at the OCS Artillery School.

Phone, Power Service Hit By Ice Storm

Break Forecast By Weatherman

Telephone service and electric power were curtailed yesterday afternoon in some sections of the Tri-State area by the icy grip of winter's sleet and snow.

Highway travel east and west of Cumberland was termed hazardous, with chains and caution urged for motorists. But the weatherman promises a break today with some rain and slowly rising temperatures.

The hardest hit area was in the Finzel Road section west of Frostburg along Route 40 toward Grantsville. Last night, telephone crews were busy restoring service to that community and also long distance lines to Somerset and Meyersdale, Pa.

Lines Are Snapped

The weight of the ice and sleet snapped lines from here to Grantsville and the two Pennsylvania communities. Richard E. Harman, manager of the local office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said that so far there was no indication of "serious trouble."

Some trouble was noted in Frostburg, Harmon added. In Garrett County communication between Oakland and Friendsville was cut off temporarily during the afternoon and was being restored by line crews.

All available men of the Frostburg area were called out yesterday by the Potomac Edison Company when the ice and sleet caused a cut-off of electric power west of Frostburg.

Almost 30 employes were working late last night in the Finzel Road section, Deep Creek Lake area, and along Route 40 toward Grantsville. Working conditions were termed "terrible" by Everett Grose, line superintendent of the PE. He said the men were hampered by fog, rain and high winds in restoring service.

Emergency crews were being called in from Romney and other sections in the fight against the elements.

The State Roads Commission last night reported that roads east of here were 80 per cent bare with a few icy spots being cindered.

West of Cumberland, conditions along the highways were reported worse. Three SRC trucks and one pickup were in Frostburg and along Route 40 west of there cindering the roads. Slush-covered highways required the use of chains.

Minor Mishaps Noted

Trucks were kept busy cindering in the George's Creek section where ice and slush were prevalent, and at 7:25 p. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 18 degrees in Frostburg.

Fifteen trucks and three graders were put into service yesterday afternoon by the county in an effort to clear the highways. Freezing rains were reported last night in Romney by West Virginia State Police and caution was urged along Route 50.

Several minor accidents were reported by Pennsylvania State Police, and falling rain turned into sleet as it hit the highways.

Television in Cumberland was blacked out for about 20 minutes last night because of ice forming on a high tension line. J. Holland Rannells, president of the Potomac Valley Television Company, said Potomac Edison Company crewmen had to cut electricity between 9 and 9:20 p. m. to repair the line being pulled down by ice.

Rannells said there was more ice on the TV community antenna last night than last month during the ice storm that crippled communications in Garrett County.

He added the company is in the process of installing emergency voice equipment enabling announcements to be made over video sets locally. Rannells said the company also plans to use the new equipment for local commercials.

Weather

Freezing rain formed a coat of ice over the area yesterday with rising temperature helping only slightly in the afternoon. Rain stopped falling about 4:30 p. m., but clouds remained dark and menacing overhead. Ice was causing utility trouble last night and roads west of here were reported slick. High reading yesterday was 33 degrees according to Constitution Park weather station. Thermometers remained at that level last night at 8 o'clock. Low was 22 and precipitation amounted to .90 of an inch. Forecast for today is occasional rain with slowly rising mercury.

Rev. Malof is the founder of several Christian churches in Russia, among them a church in Moscow. He also founded the First Russian Protestant Churches of Moscow and Petrograd, and organized the first Russian Sunday School Union, since abolished by the Soviets.

Russian-born, he studied theology in London, then went back to his native country to become one of the most influential religious leaders in Russia.

Later, he was attacked by the "Black Hundred" party, tried in the Kremlin, sentenced to imprisonment in a fortress and banishment to Siberia.

Finally, he was exiled from Russia.

Industrial Expansion Bill For Area Signed

Allegany, Garrett Measures Progress

Governor McKeldin yesterday signed a bill designed to aid in the industrial expansion of Allegany County.

Delegate Horace P. Whitworth Jr. said the bill will become effective on June 1, 1953.

In effect, the act will grant the same incentives, through tax exemptions, to expansions and additions made by industries of the county as are offered to new industries.

JOSEPH L. LILLEY

The industrial expansion bill is the second Allegany County bill to become law. The governor recently signed the first measure, the Westernport Charter Bill.

10-Year Exemptions

Delegate Whitworth said the bill provides 10-year tax exemptions for future additions and expansions completed after June 1, 1951, providing the assessable value of the project is more than $25,000.

No rebate in taxes is provided, and any taxes due in 1953 must be paid, according to terms of the bill.

Delegate Whitworth said the bill contains a limitation that no exemption will be granted for the replacement of obsolete machinery or buildings, except to the extent that such work might increase the assessable value of the properties.

The Allegany County Delegation-sponsored bill is modeled after a measure which has proved its worth in South Carolina and was planned to encourage county industries to expand here, rather than moving to other areas.

Back Wills Creek Bill

The Delegation yesterday issued a favorable report on House Bill 313, sponsored by Delegate Estel C. Kelley, which requires the city to keep Wills Creek clear of stagnation.

The bill requires the City Health Officer to take such steps as are necessary to halt stagnation in the stream and to abate the foul odors coming from it.

Enter Civil Service Bill

A delegation representing the Police and Firemen's Welfare Association and Local 812, Municipal Workers Union of Cumberland yesterday presented a proposed civil service bill to Senate Minority Leader Robert B. Kimble.

A delegation spokesman said the city employes met with the Delegation briefly, but that the legislators did not read the proposal.

Seek Unified Bill

Meanwhile, the Mayor and Council and the Civil Service Commission will meet Thursday at 2 p. m. in City Hall to plan a unified Civil Service Board.

The city officials held a six-hour meeting Monday making revisions to the bill proposed by the two employe organizations and on Thursday will tackle a bill which was worked out following conferences between the Civil Service Board and the Mayor and Council, and which incorporates suggestions made by the city groups.

Mayor Roy W. Eves said the city wants to work out a bill which the city can support and that every effort will be made to work out a unified bill.

This meeting was planned yesterday morning, but plans were dropped after a quorum failed to turn up.

Enter Registration Bill

Introduced by the Delegates yesterday was House Bill 504, which directs the Board of Election Supervisors to schedule registration days in four communities of the county before each election.

Communities specified are Frostburg, Lonaconing, Westernport and Mt. Savage.

W.Va. Severance Tax Bill Not Recommended

Cat-And-Mouse Game Features Legislature

CHARLESTON, W. Va., March 3 (AP)—The West Virginia Legislature continued to play a cat-and-mouse game today with Gov. Marland's tax program.

The House Finance Committee made the latest move by bringing out the controversial severance tax bill without recommendation.

Sent To Committee

The action came in a meeting immediately after a House session at which another Marland tax proposal for an increased gasoline levy had been sent back to the Finance Committee.

The action also followed by less than 24 hours the Senate Finance Committee's vote last night to rule out any further consideration of the severance proposal by that body.

The severance tax would impose a 10-cents-per-ton levy on coal and similar imposts on other natural resources production.

Marland estimated the tax would yield $18,000,000 a year, to be earmarked for road and school purposes.

Prospects Dim

On the face of it, the House committee's new action seemed to add little to the apparently hopeless prospect that Marland's severance bill ever would be enacted.

Even should the house pass the measure, it normally then would have to go through the Senate Finance Committee before coming to the floor of that chamber.

The Senate finance group's decisive action last night left no doubt as to what would happen to any House severance tax bill sent before it.

The administration bill to increase the gasoline tax saw the light of day briefly in the House today before being hustled back to the Finance Committee by a 67-30 vote.

Democrats Join

Thirty-four Democrats, including Majority Leader Bowles, joined with the 33-member Republican delegation in voting to send the bill back to committee.

Gov. Marland had recommended the penny increase over the present five-cents-a-gallon gasoline excise tax, as a means of raising an additional $4,000,000 a year for the state's road program.

The Senate, devoting its session largely to amending a resolution to propose annual sessions of the Legislature in order to streamline

Glen Layman, West Main Street, was responsible for recruiting 33 persons as donors. Officials said Laymen's three-year old son, Anthony Richard, is a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital and his case requires frequent blood transfusions. Since the Baltimore hospital does not have the Red Cross free blood program, the local blood bank has been supplying the needed blood.

Mrs. Kathleen Todd is chairman of the recruitment, and working at the unit yesterday were eight nurses, five staff aides and many canteen volunteers.

Because of bad weather, Cumberland fell short of its 150-pint quota when the unit visited here Monday afternoon. Mrs. W. Lee Witherup, executive secretary of the Allegany County Chapter, said 132 persons contributed blood Monday and reported workers were pleased with the turnout on the bad day.

Walk-ins amounted to 36, Mrs. Witherup said, indicating that the program is getting to be generally known. There were a number of cancellations of appointments due to the widespread flu and virus infections of the past months, she explained.

Phone, Power Service Hit By Ice Storm

Break Forecast By Weatherman

Telephone service and electric power were curtailed yesterday afternoon in some sections of the Tri-State area by the icy grip of winter's sleet and snow.

Highway travel east and west of Cumberland was termed hazardous, with chains and caution urged for motorists. But the weatherman promises a break today with some rain and slowly rising temperatures.

The hardest hit area was in the Finzel Road section west of Frostburg along Route 40 toward Grantsville. Last night, telephone crews were busy restoring service to that community and also long distance lines to Somerset and Meyersdale, Pa.

Lines Are Snapped

The weight of the ice and sleet snapped lines from here to Grantsville and the two Pennsylvania communities. Richard E. Harman, manager of the local office of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company, said that so far there was no indication of "serious trouble."

Some trouble was noted in Frostburg, Harmon added. In Garrett County communication between Oakland and Friendsville was cut off temporarily during the afternoon and was being restored by line crews.

All available men of the Frostburg area were called out yesterday by the Potomac Edison Company when the ice and sleet caused a cut-off of electric power west of Frostburg.

Almost 30 employes were working late last night in the Finzel Road section, Deep Creek Lake area, and along Route 40 toward Grantsville. Working conditions were termed "terrible" by Everett Grose, line superintendent of the PE. He said the men were hampered by fog, rain and high winds in restoring service.

Emergency crews were being called in from Romney and other sections in the fight against the elements.

The State Roads Commission last night reported that roads east of here were 80 per cent bare with a few icy spots being cindered.

West of Cumberland, conditions along the highways were reported worse. Three SRC trucks and one pickup were in Frostburg and along Route 40 west of there cindering the roads. Slush-covered highways required the use of chains.

Minor Mishaps Noted

Trucks were kept busy cindering in the George's Creek section where ice and slush were prevalent, and at 7:25 p. m. yesterday the mercury stood at 18 degrees in Frostburg.

Fifteen trucks and three graders were put into service yesterday afternoon by the county in an effort to clear the highways. Freezing rains were reported last night in Romney by West Virginia State Police and caution was urged along Route 50.

Several minor accidents were reported by Pennsylvania State Police, and falling rain turned into sleet as it hit the highways.

Television in Cumberland was blacked out for about 20 minutes last night because of ice forming on a high tension line. J. Holland Rannells, president of the Potomac Valley Television Company, said Potomac Edison Company crewmen had to cut electricity between 9 and 9:20 p. m. to repair the line being pulled down by ice.

Rannells said there was more ice on the TV community antenna last night than last month during the ice storm that crippled communications in Garrett County.

He added the company is in the process of installing emergency voice equipment enabling announcements to be made over video sets locally. Rannells said the company also plans to use the new equipment for local commercials.

Weather

Freezing rain formed a coat of ice over the area yesterday with rising temperature helping only slightly in the afternoon. Rain stopped falling about 4:30 p. m., but clouds remained dark and menacing overhead. Ice was causing utility trouble last night and roads west of here were reported slick. High reading yesterday was 33 degrees according to Constitution Park weather station. Thermometers remained at that level last night at 8 o'clock. Low was 22 and precipitation amounted to .90 of an inch. Forecast for today is occasional rain with slowly rising mercury.
